NOTES OF TRAVEL.

SALT LAKE CITY, Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1871.

This is a strange, a most peculiar place. All of all sorts of quick, reflective and extraordinary and contradictory—whole things generally are curiously mixed up and covered. And now we have a few days for the year, why, a tantalizing lovely in the long, dull history of perpetuities, in the trial of HAWKINS, the polygamist, that would, with apparent ease, be easily against his husband in a criminal prosecution, and, by her testimony, convicted him. To be sure, it was a Mormon wife, and Mormon wives are not supposed to be much married, but the fact seems to be significant of something more, perhaps, than extraordinary and notable privileges have in Utah. The home, power and influence of the "Mormon woman" of Utah, and with his relative to her, shortly, not in a spirit of free-lovers, or from a Mormon High Priest, but in a Federal Court, and from an ordinary Judge.

HAWKINS, the man just tried, is an Englishman of the lowest order, and a very disagreeable specimen at a glance. Taken and tried as well as good chance. He had actually abused his first wife, the love of his youth, who had borne him many children, all of her to endure the struggle into the same house two younger spouses. The society of these ladies was not agreeable to her, and he found on his "Gospel privileges," and consulted her by threats and blows to put up with it. A man who will beat his wife under Victoria, will one always have the grace to spare husband Sunday. He used wives frequently supplied to their Power which is absolute and indefinite in the Territory, and whose action is usually prompt and decisive. They carry all their interesting details to the Lion House. By these Mormon wives declare that at the worst they are better off here than in the old country, where there was no division in the position, and no Harem to appeal to.

I am told that this wronged wife came in her husband against her, hated husband readily, heartily, as though glad that her day had come at last. Clearly with the assumption of the Mormon faith, the more high-spirited woman seems to suffer a sad change, into something more and darker. Just there seems to be a good deal of manly nature left in this particular woman. I am glad of it, though she has spoken the Mormon community by dragging the secrecies of a polygamic household into a Gentile Court. This is the first of these most important trials, and it is a very ugly case for the Saints. I am thankful that I am not a Deputy, not an judge thus forced. But if I were, I should pray God for grace to render a just and impartial judgment, for wisdom, and courage, and charity. It is hard, perhaps, for a jealous polygamic Mormonite to remember that these strange people are our fellow-beings, that the most perverse polygamist of them all is entitled to the benefit of the Golden Rule. Even I, with no political connection necessary enough to kiss me. And it difficult to speak temperately of an institution which is for woman a barbarous and degrading, unnatural degradation and torture. I find it almost impossible to believe that Mormon law-makers may be in consideration in religious polygamy as are our Christian legislators in legalizing prostitution. "Plural marriage" is to me, of course, only vice, sanctioned and protected, and must be simply revolting to all who come from favored and refined communities in the States, where there is nothing of the sort—under that name at least. It is impossible for me to pass by the prettiest Mormon home without shuddering at the tragedy of the tragedies in women's lives that may be passing under its roof; of course one never has such thoughts in passing elegant houses in Eastern cities, where wives are free and happy, and husbands are loving and loyal. I even find it hard when reading the Scriptures in Sunday-school to refrain from laughing out of respect to our Puritan fathers and the early Methodists and Quakers who were also given to rant. I can only have patience with the most ignorant of these people, when they tell of miracles and angelic appearances, by remembering the marvelous things told and believed of the WESLEYS and GEORGE FOX, and countless Catholic saints.

But why should I expect to always "abound in charity," when even ministers of the Gospel sometimes get quite out of the article. Some of them have lately written of the Mormons as being universally not only as polygamists, but as murderers as the old fighting patriarchs—as bloody Ishmaels and outlaws, violent, depraved, disorderly, sensual, devilish.

I noticed in a Eastern New-York journal the report of a discourse by a distinguished clergyman who has lately crossed the continent, and who complained that when in the new City of the Plain, he was compelled to stop at a Mormon hotel, and that he was annoyed by Mormon card-players in the next room, whose conversation was neither edifying nor proper. There are Gentile hotels in the town—the covenant gentleman should not be so bent on going to the most fashionable hostelry. His experience reminds me of one of my own, at a hotel in a certain town in the State of Indiana. It was Court time, and the new room to mine was occupied all night long by a card party of lawyers and judges—the partition was thin, and I was horrified and distressed by the profanity, and worse than profanity, that made "night hideous." These least gentlemen were not given to much swearing, but they did a great business in the divorce line. People who have lived here a long time say that such a thing as a card-playing Mormon is almost unknown. Gambling in all its forms is an offense, subjecting one to Church discipline. The Reverend Doctor was probably mistaken—the profane midnight revelers at the Townsend House, in Lake Ward, we found remarkably quiet and orderly; they not have been those mild half-working Mormons of all, they may have been gentlemen—or Gentiles.

Another clergyman, one of a zealous missionary band who came out here last Summer to hold a great camp meeting, reported that they only held their sessions to entery and denounce all of the valley alive, through the presence and protection of a military guard of armed soldiers, the strong. Doubtless the worthy man believes his own astonishing statement, being well versed in faith, but all sorts of people here, we know the man, laugh at the idea of any such armed force turning out to a camp-meeting, even with the prospect of a fight, he something hardly funny and preposterous. If no excuse were made at that camp-meeting from the Mormon Church, it was not because of any special counter effort or active opposition. The truth is, BRIGHAM YOUNG, with his usual quiet cunning, and knowledge of such human nature as he has had to deal with, took the matter very coolly—advised his people to go to the meetings, to calmly listen to all their opponents had to say, and to learn all they could. He sent his Bishops to keep order among the younger and more turbulent Mormons; he even went himself, and at one time, while a preacher was bitterly denouncing polygamy and other doctrines of the Latter-Day Saints, and some of those badly he began to murmur and threaten, and an outbreak seemed inevitable, the mere raising of his hand, in a quiet, supporting gesture, stayed all violence, hushed every angry voice. His people restquiet under his strong, supreme will, and actually fancy, become shamed to be ashamed about it, that they have perfect religious freedom. There is little squirming under the religious yoke. When Christian charity gives out, "Give the devil his due" is a safe principle to fall back on.

This is doubtless a wicked place, but it doesn't impregnate the wickedness of the great Republic. The Tabernacle has left something to Tammany. BRIGHAM YOUNG may be chief among the left-hand "saints," but he did not carry all the sins of the people into the wilderness.

Now, from all I have been able to observe, and from all I hear from intelligent Gentiles long resident here, I am convinced that the Mormon people generally are remarkably quiet, orderly, sober and industrious; strongly and especially addicted to minding their own business. Moreover once the leaders may be given to preaching the common people never intrude their peculiar views and ideas upon you; but if you inquire concerning them, they will plainly and seriously answer your questions, and in most cases, while struck by the absurdity he revealed by the moral obliquity of those ideas, you are convinced of the absolute sincerity of the simple hearted expounders.

As to BRIGHAM YOUNG, we must all admit even in time his time of trouble and threatened overthrow, they considering the elements he had to deal with—the rudest, the poorest, the most ignorant classes of men, for the greater part, a conglomerate of the lowest strata of civilized societies—"the off-scouring of the earth," as he himself once called them, considering the hard conditions of every emigration and settlement, he had formed a wonderful working colony, unparalleled for vigor, constancy and cohesion—has created a State, almost a nation in this wild, desert land, and on the whole, has governed it wonderfully well. But for his one fatal weakness, the man might have left to other times a noble name, if not for inspired leadership, for masterly sagacity—if not as a prophet of the Lord, as a benefactor of the Lord's poor—if not as the priest of a new religion, as the founder of a new commonwealth.

THE SOUTH.

The Blue Ridge Region of Virginia—The Manse-Fields—Political Ingratitudes of the Rebels—Financial Prospects and Failures—A Mountain Country-Town—A Country Hotel—What the People Say.

From Our Own Correspondent.

IN THE VIRGINIA BLUE RIDGE, Saturday, Oct. 28, 1871.

Even the participants in the great battles in Virginia during the late war, would tell now in recounting the localities of the battle fields, were it not for prominent land-marks, such as dwelling-houses that were used as hospitals, bridges over streams, and the never-fading mountains. In fact, the general appearance of the country has been so thoroughly reconstructed by the advance of reviving agriculture, that young forests now stand where open fields were in those dusty times, while the art of the husbandman has cleared away, in many instances, the numerous oaks, chestnuts and pines that once protected the advance of sagar skirmishers and sanguinary battle lines. The earthworks have crumbled away, have been filled up, or been washed into unrecognizable gullies by the rains. Whole new farms have been built, new houses erected, new roads surveyed, effectively obliterating the marks of carnage which have made these grounds historic. Now one remembers that from the scraggy sides of "Hot Biscuit" Mountain at Thoroughfare Gap, away round to Sperryville, Culpepper and Fredericksburg, thence to Centreville, there is a boundary line defining an inclosure in which both battles of Bull Run, the battles of Winchester, Cedar Mountain, Battle Run, Bristol, Gainesville, Ox-Hill, Fredericksburg, Brandy Station, Chancellorsville, Mine Run, and the Wilderness were fought, besides innumerable skirmishes and picket scrapes—all within a distance of one hundred miles from Washington—the present aspect of the country appears like a dream to those who participated in those struggles. In brief, this section of Virginia does not look like the Virginia of the war.

Nor is the change confined alone to the surface of the country. The customs and habits of the people have undergone a more violent revolution; but it has not been in all respects a revolution for the better. No doubt there are hundreds of individual instances which will serve to contradict the assertion that the masses have not yet, and will not during the present generation, conform to the new order of affairs; but those exceptions more clearly prove the truth of the general rule of discontent, despair and slothfulness. The truth is that, politically, socially and financially, the people here were reinstated in their ante-bellum condition too soon for their own good. In other words, they received kindness rather than justice, and, with rare exceptions, have accepted that kindness as if it had been prompted by a spirit of persecution. It is not only profitable to recall, at this late day, their condition at the close of the war, to compare it with the present, but it is instructive as touching on the ingratitude of men who have been educated to believe themselves to be masters of the world. They were, at the close of the war, abject and submissive to a pitiable degree. They expected distranchisement, confiscation and redistribution of property, expatriation, punishment for treason, and negro domination throughout the length and breadth of the Confederacy. We know how these expectations have been agreeably disappointed, and knowing it, naturally expect expressions of contentment, if not gratitude. Instead of such, however, we hear only the most bitter complaints, coupled with prophecies and hopes that of "Yankees will one day get their just deserts."

When the war closed thousands of Southern merchants found credit at the North, and established themselves in business with rare hopes of success. They did not guess or dream, however, but stood alone and then under the stimulant of that credit. It was benefit them to think of such a thing as failure, while, with characteristic Southern prodigality, they squandered the earnings which should have been laid aside to pay their debts. The result was protests without number, and now not one third of those merchants remain in business. Many of those who failed, and who paid from 10 to 50 cents on the dollar, are now in business, and are doing a good business, and are doing it with the money of those who trusted them, who commenced "merchandising," as they called it, at the close of the war, and to be found in business. When they commenced, there was a dearth of everything among their customers. Five years of non-intercourse, with manufacturing communities had worn out all the pocket-books, suspenders, gloves, pocket-knives, and Yankee notions generally, in the entire country, to say nothing of hats and caps, boots and shoes, and clothing generally. All these things were supplied by the North. In fact, the Yankees reclothed their late enemies in the habiliments of peace, refurnished their houses, restocked their farms, and set them on their feet again. Yes, the Yankees did all this, virtually without price, for they have not got, and will not get, anything in return for the credit extended by them to two-thirds of the Southern merchants who have failed since the war. While the Federal army remained on garrison or police duty in the South, and while the Freedmen's Bureau was in existence, there was a continuous flow of money into the coffers of those who had anything to sell, and the merchants reaped their share of the profits. The regular payment of the troops, the purchase and sale of army stores, the expenses of the machinery of the Government, &c., carried millions of dollars to these penniless people, without taking a cent from them, and in addition to that an equal amount sent or taken there by Northern capitalists. Here was certainly a good start for provident people, and the few who may be numbered of that class look at vantage of it. They are prosperous even to this day, while the overwhelming majority, with characteristic improvidence, have relapsed into the impecunious condition of the last year of the war, and are living in slothful neglect of the opportunities that daily slip away from them.

This is no exaggerated picture of the present condition of the rural districts of the South. To prove its truth, let me describe the county town of a Virginia mountain county. Twenty-five years ago a young man, accompanied by his wife, commenced hotel keeping. The wife is now dead, but her wife, with the grown-up boys still keeps the hotel. The furniture, with exceptions of "amendments and mendings" occasioned by the war, now to be found in the rooms, was bought by the husband a quarter of a century since, and it satisfied those who used it now as it satisfied those who used it then. The table board has long a reputation in that time. There were never any carpets in it to be renewed, except in the private rooms of the family; there they have been renewed by patching and darning, until the patches and darns have evidenced the original, and nothing but patches and darns remain. There are fashionable pitchers and crocked wash-bowls in the bedrooms. The curtains at the windows have hung untouched since the surrender, and now the smoke of pipes and the dust of the turnpike begrudge them until the original color is lost. The bed-clothing is better and more comfortable than the surroundings would lead one to anticipate, and is occasionally aired, but the mattresses are stained, darned and sunken. The dining tables are covered with oil-cloth. The table-ware and cutlery is composed of the remnants of a dozen or more different purchases or "sets." There is a bell on the roof which sounds the call for meals. There are two regular boarders. There are one hundred or more transient guests at dinner on "court" or other "public days." The food is mainly corn bread, butter, chickery coffee, milk, fried chicken, bacon, and occasionally ham, with fresh beef on the average twice, and fresh mutton, once a month. All the guests of this hotel live, so do the people of the town generally, except that in some of the private houses, whose inmates are exceptionally intelligent, "things" are cleaner. There are three stores, in none of which can you find a greater luxury in the eating line than a box of French sardines—in truth, Potomac smelt. There is one blacksmith-shop, one tailoring establishment, one shoe-maker, one carpenter, one wheelwright, and a jack-at-all trades. The barkeeper at the hotel asks his customers to wait for their drams on Sunday morning while he builds the fire and sweeps out the church. The undertaker, who is the carpenter and joiner, is also the county jailer. The mail-carrier is the general business agent for everybody as the railway station, twenty-four miles away. The postmaster is a tailor, and keeps a candy-shop. One of the two physicians, an excellent one, by the way, is the only druggist in a section of country twenty-five miles square. There is no local preacher, although in a town of the same size in Pennsylvania or New-York, there would be three or four. There is no livery stable. The merchants keep exercise, calicoes, &c., &c., such as are to be found in country stores generally; but when your wife wants a spool of thread you must send to "the city" for it. The mails are served three times a week, and it takes four, and sometimes eight days to write to and get an answer from a distance of one hundred miles. Ten or a dozen of the male citizens pretend, with more or less success, to slovenliness in their dress, and half a dozen of them have their boots blacked every day. Nearly everybody, large and small, owns a saddle-horse. A few own carriages. There is only one spring wagon in the town. You can hear the hum of spinning wheels in the street. All the men make and chew home-made or "country twist" tobacco. Many of the old women do the same. The younger women dress with comparative good taste, particularly in the matter of shoes. Everybody call everybody else captain, colonel, or doctor, as a venture, or by habit, unless their christian names are known. There is no newspaper printed or published in the county. There is no bank, no money-order office, no telegraph, no market, except for home consumption, but few common schools, with fewer teachers, no mending of roads, no public lectures or efforts at public amusement and instruction, no social gatherings except those of relatives, no associations for the relief of the poor, no benevolent associations of any kind, no public libraries, and, in short, no energy, except arrogant pride in the belief that this county contains more eminent and able men than all of the North combined.

This town is more than a century old. Many of the houses and fences were built before the present occupants were born. "This store-building," said a merchant to me, "used to be half its present size 2 or years ago. Then old man So-and-so was here. When he died, his successors added that wing, and since the war we have added more to it, so it is now about twenty-four by thirty feet. Up to the war it was the biggest in town, but since then the big brick one was built." "My grandfather," said a citizen, "was born in this house, my father was born here, I was too, and my children also." Here was proof of antiquity and veneration for ancestry that would have elicited admiration were it not for the fact that the great-grandchildren were being taught to believe that the civilization of the entire world could not produce greater bravery than was to be found in the deal tables, dusk mattresses and corn-brash and bacon of their parental roof. "There's been more building done here since the war than there ever was after, it seems to me," said another old resident; "now, there's two new houses goin' up this season," he added, "and there was right quiet of them repeated and added on to last year." "Yes, we chaps go to save a bank," said a business man; "but then, we get along without it, and our moneyed men don't believe in United States securities. We use checks on Alexandria, and one man's check is as good as another."

So much for the town's people. And now for the farmers in the adjacent country. They still hold their mammoth farms, of three, four, five, eight, ten and fifteen hundred acres. It is said to calculate that if, with one good team and modern farm appliances, a Northern farmer can make money on fifty acres, a Southern one, without a good team and little or no farm implements, will lose money if he attempts to pay even reasonable taxes on a big plantation. Ah! those taxes. There's the rub. In the slave times farms above here were valued at from eighteen to one hundred dollars per acre. The rates of present valuation are about the same, while the taxes are greater in proportion. You can readily see from this that overvaluation, with consequent overtaxation, is eating away the substance of these people. Yet you cannot persuade them that their farms are overvalued. They plant one bushel of wheat and harvest six or eight instead of fifteen and twenty, as in the North, and when they harvest they have no market at less distance than Alexandria or Richmond; consequently they not only produce less but get less in price than Northern farmers, yet they hold their lands at higher rates. All this is nothing itself, however, because at Sheriff's sales land has been bought at prices ranging 14 to 50 per acre. Gradually, then, these high-priced farmers are being reduced to beggary. They can produce with profit none of the staples of agriculture, cultivate crops of fruit. Apples grow to perfection and in surprising abundance, even under a system of non-cultivation, which a stranger would accept as calculated to kill the fruit, if not destroy the trees. Yet in the whole Blue Ridge region I venture to say there are not fifty young orchards to be found. The bearing orchards are composed of trees planted two or three generations ago, around the tops of which grow "suckers" so thick as to look like clumps of trees underneath or those fallen. As a rule, the trees seem to have come up of their own accord, and are scattered about over the whole farm, without any attempt at cultivation. Cider is a staple article of the orchard in the fall, at from 25 to 50 cents per barrel delivered at the railway. No one heard, however, that ever rich the department of grinding its own fruit to market, and the year thousands, if not millions, of bushels of apples have rotted in the orchards of the Blue Ridge for want of enterprise to save them. Some of the farmers buy cattle in the Fall or Spring, and graze them for the market, but this is a hazardous experiment, as the land does not produce good grass. The millions of acres of mountain land, too steep for cultivation, will be valuable some day for its timber, if in the meantime it is not stripped for the bark. The town of Sperryville is sustained mainly by the traffic in this commodity, and the mountains in the vicinity are being robbed of their virgin forests to produce it. But tan-bark at six dollars per ton yields as much as it will bring, and while a few get rich by dealing in it, those who do the hard work are poorly paid. So it is with chestnuts at a dollar a bushel, and with sumac at a dollar a hundred pounds. The sumac trade, however, promises to become the great feature of the business of this section. No one has attempted yet to cultivate it, but it is gathered from the roadsides. The farmers, as a rule, do not pretend even to attempt the cultivation of grapes, although they grow wild in abundance, and the few efforts that have been made in that direction have been attended with unbounded success.

Throughout the length and breadth of Virginia it would be hard to find an original Secessionist. You may hear of them, but you seldom, if ever, meet them. Judging from their own statements, the people voted unanimously against secession, and they were equally unanimous in support of the Union, "until their State went out." This being the true case, I have often wondered how the "State went out," and have never received a satisfactory explanation, except that the Democrats did it.

ENGLAND.

The Sympathy for Chicago—American Credit in Europe—Effect of the Expenditures of the Ring—Political Movements—The Manchester Party—Social Politics—Literary Gossip—The London Theatres.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 21, 1871.

The newspapers this morning all publish long extracts from the NEW-YORK TIMES and other American journals describing the burning of Chicago, which have been telegraphed from Queb. The graphic letters of your correspondents have intensified the impressions of horror and pity with which the news was first received. Sympathy for the sufferers is mingled with admiration for their noble fortitude and prompt resolution to begin at once to repair their misfortunes and to reconstruct their city. There is no considerable town in the Kingdom in which a fund has not been raised for the relief of the destitute and houseless population. If the calamity had befallen a British instead of an American city, it is had been Blunty or Montreal, instead of Chicago, I do not think that it could have evoked more sincere sorrow or more substantial expressions of sympathy and friendship. There is only one feeling on the subject among all classes of this community.

AMERICAN CREDIT IN EUROPE.

I may mention that the courageous crusade of the NEW-YORK TIMES against the municipal robbers of New-York, and the determined spirit in which the honest part of the population have rallied themselves at your back, resolved to put down the outrageous brigandage of the Tammany class, have produced a marked effect over here both in political and commercial circles. Commercially it is, I am convinced, the best investment New-York ever made. There is no denying the fact that the abominable misgovernment of New-York created an unfortunate prejudice not only against financial projects emanating from that quarter, but against American securities generally. Nobody knew how far the Tammany thieves might carry their schemes of plunder, and there was a natural reluctance to risk money within their reach. It the movement which has been so ably and manfully directed by the TIMES is steadfastly followed up, there will be a general rise in the value of American stocks, and your merchants and projectors will find an immense fund of British capital ready to be intrusted to them. In the political world also the reputation of the nation for moral courage has now been vindicated. Nothing has happened since the war to excite confidence in the American character in anything like the same degree. I speak from what I have lately heard, not merely in London but in different parts of England, and I can appeal to travelling Americans to corroborate what I say. The news of the prompt measures taken by the American Government against the Fenian raiders is regarded as highly satisfactory. Lord GRANVILLE spoke of it in strong terms at the opening of the new Reform Club at Manchester, and declared that nothing could have been more cordial and unhesitating than the action of President GRANT and Mr. FISH in this matter.

THE MANCHESTER MOVEMENT.

The 41st Cobden school since Parliament was prorogued was held this afternoon. It is noticeable that the chief matter under consideration was the new warrant regulating promotions among officers of the army, now that the purchase of commissions is abolished. As far as I can learn the threatening rush of officers to the Gazette in consequence of the deterioration of the aristocratic character of the profession, which was so predicted as a necessary consequence of abolishing purchase, seems to have passed away, at least, for the present, at any rate. A good deal of anxiety was felt by many who have sons in the army lest the work of the Commission should be so hurried as to bring out the worst results of the system, and the Duke of CAMBRIDGE was asked to postpone the operation of the new warrant for a few months, that the Commission might have time to do its work properly. The Duke of CAMBRIDGE said he would do so, and the Commission will accordingly woman called Mme. GUIZOT, from a juvenile connection, ages ago, with the distinguished statesman, and whose amorous cry, on still Summer evenings, made the whole quarter ring. There was music in it, as in many of those street cries. That prolonged "Eau sucre, Messieurs et Mesdames—regaler sucre!" can never be forgotten, nor the intermediate obaunt warning the public to buy no nabbs; but here, and terminating with the perfect crescendo cry of "Les pistaches!" the echo of which seems to float away upon the Summer night's air over the dark gables of the Sorbonne, and to be lost far away beyond the gilded dome of the Pantheon. The Rue de l'Ancienne Comedie and the Carrefour de l'Odeon are the favorite walks of this diurnal dame, who yet shows traces of youthful beauty, and it was probably those streets, along which the Redoter Guizot used to ride in his carriage to and from the Palace of Luxembourg. On words pass Mme. Guizot always appeared in costume, dressed like a young, fresh peasanne of the country, and she never fails to do a good day's work. All the waiters stop in their beds hey her called; and she is as witty as she is said to be rich. As for Mme. MARCHAL, le "Charbonne," as she was called, the ghost of this singular cri, a great deal more might be said. For how many years, and through what changes she has cried her pistaches! The pole woman, who flashed but a few weeks of ninety years, will be greatly regretted by the children of the Tuileries gardens, with whom she was always a great favorite. ASHBY.

EMPIRE OF AUSTRIA.

The Constitutional Crisis—Responsibility for the Czech Proposals—The Fundamental Articles—Plans of the Government—Hungarian Sentiment—Attitude of the Croats—Wallachians.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BERLIN, Friday, Oct. 13, 1871.

The political lull reigning in Austria a week ago, after the last explosion of German discontent on Teutia, has been succeeded by a violent storm. The publication of the Hohenlohe proposals, and more still, the manner in which it has been officially received, have stirred the constitutional controversy on to new ground. Up to the 9th of this month, it was still the belief of moderate men that Government was sincere in its professions of justice, as well as in its defiance of the citizen energy, and that all it stood at was to neutralize the too powerful influence of the Germans, and to establish a kind of equilibrium between the race, which should in turn and confirm the central Government only the more, and obliterate those distinctions which now prove so baleful. The late occurrences have entirely dissipated this favorable impression, and not only placed the formerly hostile and neutral elements into uncompromising opposition, but deprived Government even of such friends as were still endeared entire its blunder, "the time pressure," as they assert. Nothing is left now in the Government camp but the Czechs and the bureaucracy. The plan on which Hohenlohe based their operations was probably well weighed. They began their campaign with the most plausible pretensions. Not a word was said that might not be and was not defended on the strict ground of justice. The Bohemian "rescript," couched in most guarded terms, edicts as it was to the Germans, when considered by the light of cool reason and without knowledge of Government's intentions, appeared entirely constitutional and was accepted as such by all except the Austro-Germans. Official organs denounced the German interpretation as a malicious misconstruction. But bit by bit the excuses first readily offered themselves have been drawn away, and now nothing remains but the bare fact of a proposed and almost accomplished coup d'état. Count HOHENWART evidently intended by this measure to weld his original supporters so firmly to his cause that from mere stubbornness and to eat their own words, they should stand by him to the end. In this respect his scheme has grossly miscarried. To a man his moderate friends have fallen off as soon as he showed his true colors, and their opposition is rather made the more vehement from former deception. Government cannot now disclaim its imputed responsibility for the Czech proposals. It was said, indeed, not long ago, that the Bohemians had transgressed the bounds of their compromise with Count HOHENWART. When the leading features of the proposals first leaked out into the Press, it was confidently asserted that the Prime Minister would revise the draft before its publication, and expunge all that was offensive. This might be true, though it was not likely that the authors of the draft, being the very men who had conducted the negotiations, should, on no provocation but their own, exceed their powers. Since then these same authority, viz., Count CHAM-MARTHENITZ and Dr. RIESER, have had repeated interviews with Count HOHENWART, avowedly for no other purpose but to consult on the address, and now the unqualified approval of the official Vienna Gazette stamps the proposals at once the acknowledged Government platform. There was more in the criticism of the Gazette than mere utterance of opinion. It was intended to produce a favorable result on the public. The Gazette was the first paper that commented upon the newly-disclosed proposals, and it endeavored to secure them a cordial reception, or, at all events, to prevent the wholesale condemnation which it was felt an independent consideration would involve, on the principle that a displeased audience hesitates to hiss where one is found to clap. The Vienna Gazette, speaking for Government, hails the "fundamental articles" as a "discussable substratum," i. e., a fair proposal claiming consideration, and comparing them favorably with the declaration of 22d August, 1868, on which it considers them an unquestionable improvement, inasmuch as the declaration aimed at the entire disruption of the Empire, leaving its dismembered parts nothing in common but their ruler; whereas, the present proposals acknowledge a certain solidarity of the Empire. This praise, undeserved as it is, has been repeated with so much official emphasis that there is no room to doubt its being the expression of Count HOHENWART's mind.

"THE FUNDAMENTAL ARTICLES."

I will not weary your readers with a recapitulation of the several points of the "fundamental articles," known to you already by telegraph. Their characteristic features are these: Discarding altogether its position in the Empire, Bohemia sets out as a first basis from its own total independence, granting, however, no privilege of the kind to the other nationalities. It really constitutes itself an independent kingdom, with its own Constitution, its own Ministry and its own Parliament, acknowledging a federal treaty with the other provinces, avowedly only for the sake of and so far as is justified by its private advantage. The federal principle is carried even into the Cabinet, which assumes thus the more limited functions of a federal council. Common legislation is narrowed down to a few insignificant points, over the army administration being separated into two points, the smaller by far falling to the share of Government. The national debt, post, railways, &c., are recognized as imperial subjects, but even direct taxation is made matter for separate legislation. All the functions of the present Imperial Parliament are transferred to the provincial, and for the former a Congress of delegates is substituted with little power of interprovincial significance. The Upper Chamber is done away with altogether, its substitute consisting of a Congress of Princes of the blood, Archbishops, and life members appointed by the Emperor, the office of which is limited to little beyond jurisdiction in disputes of competency between Congress and the Provincial Chambers. Taxation is to be distributed among the three component parts of the Empire in certain proportions, to be levied there independently of one another. Thus, Hungary would pay a fixed share of so many per cents, as at present; so would Bohemia, and so would the other Austro-Cisleithian kingdoms and provinces among them. The treaty with Hungary the Czechs are pleased to recognize as valid—an advance, indeed, upon their declarations of 1868. But one for which they deserve little credit, as their only hope of carrying their point rests on their making friends with the Hungarians. Setting aside entirely the injustice involved in the mere Constitution, intrusting the whole power into the hands of the three million Czechs, who are to terrorize over the two million Germans, in the inter-provincial bearing this proposal aims the death-blow at the existence of Austria as a State altogether. Nothing ought to be said for the system of German supremacy which has hitherto prevailed. For the matter of that Czech supremacy is as good as German, from an impartial point of view, except that there is unquestionably more civilization on the German side. But a country of so little national coherency as Austria, with the race prejudices running so high as they do at present, exposed to foreign rivalry on at least two sides, and leading consequently, and on account of its humiliation in 1866, a most precarious life, requires a strong central Government to keep the parts together, weld the conflicting elements into one, and help the country over the dangerous period when race variances shall have subsided and the Empire shall have gained strength commercially and politically by rest and reforms. Late events have taught how useful such union is in any one and in any country, and the aims of all the neighbors of Austria preach the same theory.

POLICE ON THE GOVERNMENT.

Being Government to be unalterably determined to subvert the present Constitution, the question naturally presents itself—What is it aiming at? Nobody hardly seems yet to state themselves upon this question. The Russian papers alone have ventured on an explanation which might be supposed of a meeting of the minds, as it is whispered, taking place in the Hotel Orsay Gazette, whose correspondent, partaking of the semi-official character of his journal, it gains in significance. The Czechs are as little in the Polos susceptible of the advantages of a free constitution, however, they may rave about a free country. To have no freedom speaks in all they care for, but among themselves they readily yield to the most autocratic whims of their nobility and Government. Such a race might be engaged to offer excellent material to be used as a tool by an unscrupulous Government as Count HOHENWART's, and the chasm between Czechs, now triumphant and willing to make any concessions to the Government officials, their autocracy, it intends to empower the Germans, and with them all hope of rising liberalism; for liberalism is confined to the Germans. That done, few difficulties will present themselves to the subjugation of the entire population. The Czechs are influenced already by the feudal class and the priests, both classes throughout the Empire having caused a greater stickedness by the proposed Election Bill, support the reactionary policy from selfish motives, and so it is hoped by their aid to rebuild free Austria—minus its dismembered provinces—to thirty years ago, with nobody but the Emperor and the nobles to wield any power. The object is plausible; and there is hardly any other explanation for the Hohenlohe plans. But there are two or even three or four parties to the reckoning and they do not seem willing to yield themselves as creatures of instruments as Count HOHENWART may expect. In the first place there are the Germans, who, the Prime Minister may rest assured, will not sive in for any length of time; indeed, after 1866, it seems wonderful that he should have expected them to. It may appear unreasonable to say so, but the Germans are plainly prepared sooner to discard their allegiance than to sacrifice their independence. They do not hesitate to say so, and with our northerners burning to embrace them, and Count BISMARCK eager at the earliest opportunity, when he shall have digested his latest acquisitions, to carry out his old idea of use Germany from the North Sea to the Alps, it is, to say the least, highly imprudent in the Austrian Prime Minister to incite the already half-seceding part to further discontent, and to arouse a feeling within them that they do not belong to the Empire. I will not attempt to cite "opinions of the Press" on the offensive proposals. Every paper not strictly under Government or Czech influence is indignant at the mere suggestion.

The Parliamentary proceedings are characterized by the same violent party spirit, and in ordinary life every opportunity is eagerly seized to display disaffection. In the Chamber of Lower Austria Deputy KURANDA represented Germany as the "magnet mountain" attracting all of German descent to it with irresistible force; and in the face of this, he said, Government is as great parts to loosen all the screws and rivets still linking us to the Austrian vessel, and preventing our union with our brethren. The passage was greeted with vociferous and prolonged cheering from members and in the gallery. At Brunn, the scene of SCHIRR's "Glass of Water," in which Bolingbroke says to Queen Anne: "The whole people is in a ferment; they are dissatisfied with the Ministry, and I cannot answer for the consequences if it is not dismissed," spoke as unanimous and enthusiastic applause. At numerous places, moreover, ovations, torchlight processions, &c., are brought the German Deputies who have impradently quitted their seats.

HUNGARIAN SENTIMENT.

It may be, possibly, of greater importance still to know how the Hungarians regard the innovation, being a more compacted and influential province, and never more influential than at the present moment, after their successful military manœuvres. Up to now there has been great hesitation in their conduct; neither the Government nor the National Party apparently cared to prejudice its later actions. Courted both by the Cisleithan Ministers and the Germans, they have refused the approaches of either. As long as Government appeared to aim at a constitutional settlement, their friendship inclined more toward the Ministry. No sooner, however, did HOHENWART show his true cards than the Hungarians at once began to stir. Count ANDRASSY, returning from Vienna, immediately convoked a Cabinet Council, and JOSEPH JURTS, the Chairman of the Deak Club, with as little delay, summoned its members—among them ANDRASSY and DEAK—to a meeting. The semi-official papers cautiously point out the difficulties still obstructing the progress of Count HOHENWART's policy, and the other Press less guardedly points out that the constitutional settlement beyond the Leitha is, after all, not a matter of indifference to the Magyars, and that they will claim their share in its management. However little the Hungarians might wish to interfere in purely internal Cisleithan matters, there can be no doubt that they will remain inactive only up to a certain point. It is not the same thing whether they have to deal with one centralized Empire, or with a number of discordant provinces; whether they are linked to a State with common interests and common vitality, or to an incoherent and powerless aggregate of petty communities. Moreover, they have had a little reminder to show them what the Czech "fundamental article" leads to.

ATTITUDE OF THE CROATS.

What the Czechs are in Cisleithania the Croats are in Transleithania. They, too, have long agitated for autonomy and independence. Called by the refusal of Government to convoke the Diet as usual on 12th October, because the new elections had turned out unfavorable, it required very little further increment to produce an explosion. This incitement was provided by the Servians, and, rumor says, by the Recent himself. M. RISTICH, who, at any rate, might have prevented it had he been so disposed. Croatia and the military frontier have been flooded of late with seditious pamphlets, published at Belgrade, apparently in the Russian interest. As a consequence, a rebellion broke out in Ogulin, in the military frontier district, of the danger of which it would be unwise to judge by the promptness with which it has been mastered. Such insurrections, when attacked in the germ with a superior military force, are easily quelled. Still the authorities had some trouble in defeating it, and for doing so required reinforcements. The garrison at the Provinces Carlstadt has been reinforced, and the towns Kikovlova and Provinja are occupied by troops. In the engagement several leaders were killed, others captured and the bulk of the rebels escaped to the mountains. The short-lived rebellion is merely a symptom of other influences at work; that Croatia is not in a loyal humor may be argued from the assembly of disaffected [illegible] unconvoked [illegible] subject but [illegible] Government. The Poles in Cisleithania are not traveling with quite as great speed as their more hot-blooded brethren in Croatia. They are the third factor affecting the Czech question, and they do not seem amicably disposed to it. Had the Germans not needlessly provoked them into being Poles, there [illegible] would be found fighting side by side. Under all circumstances they have already declared against the Czechs, half from sympathy, half from disappointment at being slighted for their Bohemian rivals.

GOVERNMENT.

This Government appears to have engaged in a struggle with a dangerous coalition of great price, and with very little advantage on its side, except material force. Every German and Pole from politician is anxious how the dispute may end, a change in the relations of which every wire may signalize. The Austrian Reichsrath stands convoked for the end of this month, and then, if not sooner, the actual battle must begin.

UNITED ITALY.

The Approaching Session of Parliament—A National Aid to Ground Rent—Progress of Popular Education—The Encouragement of Agriculture—Rents of Ecclesiastic Property—Growth of Democracy—Two Timely Topics—A Prohibitorie Congress.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FLORENCE, Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1871.

No day is yet set for the opening of Parliament, but the work in the Palace of Monte Citorio is sufficiently advanced to make it pretty certain that the Deputies will be able to meet before the end of November. A final farewell has been taken of the Palazzo Vecchio, and the Hall of the Cinque Cento has returned its old air of decided grandeur. Its one of the buildings handed over by the State Government to the municipality of Florence, and some of the city offices will before long be installed in the great chambers. Not a word of complaint has yet been heard of the treatment which Florence has received from the State authority, for the city has gained vastly by the six years' residence here of the Government.

A NATIONAL ANNIVERSARY DAY.

The Romans seem more disposed to make the anniversary of their election by a vote of forty thousand to join Cisleithania to the Kingdom of Italy, their great day of fête, than to adopt that on which the Italian troops broke into Rome to bring about their deliverance. A scene quite new for ecclesiastical Rome was presented this year on the festivity of the Capitol Mount. Six thousand three hundred children of both sexes, pupils in the public schools, were brought out to show what the free Government has been able to do in a single year. Twelve months ago and not a single common school, or those in which secular is separated from dogmatic instruction, existed in the City. Now forty-one schools, with two hundred instructors, and the number of pupils already named, with an expenditure of forty thousand dollars, is the remarkable beginning made toward the establishment of a general system of popular education. It is a gratifying fact to those who believe that the common people are best off with elementary instruction. These schools are to be schools of instruction, which those under exclusive clerical control have not been. Among the other exercises on this first exhibition, the children tried their voices pretty vigorously in shouts for the Sovereign. The Romans have shown their good sense by this exhibition of the practical benefits of freedom, rather than by letting off a frothy enthusiasm in an endless dance. Italy is giving proofs, quite worthy of a northern nation, of the value she sets upon this scheme for adding to the aggregate of popular intelligence. The fact may be mentioned that the City of Turin expends annually on its public schools about one hundred and eighty thousand dollars, or nine hundred thousand francs, and Naples, Florence, and Milan—younger in the enjoyment of free rule—each from seven to eight hundred thousand francs, or one or two hundred thousand of our money.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

A movement has already begun to put under better cultivation the Agro Romano, and we are told that 150 families, from the Val d'Aosta, are getting ready to go down there. A Swiss emigration is also organizing, and it is expected that the flow of the tide will soon be considerable in that direction. Bands of such hardy laborers will soon stimulate into activity the languor of the Roman peasantry, and we shall see if the atmosphere of the Campagna, when put under cultivation, is not as favorable to labor as it was under the Tarquins twenty centuries ago. When the Italians think of what the Swiss have done with their great rock, or the Dutch with their great bog, they see how easy it will be with labor to turn their waste places into fruitful fields. The Italians, in their enthusiasm, are anticipating the time when their capital city shall have a population equal to that of Berlin or Constantinople, and from the cultivated Campagna such a population can be fed.

DEMOCRACY AND SCHOLARSHIP.

The decay of scholarship in Italy forms a subject for frequent discussions, and the cause is found by intelligent writers in the progress of democracy, or the lowering of the political and social standard. In a recent article some remarks are made which show what opinion is held here of the condition of culture in America:

"As present in Italy there is no market for books or writings of a serious character. The Government is not in the habit to stimulate production. Higher literature is with us is left of necessity with the dilettanti, who are, as the world knows, the fugitivi del et art and letters. Where there are among us such men as GROTE, MILL, BAINE or MOMMSEN, they ought to be well enough off to be able to print without selling; or the only useful advice that could be given them would be to write in some other language in order to find a market outside of Italy.

"Without doubt, modern democracy, whose essential interitus is to lower down the intellectual level, has something to do with the actual state. But if democracy has a share, it is not wholly to blame. The sinking of the level of culture in Italy is too great to be explained by political causes. The American democracy, in fact, if in the field of ideas and studies behoves comparison inferior to the other branch of the Anglo-Saxon family, has not sunk so low as we find ourselves; for, if it has not writers of the first order, it has those that are good, and above all it reads, studies, and tries to do the best it can. There, also, the direction of affairs of State is not in the hands of persons the most cultivated; but at least it is not publicly said that culture is a hindrance and a disqualification for public duties and honors; nor do we believe that there any Deputy in open Parliament would cast in in the teeth of Romeo (the Charles Summer of the Italian Legislature) as a shame to know how to read and understand PLATO in the Greek text."

Another proof of the poor opinion held in Europe of American scholarship. While it is known that a thin skin of knowledge is stretched over the whole body of the nation, it is believed that we have very little classical culture, thoroughness of literary criticism, or any but a superficial acquaintance with elegant letters and polished arts. Students of English literature—and there are a good many in Italy—are so familiar with the brilliant writers of which England has so large a number, as not to become acquainted with the very highly respectable contributions we are making to the literature common to both countries. The truth is, few here know much of anything about us. Hardly the fact is known that the pumpkin-like paracarp of our nation has grown so large as to hold forty million seeds of humanity.

TWO TIMELY TOPICS.

Two matters which have made lately a good deal of newspaper talk at Rome, are the convent property question, and the swearing of fidelity to the Crown of the Professors of the Roman University. By making the two great seats of learning at Padua and Rome State institutions, the instructors, like any other placemen, are obliged to bind themselves to loyalty by a formal oath. About twenty Professors in the Roman Seminary, it is said, will not find it in keeping with their consciences to hold their places by any solemn promises. The Chair of Theology has been upset in several of the leading learned institutions; the new Government [illegible] feeling itself able to get along with very little [illegible] the Pope of temporal dominions.

A PROHIBITORIE CONGRESS.

Among the various Congresses and Congresses of scientific and literary men lately held in Italy, the Prehistoric Congress at Bologna the past week has been one of the most interesting. The conferences were held in the antique University, and extracts from different parts of Europe were present. Central Italy is a rich field for prehistoric explorations, as the extensive collections of Etruscan antiquities at Volsinii and in other cities prove. Many treasures of the past are laid up in those museums, but the soil is not exhausted, for the sites of the twelve Etruscan cities continue to yield minor objects as rewards for diligent search. In an epoch like that in which we live, so summarily disinguished for devotion to material pursuits, it is pleasant to witness so many signs of a revival of interest in studies which take the mind out of a sphere too rigorously prosaic.

THE ACCIDENT TO THE CHERSTER.

From Spezia word comes that as a result of the Court of Inquiry, Capt. STRAVENS is suspended from the command of the Cherster, and Capt. CAMERTON will arrive here in a few days to succeed to the post of chief officer of that vessel, and take her home. Capt. Stravens will return in the vessel, which he lately commanded, to answer to the Department in the charge made against him of a gross blunder in navigation. Several officers of the vessel are now in Florence. ANGELICO.

THE NEW DOMINION.

Parliament Proroguing to Smother the Scott Scandal—Important Measures Shelved—Bills of the Government to Secure a Majority—New Brunswick Demanding its Price—Fenians, and Alleged.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, Tuesday, Oct. 31, 1871.

The Governor-General has created no little astonishment among the opponents of the Washington Treaty by his free and outspoken utterances on the subject. There could be no question from the first as to the course the Canadians in Parliament should take, yet there were persons who insisted that the treaty, in so far at least as it affected this country, should be rejected; and that feeling appeared to have taken a deep hold on the public mind, nor did it give way until it was plainly seen by all save the most obstinate that there must be a ready and complete compliance with the terms proposed. Gradually the opinion has gained ground that the rejection of the treaty would be alike a blunder and a misfortune; and few here were in the least surprised to learn that Lord LISGAR considers it incumbent on our Parliament to ratify it in all its integrity. His Excellency, nevertheless, is blamed for falling in with the general view, notwithstanding he may have held that opinion all along; and there are some who take upon themselves to say that he has stepped out of the beaten path of duty to speak for his constitutional advisers on a subject which should not even have been approached by him. Of course this is all nonsense, for he had a perfect right to express his opinion, and he did nothing more, although it is pretty well understood that he and the Cabinet are quite in accord with regard to the treaty. Lord LISGAR did well to come out as he did; he has unquestionably won over the wavering, and the country applauds him for his manliness. There seems to be no doubt entertained now that the treaty will be indorsed by Parliament. The question has ceased to be a topic of discussion, and it is said that the Reform leaders are at cross purposes on the subject, the opinion having obtained prevalence among them, to the effect that it would be unwise, if not dangerous, to reject the terms made applicable to this country. It is obvious enough that no party leader would risk his popularity or incur the responsibility of rejecting it, fraught as such a course would be with the most serious consequences. The opponents of the treaty are beginning to see this, and the opposition to it is consequently becoming weaker.

A MINISTERIAL CHANGE.

An important change has taken place in the Dominion Cabinet—Hon. CHRISTOPHER DUNKIN retiring from the head of the Agricultural and Emigration Bureau, to a seat on the Bench. It had been rumored for some time that he would don the ermine, and the recent death of Mr. Justice SHORT afforded an opportunity for shelving him, perhaps sooner than was intended. Mr. DUNKIN was rather a pains-taking Minister, but it is not known that he possessed any particular ability or aptitude for the position he occupied. He had earned a high reputation at the Bar, chiefly in connection with the abolition of the Seignorial Tenure in Lower Canada, and was classed as one of the best debaters in the old House of Assembly. Since he entered the Government, however, he has not made any marked or particular display of oratory. It is not a little curious that he was called on as Treasurer of Quebec to denounce the Government of which he afterward became a member, for refusing to favor that Province in the matter of apportioning the debt of the old Provinces. The question is still held in abeyance. As a departmental head, Mr. DUNKIN was somewhat deficient, and does not appear to have accomplished much either for agriculture or emigration. His taking of the census has brought down upon him the heavy censure of the Press on both sides, because it required six months to do the work. He persistently refused to give any information to the public with regard to the population of the country, and was successful in preventing anything whatever being known. The retiring Minister is succeeded by Mr. J. H. POPE, a gentleman who has held a seat in Parliament since 1867. His large landed interest in the eastern townships gives him a claim to be considered a suitable representative of the agricultural class of Quebec in the Cabinet. With regard to emigration, he has probably taken a deeper interest in that subject than any other independent member of the House of Commons, and will be an improvement on Mr. DUNKIN in that respect.

FINANCIAL PROSPERITY.

In nothing is the continued prosperity of the Dominion more apparent than the vast increase of its public revenue. The growth of the country is shown by the trade returns, especially those of the Customs. There was a slight decline in 1869, but that was more than recovered last year, and now we have the gratifying announcement that the increase for 1871 is over two and a half millions. In 1868, the first year under Confederation, the revenue from Customs was $6,439,000, in 1869 it was $5,373,879, in 1870 it was $8,984,312, and at the end of the present fiscal year it is shown to be $11,984,922. To this might be added the Excise receipts, which have also been largely in excess, the totals figuring up to nearly five millions. The total exports for the year were $74,143,022, being an increase of $9,649,616 over last year; and the imports were $83,307,428, or an increase of $21,049,008 over the previous year. The value of goods received for consumption was $66,670,648, being an increase of $15,442,042. The croakers will have some difficulty in showing from those figures that this country is on the high road to ruin, as so many of them have predicted. Is it any wonder that the people are contented, and the country free from internal dissension?

THE FENIAN MARAUDERS.

The threatened Fenian invasion of the new Province of Manitoba was little more than a day's wonder, and proved to be but a repetition of the previous fiasco. It was believed that the inhabitants of the Province were able enough to take care of themselves, still, as the volunteers sent thither last Summer had been disbanded, it was deemed expedient to get together another force; and in a very short time they were on their way to their destination. The force is quite insignificant in numbers, but doubtless sufficient for the present purpose, seeing that there is little work for armed support. The expedition started from Collingwood several days ago, and made all haste forward, as it was necessary to get through the lakes before frost sets in, which is usually about the first week in November. The Militia Department exhibited the most marvelous celerity on this occasion, and the volunteers were [illegible] so well equipped that it was generally known that the expedition had been decided on. This is a charitable fact bids fair to immortalize the bitterness slow-moving hands of the Department. The discovery of gold on the shore of Lake Shebandowan, right in the track of the expedition, and only forty miles from Fort William, at the head of Lake Superior, is creating quite a furor, and were not the season so far advanced there would at once be a rush from this quarter. The men engaged in making the road from Fort William have deserted their work and gone on the hunt after the precious metal. The story of Mallor is likely to be repeated.

A SHAME SUPPOSED DECEIVER.

The controverted election cases will occupy the Courts, or rather it should be said that those of them not already disposed of will come up again during the next two weeks. The Prince Edward case was so bad that the sitting member consented to be unseated on a single point, consequently the charges of bribery and corruption were not inquired into. The most singular decision that has been given is that of Vice-Chancellor STRONG, which unseated Mr. ARNOLD for the North Riding of Simcoe. Not a single instance of undue influence having been proved against him, yet because a brother of the respondent, in conjunction with two other gentlemen, threw a bet in the interest of the other two candidates, hired a railway train to convey persons to the nomination at Bairdie, it was considered a sufficient ground of disqualification, and Mr. ARNOLD has accordingly been unseated. The computation was simply a formal proceeding held a week before the voting for the election. It seems strange how such a thing in this should intimidate an election. Had the train been engaged to carry voters to the respective polling places, the case would have been different. The decision in question looks like stretching a point to establish a precedent.

ANOTHER SHAMY GOVERNMENT TRICK.

The meeting of the Provincial Legislature has heretofore been fixed for the first week in November, but not a word has yet been heard of the new Legislature being called together. There is a good deal of speculation indulged in with respect to the probable strength of parties in the Assembly. The election of Speaker will determine the matter, and rumor says that the Premier has made "choice of an opponent to fill the chair." Both sides look for a triumph, and although the opposition claimed to be in the majority, they were not so nervous to the controverted elections being taken up. The unseating of four or five members will make some difference, and the Premier may not, after all, be so anxious to elect a Speaker from his own ranks. The delay in calling the Legislature together has some significance in it. It is scarcely probable that either party will be able to carry on the Government as the present House is constituted.

THE GOLD PROVINCES ASKING TO BE PAID.

The Province of New-Brunswick is about to prefer a demand for an additional subsidy from the General Government, and a deputation has already been at Ottawa, pressing their claim upon the Ministry. The subject is expected to come up in the next session, and if it does it will cause a lively excitement, for there seems to be a determination on the part of Ontario to resist all further demands of the kind upon the public treasury. Nova Scotia obtained all it asked, and was silenced, and New-Brunswick thinks it has an equal right, as it certainly has, to make a similar demand. If there is no other mode of making the Lower Provinces satisfied with confederation, it will become an expensive business to purchase their silence.

HISTORICAL CHARACTERS GONE.

Two noted characters have just passed away. Hon. L. J. PAPINEAU and Chief-Justice ARCHER. The former was the leader of the rebellion in Lower Canada, and the latter had held several important positions in the Government. Both were more conspicuous than able, yet they were men of considerable mark, and filled prominent places in the political history of the country.

BELGIUM.

The Investigation into the Question of Annexation to France.

The project of M. DE LESSINES was translated and summarized, in part, in the TIMES of Tuesday. The Independance Belge has now published the concluding extracts from M. Lessines' mémoire—the chapter headed "Methods to be employed to obtain the election of NAPOLEON III. as King of the Belgians." The writer disapproves a forcible annexation—"If the Emperor is desirous of ephemeral glory let him make Belgium. If he wishes to keep it, to make his country serve as an eternal barrier for his dynasty, let him take the country without giving it the same institutions as France possesses. I will add, that a coup d'état, attempted at Paris by the Demagogy, should cause the throne of NAPOLEON III. or of his son to tremble, the revolution would infallibly extend to Belgium if it had been purely annexed, but if Belgium is simply governed by the BONAPARTE family, governed in the name and principles dear to its heart, and by a Prince whom it loves, it will remain faithful, and become a fortress in which the Emperor-King can await the end of the revolution and prepare the means for his return." The Independance says that some of the means suggested are corruption and affability. M. DE LESSINES recommends the Emperor to have all those who attack the Empire prosecuted, but a pardon then afterwards to accident their pardon. The journalists once let off will not recommence their attacks, or they would be starved. The Empress is advised to give large orders for Brussels and Mechlins lace. Decorations, too, must be given freely, and invitations to the Tuileries sent to the principal land-owners, officers of the Garde Civique, and notabilities. The writer of the mémoire then proceeds to mentions the various newspapers published in the towns of Belgium, and gives a succinct history of each, describing its editor and proprietors, their characters and careers. Of the Independance Belge itself, it is said that it is a "Liberal venal paper, but bought abroad." Our correspondent is described as a vain man with many decorations, writes with facility, wishes to appear a man of convictions." The Independance denounces these "calumnious imputations" levelled against its staff, and gives examples of similar criticisms passed upon the conductors of all the principal Belgian newspapers. After this branch of the subject has been disposed of, the mémoire goes on to remark that when "one is the successor of the greatest historic figure of modern times, when one is NAPOLEON III., when one has had the advantage of having been able during an active youth to exhibit all the energy and intelligence of a man who would have attracted attention in any sphere, when by the force of energy, courage and fast one has reconquered the first throne of the world—a man may well hope, in spite of many obstacles, of errors or misfortunes, to place upon his head a crown which only requires taking." The Independance observes that the fruit was riper than the Emperor could have hoped for. According to LESSINES, even the King himself was open to purchase. "By a prudent course of policy the King, who meets among his familiars with nothing but the coarseness of weak and worthless men—this King may be brought into frequent communication with the Emperor, may be flattered, over-reached, and, one day, tempted by brilliant offers of money, may be induced to lay down the Crown in favor of the Emperor. And if midnight wishes can do much, should not be sufficient with him, then force must be employed. An appeal must be made to a Chamber elected by compulsory vote with the concurrence of the Camelots. If all these ideas were accepted and adopted by the Emperor before five years have elapsed, he will be King of Belgium; and his Imperial Highness will be in possession of his post as Viceroy. But nothing should be neglected. It must be borne in mind that the inconsiderate character of the French is most prejudicial to the designs of the Emperor in respect of Belgium. To conquer Belgium, the Emperor does not want Frenchmen." Thus ends the chapter," says the Independance. "Our readers may not be unwilling to learn the ideas of Lessines as to the public institutions of the kingdom of Belgium governed by the NAPOLEONS, of the "benefits for Belgium through being governed by the imperial family of France," and even "of the Frenchmen well disposed toward Belgium who might be employed with a view to bring about the transfer of the Crown to the Emperor. Let us confine ourselves, in conclusion, to pointing out among the proposed institutions a restriction of the right of meeting, the prohibition of Masonic lodges, the University of Louvain—which recalls the ancient glory of Belgium—maintained, as well as freedom of instruction, the University of Ghent suppressed as a nursery of Free-masonry. We will also quote this extract: "Marshal FOREY, of whom Belgium speaks most favorably to Marshal BAZAINE, who sustained the throne of MAXIMILIAN, husband of the Princess CHARLOTTE, who, let us observe, is the only popular member of the Royal family, because she has responded to the secret aspirations of Belgium by passing after each other ventures with Marshal FOREY, young soldiers. The mass serve coincides with the cry, 'Vive l'Empereur NAPOLEON III., King of the Belgians!' and this is the mémoire which NAPOLEON III. sanctioned and accepted after having received the confidences of the author. This is what he carefully placed among his most valued archives. He was anxious to obtain information respecting the position of the author of this ignoble document. Our readers are disgusted; the Emperor was charmed."

PHASES OF CITY LIFE.

The Organ-Grinder and Chestnut-Vendor—The Musician Transformed into the Peddler—How They Live and Where—A True and Touching Incident—An Appeal to Their Humanity.

It may perhaps be a matter of not a little curiosity among many where all the Italian organ-grinders vanish to at the season of the year. Those at all curious upon the subject have only to look about them, and upon almost every street-corner they will discover behind a chestnut-stand the same dark-complexioned, black-haired individual, in the same tattered hat and relvaious small clothes, who was wont to interrupt the quietude of his Summer evenings in grinding out in dolorful strains some hackneyed air from Norma, Traviata, or other opera equally as well known. These Italians for the most part represent the same towns here that they did in Italy, and are most as they were there, but a slight remove from the lazzaroni. Too lazy to work, and awed by the law from the commission of theft, they invariably adopt the lightest occupation wherewith to gain a subsistence so scanty that had they not been accustomed to the severest deprivations from infancy, their systems would refuse to be nourished by food that an Irish navvy would shrink from with abhorrence. Hundreds of exemplars Italians flock to New-York annually, and rarely wander far from its limits. Arriving in the great City, they at once resume the occupation which they pursued in Florence, or Naples, in Turin or Rome, and provide themselves with a hand-organ usual from one street to another in quest of nominal earnings, and the curious children of the broken climes, from whom they receive annually the larger proportion of their gains. In Baxter-street, and the surrounding precincts, they have their generable lodgings, always teeming with filth. These abodes are generally rented by Jews, who occupy the front and lower portion of the building; the negroes and Chinamen inhabit the upper stories, while the Italian, apparently more degraded and poverty-stricken than any of these, is consigned to the rear building, and not infrequently in the very topmost story of that.

In Chatham-square is a hand-organ manufacturer and importer of Italian and Paris instruments, where all an Italian are to be seen at least a sketch of the makers, at various stages of construction, and fully as many more ready to have their cranks turned by some newly-arrived son of fair Italia. The lowest prices asked for the organs are $100, $125, and $150, according to the number of tunes that can be extracted from them. The sonorous cries with which the man at the crank is enabled to grind out "Il Balilla" or "Captain Jenks," and the fetch, are also valuable considerations, which, of course, must be paid for. GUERRERA or GIOVANNI lands in New-York, and straight to the Italian settlement in Baxter-street he goes, where, for a trifle, he hires an organ from some retired musician and commences his old business with the only difference of new surroundings. After awhile Guerrera has accumulated enough to pay for his hand half of organ, and straight way he goes to his friend, the Chatham-square manufacturer, who is quite willing to allow the rising musician an organ upon half payment, with the stipulation that a certain portion of his weekly earnings are employed in liquidating the indebtedness for the other half of his organ. In this way Guerrera is in time the owner of his musical instruments, and, if he is of all ambitious, will soon afterward number a monkey among his goods and chattels. The organ-grinder now considers his fortune as made. He is perfectly contented, he has no higher aspirations, though he absolutely leads a life of abject misery without being at all conscious of the fact.

The writer a few days ago visited the wife of a retired organ-grinder, or, rather, an organ-grinder who had been promoted, not through his own exertions, to the dignity of tobacco in a Sixth Ward beer-shop. The woman said that she used to go out and sing with her husband, and that they generally made enough to live on. "Some days," she said, "it would rain, and then it was very bad for the old man and me; and again you got played out, and then the singing wasn't so good; besides, you can't sing more than two or three hours in the pleasant-like. Some places the people would make me sing again; then they would give me a stamp. I was young and good-looking then; anyhow, Sis, that had a mighty deal to do with it, though they do say I was a singer. Water used, my man and myself, must to go mostly among the poor working folks, 'cause they likes our music, you know. We would go out along the streets, and pick up a penny here and there; but when we've used to go up among the gentlemen's houses, we've could go half way up the street, you see, before we've could see anybody. Many's time we've would come home with empty; and many's time we've would come home with nuthing at all—fusty-like, you see, and man hain't so lucky, Sis. We've, my man and myself, used to let a poor cripple fellow have our horgan the days we've did'nt go out. He used to have an old father, who's allers sittin', to look after and feed, and many's time the cripple didn't make enough to pay a bit of bread. Then my old man would sometimes resume, have been made so by the life of beggary and oppression they have been forced to lead in Europe, and when they come to this country they are either too ignorant even to appreciate the advantages set before them, or too lazy to avail themselves of them. They when usually turned upon them, they are the most harmless of inoffensive harmless people, cubtantly roaming the streets of New-York, and are a class worthy of the most thoughtful attention. In considering them and their children, the dregs of Southern Europe must be passed in review, with each drop a music equalled reflection upon the abnormal scene and the anomaly of a community that has dealt so much better with so many other difficult problems that it should be thoroughly ashamed of its ill success in reforming a class of its population that is daily breeding vice by inculcating indolence among the offspring that class is rearing amid the slums.

As stated in the commencement of this article the organ-grinder at the first cool blast of October discards his load of boxed-up opera, and appears upon the street corners a full-blown chestnut vendor. There, about the time large Sam Jan he can listlessly chipping away at his stock of chestnuts, preparing them for the charcoal furnace that stands at his side. He seems to be perfect

The National Capitol and the New-York Court-House—A Striking Contrast—Refunding Fractional Currency—Going Home to Vote—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The new extension to the Government Printing-office is one of the few buildings erected within the estimates of the architect. Last Spring Congress appropriated, in accordance with estimates by Mr. BRIGHAM CLARKE, Architect of the Capitol, $45,000 for this extension. It has been put up and fully completed under the supervision of Mr. CLARKE. The plans on which the estimates were made have been fully carried out, and some $8,000 worth of work has been done additional to those plans, and there remains of the appropriation $6,000 which can be conveyed back into the Treasury. This is an instance of the use of money by honest officers. The whole amount expended on the Capitol building for repairs during the present year is less than $50,000. This, besides saving for the regular annual repairs has put down a new floor in the Representatives' Chamber, and remodelled all the heat and ventilation flues of the same hall, has widened the narrow passages between the two wings, renovated the old Representatives' Hall, and bought a new engine and two huge exhaust fans for improving the ventilation of the Hall of Representatives, besides other less important extraordinary repairs. In this connection it may be interesting to note that the two extensions of the Capitol building and the new dome, although built at the time of the very highest prices of labor and material, cost less than the New-York Court-house up to the present time, and either wing is larger than the Court-house. The new floor of the House is arranged for the accommodation of 300 members, if the number of representatives should be increased to that extent.

PERSONAL.

Secretary DELANO gave a dinner to-night in compliment to GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS, President of the Civil Service Commission. Among the invited guests were Senator SCOTT, Ex-Senator CATTELL and Col. COX, of the Commission; Postmaster-General CRESWELL, SADOUK BEY, the Turkish Minister; Judge SWAYNE, Solicitor-General BRISTOW, Prof. HILGARD, of the Coast Survey, and SYMINGTON NICHOLS, Esq., of New-York. Capt. HOOPER, Delegate in Congress from Utah Territory, arrived here late last evening. He positively denies the report that he comes to induce the Administration to arrest the proceedings now going on in his Territory, and says he shall not see the President unless the latter sends for him. He is here to secure Winter quarters for the session, and will return to Utah before the session begins.

MUTILATED FRACTIONAL CURRENCY.

Gen. HYNEMAN, United States Treasurer, is of the opinion that the slow manner in which mutilated fractional currency comes in for redemption is in a measure owing to the fact that the express company charges as much for the transmission of one dollar as for one thousand. He has, therefore, addressed a letter to the agent of Adams Express Company, at Baltimore, requesting the Company to fix pro rata rates for smaller amounts, say for $100 and under, and for fractional amounts in excess of $1,000.

GOING HOME TO VOTE.

A large number of New-York and New-Jersey people will leave here to-morrow to attend the election in their respective States. Among those who go are Secretary FESS, Treasurer HYNEMAN, Senator CATTELL, and scores of clerks from the several Departments.

FORENSICS OF THE COMING SESSION.

The Senate Finance Committee, in accordance with the authority given it by a resolution of the Senate last session to sit during the recess, meets at the rooms of the Committee in the Capitol on Tuesday next. The work of the Committee was divided among the several members, a particular subject of taxation and revenue to each, and doubtless the presentation and examination of the individual reports will be the first to occupy the attention of the Committee.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE NEW LOAN.

Judge RICHARDSON, in a letter to a gentleman connected with the Treasury Department, dated London, Oct. 21, says:

"I am surprised to see that some of the papers assert that I have written home despondingly, and that the loan will be a failure; that the syndicate will collapse, and that I am frightened, &c. All such reports are entirely false, and without the least foundation. The whole business here will be a complete success. JAY COOKE, MCCULLOCH & Co., and other members of the syndicate are doing everything strictly in accordance with their agreement. The bonds are being delivered as fast as practicable, and much more rapidly than either they or I had any reason to suppose they would be. There is no embarrassment, no wavering, no dissatisfaction of any kind whatever, and everything goes on with perfect ease and without giving rise to a single doubt that by the first week in December we shall have the transaction brought to a close in exact accordance with the original negotiation, and without disturbing the money market or the regular business of any banking house in the least."

APPOINTMENTS.

Surgeon Wm. M. WOOD, late Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery in the army, but now retired, has been appointed Inspector-General of Hosts and hospitals. GEO. W. GRIFFIN, of Kentucky, has been appointed United States Consul at Copenhagen.

SOUTHERN MONEY-ORDER OFFICES.

Col. M. LABIE HARRISON, special agent of the Post-office Department for Arkansas, has been detailed for inspection and examination of the money-order offices of the Southern States.

ANOTHER BOUNTY FRAUD DISCOVERED.

The Interior Department and Department of Public Justice are now engaged in investigating the charges against Judge J. W. WRIGHT, of this city, formerly of Indiana, in relation to the collection of bounties and pensions due the Indian soldiers of the Creek, Cherokee and Seminole nations who served on the frontier during the rebellion. It is said the alleged frauds amount to nearly $400,000, and that some of the checks issued by the Pay-master-General in each case to the order of the soldiers for $100 each, were cashed by the Assistant United States Treasurer at New-York upon the indorsement of dead soldiers' names, and J. W. WRIGHT and his agents. Representatives of the Indian soldiers came to this city some time ago, and laid their grievances before Secretary DELANO, who at once ordered a commission of investigation. This Commission is now in the Cherokee Nation. Mayor CHASE is now in Washington, at the instance of the Government, to assist in bringing the guilty parties to justice.

SUPERVISING INSPECTORS OF STEAM-BOATS.

The Board of Supervising Inspectors of Steamboats, after a session of four weeks, adjourned sine die today. The Secretary of the Treasury has approved of what they have done, which consists of the designation of different kinds of life-saving apparatus, such as boats, rafts, &c., amendments to the rules and the adoption of additional rules, and several resolutions of instructions to be observed by local inspectors, all having in view the strict enforcement of the law. The Board by their action on the various matters before them, also endeavored to protect the owners of steam-boats against monopolists, by declining to discriminate in favor of any particular patents as the best to be used on such vessels, but asserting general and special requirements as applicable to all vessels propelled in whole or in part by steam.

CHICAGO.

Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan's Report to the General of the Army—Gen. Sherman's Indorsement.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Some of the papers and people at Chicago, since the unfortunate shooting of Col. GROSVENOR, have sought to throw some blame for the action of the regiment of volunteers upon Gen. SHERIDAN. Such efficient aids a very unjust reflection upon that officer, as his action, under all circumstances, was prompt, efficient and generous; and however much the citizens of Chicago may not wish to publicly admit that the presence of troops is still necessary, the fact that they privately ask for them shows their confidence in Gen. SHERIDAN. The following is Gen. SHERIDAN's official report of his action at Chicago:

HEAD-QUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISSOURI, CHICAGO, Oct. 26, 1871.

To the Adjutant-General of the Army, Washington, D. C.

SIR: The disorganized condition of affairs in this city produced by and immediately following the late fire, induced the city authorities to ask for assistance from the military forces, as shown by the Mayor's proclamation of Oct. 11, 1871. [Copy herewith, marked A.] To protect the public interests, entrusted to me by the Mayor's proclamation, I called to this city Companies A and K, of the Ninth Infantry, from Omaha; Companies A, H and K of the Fifth Infantry, from Fort Leavenworth, Company F, Sixth Infantry, from Fort Scott, and accepted the kind offer of Major-Gen. HALLECK to send to me Companies F, H and K, of the Fourth, and Company E, of the Sixteenth Infantry, from Kentucky. I also, with the approbation of the Mayor, called into the service of the City of Chicago, a regiment of volunteers for twenty days. [Copy of the call inclosed herewith marked B.] These troops, both regulars and volunteers, were actively engaged during their service here in protecting the property in the burnt district, guarding the burnt district from disorders and danger by further fires, and in protecting the store-houses, depots and sub-depots of supplies established for the relief of the sufferers from the fire. These duties were terminated on the 23d inst., as shown by letters herewith, [marked C, D and E,] and on the 24th inst. I made regulars started to their respective stations and the volunteers were discharged as shown by special order No. 76, and general order No. 6 from these head-quarters. [Copies herewith.] It is proper to mention that these volunteers were not taken into the service of the United States, and no orders, agreements, or promises were made giving them any claims against the United States for the services rendered.

I am very respectfully, your obedient servant, P. H. SHERIDAN, Lieutenant-General United States Army Commanding.

Gen. SHERMAN submitted the foregoing report to the Secretary of War, with the following emphatic endorsement:

The extraordinary circumstances attending the great fire in Chicago, made it eminently proper that Gen. SHERIDAN should exercise the influence, authority, and power he did on the universal appeal of a ruined and distressed people, backed by their civil agents, who were powerless for good. The very moment that the civil authorities felt able to resume their functions Gen. SHERIDAN ceased to exercise authority and the United States troops returned to their respective stations. Gen. SHERIDAN's course is fully approved. W. T. SHERMAN, General.

Sixty-Three Thousand Still Receiving Aid—Montreal Donations.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The number of destitute victims of the late fire now receiving aid from the Relief Society has considerably decreased, owing to the fact that many are securing employment at good wages. The number of families now receiving aid from the Society is about 14,000, or 63,000 persons, including men, women, and children. Montreal has sent over $102,000 in gold for the relief of Chicago, beside large quantities of provisions, clothing, &c.

THE INDIANS.

Injunction to the Osages in Kansas—The Commissionership.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—FRANCIS T. KING, member of the Orthodox Society of Friends, and Mr. GIBSON, agent for the Osage Indians, had, today, separate interviews with the Secretary of the Interior and President GRANT, also with the Board of Indian Commissioners, on the subject of the present condition of the Osage Indians. Agent GIBSON represents that there are over 600 white trespassers from Kansas on the new Osage Reservation, which was recently set apart for these Indians, by the Government, under the most solemn pledges that white intruders should be kept away, the Indians having been forced to sell their lands in Kansas about a year ago, owing to similar encroachments. The surveyors recently sent there by the Government to fix the line of ninety-six degrees, immediately out of which their new reservation is located, make the line four miles west of the previous official surveys, by which the choicest lands in the valley of the Cana River will be taken from the Osages, thus pushing these Indians upon a mountainous region which is worthless for agricultural purposes. The Administration has directed that for the present the Indians shall not be disturbed; that ample measures shall be taken for their protection, and their rights under the new treaty fully secured to them.

Recently the names of several gentlemen have been mentioned in connection with the Commissionership of Indian Affairs, among them those of Col. TAFFAN, Col. H. A. CLUNE, the present Chief Clerk of the Bureau, and Gen. F. A. WALKER, the Chief of the Census Bureau. The last-named is now on a special mission to the Indian country.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis of Events and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4—1 A. M.—The area of highest barometer has moved slowly north-eastward to the middle and east Atlantic coast. Clear weather has generally prevailed north and east of Virginia, but cloudiness is now reported from Pennsylvania south and west. The cloudiness in the Southern and Gulf States has continued during the day with rain. A small area of low pressure exists in Iowa, with southerly winds on Lake Michigan and northerly winds in the north-west. Cloud and rain are reported from California and Oregon.

PROBABILITIES.

Cloud and rain will probably extend, on Saturday, north-eastward to New-York, with partially cloudy and threatening weather in New-England Saturday night; clearing and clear weather prevail west of Alabama; low barometer move into Michigan, with south-westerly winds from Illinois to Lake Huron, and north-east winds on Lake Superior; southerly winds prevail with cloud on Lakes Erie and Ontario. Dangerous winds are not anticipated for our coasts to-night.

Attempt to Lynch a Prisoner in Jeffersonville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 3.—Last night a mob collected about the jail in Jeffersonville, Ind., with the intention of lynching a negro named JOHN WASHINGTON, who attempted to outrage a little white girl, and whose father died from the excitement caused by the assault. The prisoner was shipped out by the back way and conveyed to the State Prison, leaving which the mob dispersed. This morning the prisoner was taken to the jail in Charlestown, Ind.

MEXICO.

Severe Fighting at Buena Vista—Carrillo Forced to Retreat.

NEW-ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—The Picayune has the following special dispatch:

BROWNSVILLE, Oct. 26.—Gen. TREVINO, when last heard from, was at San Gregorio, with over 2,000 men. His cavalry, under MARTINEZ, stationed at Buena Vista, had a severe encounter with Gen. CARRILLO. MARTINEZ was wounded, but CARRILLO lost a portion of his train and was compelled to fall back.

UTAH.

Unclaimed Grog-Shops in Salt Lake—High Freight Rates for Grain—No Trace of Brigham.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 3.—The Police today made a descent upon several drinking-saloons for selling liquor without having paid the municipal license. The places were closed up and the proprietors summoned to appear to-morrow before Police Judge CLINTON. There is great indignation among miners and mine-owners in regard to the high freight tariffs on the Union Pacific Railroad. Hundreds of freight-cars run East empty every day rather than carry the ores of Utah at any profit to shippers. No more arrests have been made here, and there is not the slightest apprehension of trouble. Nothing was heard from BRIGHAM YOUNG today, or from Apostle HYDE.

GEORGIA.

The Legislature Recognizes Gov. Bullock's Successor—A Special Election in December.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—The Georgia Legislature transacted important business today. It recognized BENJ. CONLEY (Republican) as acting Governor. A bill for a special election for Governor in December was introduced. A resolution was passed denying Gov. BULLOCK's allegations that the Assembly meant to impeach him without investigation, and that the people did not respect the Constitution and recognize the results of the war.

AMUSEMENTS.

ITALIAN OPERA AT THE ACADEMY.

"Don Giovanni" was sung at the Academy of Music, last evening, in presence of a very fashionable audience. The recital was smooth, and worthy of a season of Italian opera likely to be remembered for performances of general excellence as well as for representations relying upon one or two artists for effectiveness. Yesterday's rehearsal is to be mentioned among the entertainments first referred to. There is not a weak bar of music in "Don Giovanni," nor a part unsuited to a great singer and actor. Hence the difficulty of producing special impressions at particular stages of the story. Many Italian operas are given life by two or three numbers, themselves of doubtful merit, but striking when contrasted with the remainder of the score. Who will undertake, however, to dismiss from consideration with a reference to three or four airs, MOZART's immortal work? Passages of the interpretation enjoyed last night were of course superior to others, but it is no slight compliment to say that the whole composition was rendered with most satisfactory results. Mlle. NILSSON's contribution to the recital does not call for the extended notice that lady's artistic efforts usually demand and receive. Versatility is more often spoken of in connection with performers than it is really exhibited. We are not surprised, therefore, that Mlle. NILSSON, whose Ophelia, Desdemona and Marguerite are pictures which will never be forgotten for power and finish, finds the transition from tragedy to comedy rather trying. Her Zerlina fascinates not merely Maestto, but the entire audience; it is not, it must be said, the Zerlina whom the composer and librettist had in view. That Mlle. NILSSON's singing could hardly be improved upon is a more pleasant fact. She delivered "Batti, batti," with a great deal of expressiveness, though its effect would have been heightened by a little more animation in the allegro; and "Vedrai, carino," with infinite tenderness and grace; the last-named was the only piece encored during the evening. Mlle. CORANI's Donna Anna must be cited as the one mediocre performance. Mlle. CORANI has culture and experience, but her voice is worn, and her tones have a continual tendency to flatten. We are sorry that Mlle. CORANI's debut should have to be written of coldly, but we are bound to say that the defects of her vocalization utterly spoiled the scettet. Her own aria, "Crudele," could not be awaited with much interest thereafter. Mlle. DUVAL, as Donna Elvira, augmented largely the good opinion of her resources and art, uttered after her first hearing in "Il Barbiere." Mlle. DUVAL is young and comely; her organ is fresh, her intonation true, her execution facile and correct. It may be claimed that she is not fitted to cope with the conventional Donna Elvira, but her share in last evening's labors strengthened materially her position. The artists, besides those already alluded to, were Signori BRIGNOLI and RONCONI, MM. JAMET and BARRE, and Herr HERMANNS. M. JAMET's Leporello was the best defined, most consistent, and most elaborate characterization of the night. Perhaps M. JAMET's acting would have gained by absolute freedom from a certain dignity noticeable in all his rôles, but we could not look for a more intelligent, spirited and artistic sketch, vocally as well as histrionically. M. BARRE's gifts are so small that we much fear he will never become a favorite with a general audience. Yet M. BARRE as Don Giovanni proved himself a skilled singer, and his serenade may be pointed out, amid much that was very praiseworthy, as an evidence of study and taste. Signor BRIGNOLI sang deliciously "Il mio tesoro," and acquitted himself of what remained of his task with an indifference to circumstances more startling than ever. In the first duet with Donna Anna, than his admirers have become accustomed to, Signor RONCONI's Masetto can only be alluded to as full of humor, not always—as those who watched his by-play and by-words can testify—of the most delicate kind. Herr HERMANNS was an impressive Commendatore.—At the matinée today, "Marta" will be the opera.

BROOKLYN AROUSED.

Grand Mass-Meeting at the Academy of Music.

Speeches by Attorney-General Akerman, Hon. Benjamin F. Tracy and Others—Letters from Senators Fenton and Conkling and Hon. Wm. M. Evarts.

An immense mass-meeting of the Republicans of Brooklyn was held last evening at the Academy of Music. This was intended to be the last grand rally before the election, and the Republicans turned out in goodly numbers. On the stage were the following prominent gentlemen: A. A. Low, Wm. H. Lyon, R. Cornell White, H. W. Sage, H. B. Claflin, L. S. Burnham, A. D. Wheelock, John F. Henry, Samuel Hutchinson, E. L. Sanderson, Isaac Bowen, Francis Polker, S. B. Duryee, George Ricord, Burdett Stryker, Chas. Fenton, Benjamin Cornwell, Daniel Manyer, Hugh Allen, John E. Caumeyer, James E. Kelsey, E. J. Whitlock, A. P. Higgins, Cyrus B. Smith, T. H. Thorpe, George W. Wyndgate, William L. Steers, Sigismund Kaufman, Gravett Bergen, W. W. Goodrich, Burdett Stryker, J. J. Studwell, H. D. Morgan, James A. Van Brunt, J. Carson Brevoort, Chauncey Perry, Gen. James Jourdan, Gen. Catlin, and others.

The meeting was called to order by Gen. JAMES JOURDAN, who nominated Hon. BENJAMIN D. SILLIMAN for Chairman. On taking the chair, Mr. SILLIMAN briefly thanked the audience, and introduced Gen. CATLIN, who read the list of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries. He also read the following letters from Senator CONKLING, Senator FENTON and Hon. WILLIAM M. EVARTS:

LETTER FROM SENATOR CONKLING.

UTICA, Nov. 1, 1871.

GENTLEMEN: On reaching home this evening I find your letter inviting me to speak to the Republicans of Brooklyn on Friday. I should like to come and give my voice in support of the cause of constitutional liberty, in which the true men of Kings County have merged the differences of the past. You are to meet as Republicans, and it is in that character I would speak to you, for I am more and more convinced that it is to the Republican Party in the State and in the nation, that men must look for thorough, lasting purity in public affairs. Every day makes the more and more apparent to that individual. Democratic leaders who are sincerely co-operating in works of reform are to have little permanent following in their own party. Democrats who have held themselves out as earnest and courageous Anti-Tammany men are sedulously nursing the Democratic organization, seeking to bind everything to party account, and striving to create firmness for the benefit of the very interest which few are shameless enough now openly to defend. It is easy to foresee that Republicans who have laid aside party for the time being, in the hope of reciprocal action by Democrats, will be much disappointed in the end; yet I would do nothing to discourage the support of an honest Democrat, in any place, where in that way a blow can be struck at corruption. Eventually, however, the Republican Party will prove the instrument of regenerating the government of the cities of New-York and Brooklyn, as well as of the State. Let us hold fast, therefore, as Republicans, for except we abide in the ship we shall not be saved. The difference between the two parties is either real and seems to be indelible. Every occasion, sooner or later, brings it out. Whether the test be loyalty in war or honesty in peace, the great body of the Republican Party will not tolerate or permit treason to sound principle. Recent incidents throw a broad light on the opposite nature and composition of these organizations. Some time ago it was discovered that those in pay-masters for whom the National Government was answerable, had embezzled a fraction of $1,000,000. Weeks before the crime of HODGE came to light, every one knew that certain men, TWEED among them, had embezzled, not a fraction of $1,000,000, but the whole of many millions. Hodge was seized, hurried to a dungeon, accused, tried, convicted, sentenced, the doors of the Penitentiary have closed behind him for ten years, and his wife and children, stripped of all by the hand of the Governments, are beggars and outcasts.

Such is the story, such the doom, of young HODGE, the Republican culprit. What is the story and the doom of TWEED? Rolling in wealth, and holding several offices, he goes not to prison, but to the Senate. No criminal prosecution has been even commenced against him, but the Democratic Party again nominates TWEED and his fellows for the Legislature. The contrast of these two cases is not between HODGE and TWEED, but between the order of things these two men represent. The cord of some of the wounds which decency is receiving just now, may yet be found in expelling men from the Senate and the Assembly; and for this reason among others I conjure you all to contribute, from Kings County every firm moon-rumble man who can be elected to either House. The prospect in the State grows bright, and a full vote and a fair count will surely give us a great victory. Regretting that I cannot be with you, I am your obedient servant,

ROSCOE CONKLING.

Hon. S. B. DUTCHER, Gen. CATLIN, and others, Committee, Brooklyn.

LETTER FROM SENATOR FENTON.

JAMESTOWN, Oct. 28, 1871.

MY DEAR SIR: I have felt obliged to decline all invitations to go abroad during the canvass, and to confine myself to due speech at my own home. Thanking you for polite request to be with you on the evening of Nov. 3, I remain very truly yours, R. E. FENTON.

Gen. J. S. CATLIN, Corresponding Secretary, &c., Brooklyn, N. Y.

LETTER FROM HON. WM. M. EVARTS.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 3, 1871.

MY DEAR SIR: I regret extremely that it was not in my power to attend and address the ratification meeting to be held at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn to-night, as your committee did me the honor to invite me to do. There is, however, little need of speakers, or of speech, in the presence of the appalling facts which exhibit the shocking municipal misrule under which the free people of these devoted Cities of New-York and Brooklyn are being fleeced of their daily earnings, and robbed of the property they may have been fortunate enough to have laid by for a rainy day. I confess to a new shock of indignation and dismay, when I read the severe and unflinching exposure of the crime and folly which now rule in Brooklyn, which your papers are pressing upon the public intelligence and public conscience. I thought we had "supped full of horrors" in New-York, but you seem to have as heavy a load of wickedness on your side of the river as we have on ours. I firmly believe that the people are now thoroughly aroused, and that they, like a law-abiding people, as they are, to exercise their rights at the polls, and, obtaining them, to insist upon their rights in the Courts and before the Legislature, and to the bitter end of the punishment of all rascals in office, "without distinction of party."

In case, however, this aroused and wrathful people are denied or defrauded of the exercise of their right of suffrage at the coming election, by false voting or false counting of votes, I have not the least idea that the matter will end there. This is a justice-loving and a liberty-loving people, as well as a law-abiding people, and we are quite likely to demand, of the bold, bad men that shall have perpetrated the threatened violence to the suffrage, an open and peremptory settlement of their crimes, without prevarication or delay. I am quite sure that you will be able to concentrate your votes against your Ring, as we have done against ours, and that you understand, as we do, that on the Senators and Assemblymen the hope of protection of property and common right, the hope of punishment of these monstrous crimes, and of the restoration of capacity and honest purpose in the State and City Governments, wholly depends. The steps already gained by the people in this civic revolution are immense. The rascals are detected, their crimes and the methods of them demonstrated, the frivolous embarrassments of party or personal entanglements are cast aside, and the plain issue made that only the knaves vote for the knaves, and the count is at last to be made, in open day, as to which side, the side of the wicked, shall prevail. We hope everything from you on Tuesday next. We implore you to waste no strength in divisions between sections and candidates, and we anticipate a hearty congratulation with you, and all honest men throughout the State, on the victory which shall save us from shame and ruin.

I am, yours very truly, WM. M. EVARTS.

T. C. CATLIN, Esq., Corresponding Secretary, &c.

ADDRESS OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL AKERMAN.

The Chairman then introduced Hon. R. T. AKERMAN, Attorney-General of the United States, who addressed the audience at some length. He said:

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: It would scarcely become me, a resident of another State, to enter into an extended discussion of the local politics of New-York, but I cannot forbear saying that I have the sympathy which all honest men in all parts of the country must feel, for the honest men of the City of New-York and the City of Brooklyn and the State of New-York in their conflict with adroit and expert and audacious corruption. Wishing you success in that conflict, the success which belongs to a right cause bravely sustained, I pass from that to other topics of a more general nature, even if of less immediate local interest. Your vote next Tuesday will be taken to some extent as an expression of your judgment upon the general policy of the country. The National Administration is at all times in this country before the people for scrutiny and for judgment. If that scrutiny shows worthiness, the judgment should be favorable; if that scrutiny shows unworthiness, the judgment should be unfavorable. You have given to your national legislators and to your national administrators a high public character, and the manner in which they have discharged that trust is of vital importance to you. It has been intimated to me that I might perhaps occupy your time this evening with a discussion of the relations of the general Administration of this country to the part of the country to which I reside, to wit, the Southern States. There are questions of national policy which are of peculiar general interest; there are questions of national policy which are of peculiar local interest. In eleven States of this Union, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Tennessee, there are nearly ten millions of people. In the States of Maryland, Kentucky, West Virginia and Missouri there are four millions of people. Among the questions in which you, as citizens of the United States feel a general interest, are the questions of finance, of taxation, in the early or the protracted payment of the national debt, of national expenditures, of the adjustment of the tariff, of civil service, of currency—these questions are felt to be of trifling concern, and will control no votes by the voting population of that ten millions of people in the eleven States I first enumerated, and put few voters among the voting population of that four millions of people in the four States which have been added. The war having swept away the State Governments of the South, the war having broken down the attempted insurrection against the United States and the attempted dismemberment of the country there were two questions of interest, two desirable objects to the thoughtful Southern mind. One of these was how to harmonize the South with the National Government and the rest of the country; the other was how to harmonize the two races of the South. The first question, it seems to me, for the intelligent people of the South, would be to open their eyes sandidly and honestly to the situation, and it would be susceptible of an easy solution. Their attempt having failed, they having professed to having given it up, were bound in honor and in good citizenship to give it up, thoroughly and heartily. It was their duty, having pretended to surrender all that was involved. [Applause.] If they surrendered the dogma of secession they were bound, also, to abandon the whole brood of political ideas out of which secession sprung. If they in good faith had given up slavery, they were bound to give up all the incidents they were bound to give up not only the effect of slavery but its modes of thought, its rules of constitutional interpretations, its theory of political cast on which they rested and by which it was fortified. [Applause.] Mr. AKERMAN continued to elaborate that the insurrection derived from the end of all political difficulties, and as its suppression was due to the Republican Party they were responsible for its crimes or its glory. The speaker referred to the act repealing slavery and the conduct of the negro population during the war, remarking that, though to an extent intoxicated with delight at their freedom, they never violated the laws, but acted with perfect calmness and loyalty to the country and their masters. He touched upon the war of races, which this revolution in the condition of the colored population would be supposed to create, and next adverted at length and with much power, to the Kuklux outrages in the South, and the action of the Federal Government for their suppression. He concluded by calling on officers of the Government, by their conduct in the future as in the past, would show how deserving they were of the rights of citizenship, and by their faithfulness to their principles would elevate themselves and the national generally.

When Gen. AKERMAN had concluded Gen. CATLIN read the following resolutions:

Whereas, The civil institutions of our Republic rest upon the intelligent, honest and virtuous people, and their maintenance and perpetuity depend upon the constant activity and [illegible] of every Department of the Government, and the administration of the laws at the hands of men [illegible] capable, honest and faithful [illegible]; and

Whereas, The Republican Party stand [illegible] public demand for a fuller, more faithful and [illegible] realization of these results, and the great fundamental principles of our Government; and,

Whereas, In the faithful performance of its political principles, the Republican Party carried through the war of the rebellion, and subsequently overthrew the two great national evils which plagued the State, viz., Slavery and the Democratic Party; and,

Whereas, The Republican Party has always been, is now, and ever will be, in principle and action, unchangeably opposed to all corruption of the public reputation in political office, whether National, State, or local, and demands of every man to whom public official duties are intrusted, honest, faithful and capable performance of the several duties and rigorous accountability to the people of his acts; and,

Whereas, The imperfect diagram which has fallen on the American people by stupendous official corruption and the robbery of the public treasury in the City of New-York, has been brought upon us by the Democratic Party,

Resolved, That the Republican Party of Kings County proclaims anew as its fundamental principles:

1. The maintenance of honest, wise, and economical government.

2. The reduction of the taxes to the lowest amount necessary to carry on the proper administration of the government.

3. The free, fair, full and honest exercise of the elective franchise by citizens at the polls.

4. The honest and truthful enumeration of the ballots, and declaration of the results of election, so that citizens shall neither by fraud, intimidation nor falsehood be cheated out of the right to choose their own rulers.

5. The maintenance in its fullest vigor and utmost efficiency of our system of free public schools, whereby the blessings of education may be freely extended to all classes of our people.

6. The preservation, as the foundation of all our rights and liberties, of a pure, unscathed and independent Judiciary.

Resolved, That we denounce public taxation and the increase of the public debt for the purpose of giving employment to the people, and rob the public Treasury, as has been done in New-York City to such a frightful extent by Democratic officials, elected, supported and again presented to the people for their suffrages by the Democratic Party.

Resolved, That in the rioting in the City of New-York on the 12th of July last, we recognize the operation of the same pernicious influences which have caused the misrule, corruption and theft of the Tammany Ring. We regard the refusal to protect the rights of our people, and to protect from injury and assault citizens engaged in a peaceful and lawful procession through the streets, was only a natural result of the miscrule of that party, whose leaders, if not positive in the riots, the City and State Governments are now on trial at the bar of public opinion and in our Courts for the highest crimes and misdemeanors.

Resolved, That the murder of CLEMENS GILMARTIN, a faithful officer and noble gentleman, while in the discharge of his public duty, is another proof of the contempt and wickedness of the worst class of our cities, emboldened to acts of violence and crime by the example of the officers who are intrusted with the guardianship of the lawless acts of their political supporters.

Resolved, That all the objects of good government have been substantially obtained under the wise, faithful and honored administration of President GRANT; that reduced taxes, the increased amounts of the public revenue, with largely diminished expense in collecting them, the large reduction of the national debt, and the establishment and strengthening of the national credit at home and abroad, the preservation of the public peace, and the settlement upon an honorable and enlightened basis of our foreign policy, all furnish the highest proof that all the obligations of good government have been faithfully and ably discharged by Republican administration.

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the Republican candidates for the state, county, city and local tickets. That in HARVEY BOOTH, our candidate for Mayor; in THOMAS WHITNEY, our candidate for Supervisor at Large; in A. H. BADLEY, our candidate for District-Attorney; in FREDERICK A. SCHROEDER, our candidate for City Controller; in our candidates for Senators in the Second and Third Senatorial Districts, and, in fact, all through the list of local candidates, we recognize men distinguished for their honesty and fidelity to correct principles, and whose election will redound to the moral and material advantage of our city, county and State.

Resolved, That the depravity of the Democratic Party is not and cannot be circumscribed by geographical limits. The East River interposes no bar to the protection of the public treasury from the acts of the Ring. Our local rulers have wickedly augmented the public debt to an amount so vast that the credit of the City is seriously endangered. They have squandered large sums of money which they have wrung from our earnings for the support of political mendicants and the enrichments of public parasites. The Administration of the Controller, from whom the protection of our interests lie, sounds alarm any reflecting citizen. They have, by the example they have afforded of money dishonestly obtained in the business of politics, debauched many of our people and especially of our young men. And finally, by the crowning infamy of stuffing the ballot-boxes, falsifying our election returns and then securing the instruments of their crimes from just retribution, they have shown that the immediate inexorable, all-important duty of the citizens of Brooklyn is to hurl them from power by an overwhelming majority.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, whereupon the chairman introduced Gen. BENJAMIN F. TRACY, who spoke particularly in relation to local topics.

ADDRESS OF BENJAMIN F. TRACY.

Mr. TRACY, who was received with cheers, said that the unparalleled corruptions of New-York developed the fact that few men could engineer through the Legislature of the State laws which gave into their hands the supreme and absolute control of the greatest City on the Western Continent, and to sack that City—literally sack it—under the protection of those laws, and the misgovernment that had prevailed on that side of the East River for years. Impressed upon the people everywhere that the question to be said and decided at the coming election was, whether the people of great cities had virtue and integrity and energy enough to preserve to themselves an honest and an upright Government. Referring to the condition of local politics, he remarked that the Mayor of the City had publicly proclaimed that the debt was thirty-five million dollars. The fact that it was impossible for intelligent men after anxious inquiry to ascertain within eighteen million dollars of the true state of Brooklyn indebtedness ought to be sufficient to satisfy every honest man that a change of rulers was highly essential to the best interests of Brooklyn. [Applause.] The County debt on the 1st of July last amounted to $8,794,713, making in all a total amount of bonds, City and County, outstanding July 1, 1871, $21,851,038 24. Since the 1st of July there has been a further issue of bonds to the amount of $2,824,000, making the entire amount of bonds outstanding against the City of Brooklyn, on which we are compelled to provide for the payment of the principal of $23,675,038. In continuation the General called the attention of the audience to the last and greatest abuse of all, namely, that practiced by the Collector of Taxes, who, commencing to collect the taxes from the people in November, has deposited the money in his own name in a favorite bank, and kept it there until May, even when the Treasurer was unable to meet the liabilities of the city, and had to go upon the street and borrow money at seven per cent. interest. These deposits frequently amounted to millions, and the fraud involved in the action was one performed year after year.

At the conclusion of Mr. TRACY's address, Hon. STEWART L. WOODFORD was introduced. He said that the only question of the hour was how corruption shall be crushed and the effective remedies administered. We should take the Second ward ballot-box to-morrow, as the accused citizens of Chicago fought flames which threatened to destroy that city. He said that we were sure to win in this campaign, because the masses were now fully aroused, and were determined to put down corruption and have a free election at this time. It was necessary, therefore, that all should rally to the polls and hurl these thieves from power and give us a good government. In 1868, the Democrats of New-York absolutely counted out a man who was honestly elected, and SAMUEL J. TILDEN and other leaders held their peace, but now we find that Mr. TILDEN and the Reform Democracy are moving heaven and earth to wrest the City from the grasp of the thieves. In conclusion, he asked that all differences be settled, and in the name of good government give such a Republican victory next Tuesday as will echo throughout the State. He said that Gen. GRANT, in seeking to obtain San Domingo, manifested not less the written traditions of GEORGE WASHINGTON. He also referred, in the highest terms of praise, to the efforts of Gen. GRANT in accomplishing the Treaty of Washington.

Alderman WM. RICHARDSON offered the following resolutions, which were adopted:

Resolved, That we tender our warmest congratulations to our fellow-citizens of the City of New-York at the success which has attended their efforts to harmonize and unite on the ticket of candidates in opposition to the Tammany Ring. We bid a hearty God speed to the labors of O'CONOR, Evarts, Havemeyer, Greeley, Green, Schultz, Tilden, Perrepont, and other Democratic and Republican citizens of Note, which have for their object the establishment of a Government "of the people, by the people, for the people," and the overthrow of the most infern these running under the protection of the Tammany interest, have been almost universally declared successful in their candidacies. This fact fully two-thirds of the inspectors, who have been appointed by the Mayor, and in view of the frauds which have been so extensively practiced in the past, a great interest has been taken in the subject of the appointment of these inspectors. It has been urged upon the Mayor that no person should be appointed as inspector who was not above all suspicion, that representative citizens, anxious to secure an honest election, have solicited interviews with the Mayor with the view of securing his cooperation to this end. Such interviews the Mayor has refused to grant, and has proceeded to make his appointments from among those persons recommended by the Tammany Hall representatives. The names of the parties so appointed by the Mayor are sent by him to the Sheriff of Kierfrath, where a notice to each inspector is prepared and handed, in the greater number of the cases, to the Chairman of the Tammany Hall Election Committee in the Ward, who delivers or withholds the same as he thinks proper. If said Chairman is not satisfied as to the fidelity of the appointee to the interests of the Tammany Hall Association, the notice is withheld and a substitute recommended, who is finally appointed by the Mayor, as if a vacancy existed. Deponent has made careful investigations as to the inspectors appointed in various Wards. Upon the list are several who stand accused of crimes of forgery, of rape and of theft, some who cannot write, many well-known repeaters, and others, who in past years have been accused of fraudulently counting the ballots at elections in the interest of the Tammany Hall candidates. Hundreds of the inspectors are entirely in the interest of some of the living representatives of the Tammany Hall Association, and it is as well understood, being accepted as a certainty, by those among whom they reside, that they will manufacture returns favorable to the Tammany Hall candidates without any reference to the ballots cast. And such is the dangerous character of many of these appointees by the Mayor to be inspectors of election, that in several instances the respectable citizens of the Ward are afraid to office service to make affidavit to the fact that their lives are being in danger if they did so. That such inspectors of election have been appointed by the Mayor in the Tammany Hall interest; that they are placed under the direction of the Tammany Hall representative in the Ward, and will commit any fraud necessary to make the return favorable to the candidates put in nomination by said Association; that the feeling is almost universal in this City that with such inspectors the election will be a farce and a fraud on the city.

To make sure of this various devices are resorted—sometimes false voting; sometimes the ballot-boxes are stuffed with ballots; sometimes voters are persuaded by those who have the right to vote, not substitute the ballots are falsely counted, giving to the Association candidates more ballots than they are entitled to, and less to the candidates not supported by the Association.

The Bureau of Elections sends to him the certificates of appointment of inspectors, which he gives or withholds at pleasure; when representative is not satisfied with the fidelity of the inspectors to the Tammany Hall interest he withholds the certificate and reports to the Bureau of Elections a substitute, who is appointed by the Mayor on his recommendation, and seems fit to serve; that the inspectors of election so appointed or elected are placed under the direction of the representative of the Association in the Wards respectively, and the said representative is held responsible for the success in his Ward of the candidate for office put in nomination by the Association; that the inspectors of election being under the direction of their Ward representative to conduct and control the election that they return as successful the Association or Tammany candidates; to secure this result various schemes are resorted to, such as false registry, ballot-box stuffing, repeating, personating voters and false counting; that one or the other, or all of these means, is reported to as the opportunity is afforded, or the necessity is felt to make sure of success; that under the operation of this system, the inspectors of election were reported as elected at the election held on 6th November, 1870; that deponent has a personal knowledge of the inspectors of election elected and appointed for the several election districts of the Thirteenth Ward of this City; and that some of these inspectors of election he knows to have been engaged in carrying out the practices aforesaid, and that with such inspectors an honest and fair election in said Ward is an impossibility.

The following is Judge BARNARD'S order:

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court, held at Chambers, in the Court-house, in the City of New-York, on the 1st day of November, 1871, present, Hon. GEORGE G. BARNARD, Justice.—The People ex rel. JOHN FOLEY, against A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor of the City of New-York.—On the affidavit of the relator and others, hereto annexed, let the respondent, A. OAKEY HALL, show cause before me, at a Special Term of this Court, to be held at Chambers, in the Court-house, in the City of New-York, on the 3d day of November, 1871, at 10 o'clock, afternoon, why a writ of peremptory mandamus should not issue under the seal of this Court, commanding the said A. OAKEY HALL forthwith to appoint, as provided by law, inspectors of election in the various election districts in the several Wards of the City of New-York, so that the rights of the citizens may be secured to them at the election to be held on Nov. 7, 1871.

GEORGE G. BARNARD, J. S. C.

MAYOR HALL'S ANSWER.

Mayor HALL subsequently prepared and presented to the Court an affidavit in which he states that at 1 o'clock in the day he was served with a batch of papers, purporting to be affidavits, but which he could not read because of illegibility; that upon his own responsibility he has duly, in each election district of this City, in accordance with the requirements of law, wherever there was a vacancy, appointed an inspector of election in accordance with his policy outlined in his letter of Oct. 12, already published; that he is informed and believes that there is no vacancy for the appointment of an inspector in any election district, and concludes by asking that the Court, in view of the hour on which the papers were served on him, the fact that according to their data they might have been served on Thursday, and his belief that the proceeding has been taken for political effect, shall grant him the opportunity to make full answer.

A Mandamus Against Cornell—Assistant Aldermen to be Voted For.

The order of Judge BARNARD directing CORNELIUS CORSON, Chief of the Bureau of Elections, to show cause why a mandamus should not issue compelling him to place City boxes at the polling places on election day to receive such votes as may be cast for Assistant Aldermen, came up on the return yesterday.

Mr. LAWRENCE stated to the Court that his motion was made on behalf of GEO. J. KRAUS, a candidate for Assistant Alderman in the Eighth Assistant Aldermanic District, and that the affidavit on which he moved showed a demand on said City, that he has resided in said Ward for upward of twelve years; that he has resided in said Ward for nearly one year prior to the election, and intended to vote for the candidate of his choice for Assistant Alderman; that he knows many of the persons who reside in said Twelfth Ward, and among the inspectors so known to deponent are the following persons, viz.: Henry Wunder, Thomas J. Oliver, John H. Van Nellin, John B. Farrington, Edward Hillman, Matthew W. Wells, James Sherry, Samuel W. Tompkins, Cornelius Callahan, John McKeon, William Crawford, William Callahan, Andrew Mohrman, James Mulligan, Henry M. Jennings, G. A. Shaw, John Oulmont, Isaac T. Brown, John Ballantyne, John Norton, John Oulmont, John W. Brown, Thomas Kelly, and J. H. O'Neill; that the said several persons are entirely under the influence of Henry W. Oliver, who is a candidate for assistant alderman in the Eighth Assistant Aldermanic District, and who is the representative of the Tammany Hall Association in said Ward, and who is the representative of the Tammany Hall Association in said Ward; and, in deponent's judgment and belief, these persons are not proper persons to be intrusted with ballots at the election on the following election; that they and each of them, and others of the said inspectors of election of the said districts in said Ward, would, to deponent's knowledge, unhesitatingly act as directed by said representative, and fraudulently vote for the candidates supported by the Tammany Hall interest without reference to the actual ballots voted at said election; that it deponent's judgment it is impossible with such inspectors of election to have a fair and honest election in said Ward; and, to deponent's knowledge, such is the feeling of a large portion of the citizens of the Ward.

Notary Public County of New-York.

City and County of New-York, ss.: ANTHONY SHIELD, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he resides at No. 328 Grand-street, in the Thirteenth Ward, in the City of New-York; that he is a period of more years he represented said Ward in the Board of Aldermen of the Common Council of said City; that he has for several years been a member of the political organization known as Tammany Hall Association; that said Association, to the personal knowledge of this deponent, controls, and has for years controlled, a system for the purpose of controlling the elections in the City and County of New-York; that deponent has been, and is, familiar with, having a personal knowledge of, said system; that the system is substantially as follows: The General Committee of the Association has a representative in each Ward in the City, who is delegated to look after the interests of the Association in the Ward; this representative names the inspectors of election for the various districts of his Ward in the Tammany Hall interest. The Bureau of Elections sends to him the certificates of appointment of inspectors, which he gives or withholds at pleasure; when representative is not satisfied with the fidelity of the inspectors to the Tammany Hall interest he withholds the certificate and reports to the Bureau of Elections a substitute, who is appointed by the Mayor on his recommendation, and seems fit to serve; that the inspectors of election so appointed or elected are placed under the direction of the representative of the Association in the Wards respectively, and the said representative is held responsible for the success in his Ward of the candidate for office put in nomination by the Association; that the inspectors of election being under the direction of their Ward representative to conduct and control the election that they return as successful the Association or Tammany candidates; to secure this result various schemes are resorted to, such as false registry, ballot-box stuffing, repeating, personating voters and false counting; that one or the other, or all of these means, is reported to as the opportunity is afforded, or the necessity is felt to make sure of success; that under the operation of this system, the inspectors of election were reported as elected at the election held on 6th November, 1870; that deponent has a personal knowledge of the inspectors of election elected and appointed for the several election districts of the Thirteenth Ward of this City; and that some of these inspectors of election he knows to have been engaged in carrying out the practices aforesaid, and that with such inspectors an honest and fair election in said Ward is an impossibility.

City and County of New-York, ss.: JAMES LAIRD, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he resides at No. 209 Greenwich-street, in the Fifth Ward, in the City of New-York, and resided in said Ward for the last twenty years and upward; I am personally acquainted with many of the inspectors of election appointed by the Mayor, and now acting as such in the First Assembly District, comprising the First, Second, Third and Fifth Wards of said City; from deponent's knowledge of said inspectors, in honest and fair return of the votes cast is an utter impossibility, as several of said inspectors are repeaters, and have been engaged in other dishonest practices in elections heretofore, and from my knowledge of their personal character, and their valuation of an oath, and their known subserviency to the Tammany Hall, or "Ring," influences, the election in said district, in the hands of such inspectors, bids fair to be a farce, and will not express the honest wishes of the voters of said district, and as a citizen I earnestly protest against depositing my ballot in the keeping of such dishonest inspectors, who respect neither human or divine law.

The following is Judge BARNARD'S order:

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court, held at Chambers, in the Court-house, in the City of New-York, on the 1st day of November, 1871, present, Hon. GEORGE G. BARNARD, Justice.—The People ex rel. JOHN FOLEY, against A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor of the City of New-York.—On the affidavit of the relator and others, hereto annexed, let the respondent, A. OAKEY HALL, show cause before me, at a Special Term of this Court, to be held at Chambers, in the Court-house, in the City of New-York, on the 3d day of November, 1871, at 10 o'clock, afternoon, why a writ of peremptory mandamus should not issue under the seal of this Court, commanding the said A. OAKEY HALL forthwith to appoint, as provided by law, inspectors of election in the various election districts in the several Wards of the City of New-York, so that the rights of the citizens may be secured to them at the election to be held on Nov. 7, 1871.

GEORGE G. BARNARD, J. S. C.

MAYOR HALL'S ANSWER.

Mayor HALL subsequently prepared and presented to the Court an affidavit in which he states that at 1 o'clock in the day he was served with a batch of papers, purporting to be affidavits, but which he could not read because of illegibility; that upon his own responsibility he has duly, in each election district of this City, in accordance with the requirements of law, wherever there was a vacancy, appointed an inspector of election in accordance with his policy outlined in his letter of Oct. 12, already published; that he is informed and believes that there is no vacancy for the appointment of an inspector in any election district, and concludes by asking that the Court, in view of the hour on which the papers were served on him, the fact that according to their data they might have been served on Thursday, and his belief that the proceeding has been taken for political effect, shall grant him the opportunity to make full answer.

A Mandamus Against Cornell—Assistant Aldermen to be Voted For.

The order of Judge BARNARD directing CORNELIUS CORSON, Chief of the Bureau of Elections, to show cause why a mandamus should not issue compelling him to place City boxes at the polling places on election day to receive such votes as may be cast for Assistant Aldermen, came up on the return yesterday.

Mr. LAWRENCE stated to the Court that his motion was made on behalf of GEO. J. KRAUS, a candidate for Assistant Alderman in the Eighth Assistant Aldermanic District, and that the affidavit on which he moved showed a demand on said City; that he has resided in said Ward for upward of twelve years; that he has resided in said Ward for nearly one year prior to the election, and intended to vote for the candidate of his choice for Assistant Alderman; that he knows many of the persons who reside in said Twelfth Ward, and among the inspectors so known to deponent are the following persons, viz.: Henry Wunder, Thomas J. Oliver, John H. Van Nellin, John B. Farrington, Edward Hillman, Matthew W. Wells, James Sherry, Samuel W. Tompkins, Cornelius Callahan, John McKeon, William Crawford, William Callahan, Andrew Mohrman, James Mulligan, Henry M. Jennings, G. A. Shaw, John Oulmont, Isaac T. Brown, John Ballantyne, John Norton, John Oulmont, John W. Brown, Thomas Kelly, and J. H. O'Neill; that the said several persons are entirely under the influence of Henry W. Oliver, who is a candidate for assistant alderman in the Eighth Assistant Aldermanic District, and who is the representative of the Tammany Hall Association in said Ward, and who is the representative of the Tammany Hall Association in said Ward; and, in deponent's judgment and belief, these persons are not proper persons to be intrusted with ballots at the election on the following election; that they and each of them, and others of the said inspectors of election of the said districts in said Ward, would, to deponent's knowledge, unhesitatingly act as directed by said representative, and fraudulently vote for the candidates supported by the Tammany Hall interest without reference to the actual ballots voted at said election; that it deponent's judgment it is impossible with such inspectors of election to have a fair and honest election in said Ward; and, to deponent's knowledge, such is the feeling of a large portion of the citizens of the Ward.

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court, held at Chambers, in the Court-house, in the City of New-York, on the 1st day of November, 1871, present, Hon. GEORGE G. BARNARD, Justice.—The People ex rel. JOHN FOLEY, against A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor of the City of New-York.—On the affidavit of the relator and others, hereto annexed, let the respondent, A. A Mandamus Against Corson—Assistant Aldermen to be Voted For.

The order of Judge BARNARD directing CORNELIUS CORSON, Chief of the Bureau of Elections, to show cause why a mandamus should not issue compelling him to place City boxes at the polling places on election day to receive such votes as may be cast for Assistant Aldermen, came up on the return yesterday.

Mr. LAWRENCE stated to the Court that his motion was made on behalf of GEO. J. KRAUS, a candidate for Assistant Alderman in the Eighth Assistant Aldermanic District, and that the affidavit on which he moved showed a demand on

[illegible]

Mr. BOOKSTAVER opposed the motion, on the ground that the affidavit of EBAUS did not distinctly allege a refusal, but, on the contrary, the CORSON stated he would take legal advice and give an answer on Saturday; that this is a matter in prospective for which a mandamus will not lie; that the Sheriff had not been notified of such an election, and that CORSON really intends to place the boxes.

Judge BARNARD—Well, if he intends to do it, the mandamus can't hurt him. I mean to let them vote this time for all the offices they wish, except mine.

The order was then signed and entered by Mr. LAWRENCE, directing the boxes to be placed at the polls.

Close Your Places of Business on Election Day: Be a Good Example.

In accordance with the suggestion of the Committee of Seventy, the following notice has been taken by leading business houses in this City:

"The undersigned firms engaged in business in New-York, being convinced that the election to be held on the 7th November next, is of the most momentous import to this Municipality, to the State of New-York, and to free institutions, hereby declare their purpose to close their places of business on that day, so that all honest voters may, without hindrance, devote the whole day to the patriotic duty of saving this noble City and State from the rule of bad men.

New Votes are Manufactured—Harry Genet Sells Constituents Among the Wards Island Paupers.

An old and respectable citizen of Harlem called at this office yesterday and stated that HARRY GENET, in order to secure his election as Senator of the Eighth Senatorial District, was resorting to all possible mean devices that could suggest themselves. His last act has been to bring a large array of paupers from Ward's Island, and, after supplying them with whisky, caused them to register. Our informant says that at 10 o'clock yesterday morning about forty paupers arrived in Harlem from Ward's Island. At the ferry foot of One Hundred and Ninth-street they scattered into detached squads of about ten each, and thence marched up along One Hundred and Ninth-street to Third-avenue, where they went into RILEY'S liquor-store and imbibed freely. They were an exceedingly rough-looking crowd, appeared to be of the emigrant class, and it is doubtful whether they were all naturalized citizens. From RILEY'S liquor-store they went across to the Registration Bureau, at the other side of the park, and registered their names one by one. While they drank in the liquors at GENET'S expense, the candidate for Senatorial honors was quietly enjoying himself upstairs. "RILEY'S Den," as our informant called it, is a place of considerable note. The matter has given rise to considerable gossip among the respectable people in East Harlem, who condemn in undisguised terms such tricks as are being practiced by the patrons of the Tammany Ring.

Mayor Hall's Disgrace—Action of the Students of the New-York University.

Until recently a photograph of Mayor HALL hung in the Council Room of the New-York University, of which institution he is a graduate. The students, on learning of his connection with the frauds of the Ring, resolved that it was a disgrace to allow it to hang there longer. Accordingly, on the day on which the Mayor was summoned to appear before the Grand Jury they took it from the wall, formed in procession, and marched through the hall with it, and then broke it into a thousand pieces.

Another Modification of Judge Barnard's Injunction.

The City injunction was yesterday modified by Judge BARNARD, so far as to permit some seventeen millions of the City bonds negotiated in Europe by AUGUST BELMONT & Co., before the injunction, to be issued without the name of Deputy Controller GREEN being written across their face. This is done merely to permit the fulfilment of an existing contract in the terms in which it was made.

Police Election Order.

The usual order defining the duties of the Police in connection with the election was issued yesterday. It is as follows:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, NO. 300 MULBERRY-STREET, NEW-YORK, Nov. 3, 1871.

To Captains of Police:

GENERAL ORDER, No. 68.—Tuesday, the 7th day of November instant, is assigned for holding an election in the City of New-York. The polls of election are required by law to be opened at 5 A. M. and closed at 8 P. M. On that day you will order the whole of your command on duty. Except those who are specially detailed by the Superintendent for that day, excuse no member of your command who is on the police roster for duty. You will detail two members of your force to duty at each of the polling places, from 4 o'clock A. M. until the completion of the canvass of votes, and relieve them with such hours of duty and relief as you shall deem proper. You will instruct the members of your force to keep order in the streets, and especially in the vicinity of the polls and at the election districts or houses; to promptly arrest all persons violating the provisions of the Election law, and charge them with the offense committed; to enforce the observance of the provisions of the Excise law, prohibiting the "selling or giving away of intoxicating liquors," on the day "when any election is held," within a quarter of a mile of the place where the election is held. Your attention is particularly called to section 12 of the Election laws of 1870, which provides that:

"Each candidate for any office to be filled at the election may, by a certificate in writing signed by him, designate one person for each election district in which he is a candidate, to be present at the canvass of the ballots containing the names of the persons designated for that office. The officers attending the election in the election district specified in such certificate shall give such person a seat where such inspectors, and the inspectors shall permit him to be present at the canvass of the ballots, specified in the said certificate, and an inspector to them that he can see the ballots and hear the canvass, and the inspectors shall have no power to cause the absence or removal of such person during the canvass of such ballots, unless he shall himself be guilty of fraudulent conduct, or violate the provisions of this section, or from engaging in or assisting in the canvass and estimate of votes as aforesaid, except the inspectors of election and poll-clerks of such district. Any person offending against the last provision shall be deemed guilty of and punished as for a misdemeanor."

You will see that your telegraph instrument is in order, and in charge of a Sergeant fully competent to work it, from 6 P. M. until the completion of the canvass. In case you require assistance on election day, call on the adjoining Precincts for their reserve, and furnish the required and when called on by adjoining precincts, if you can spare the force; and if the disorder assumes a serious character, report to headquarters. You will see that your ballot-boxes, locks and seals are in good order, and properly distributed to the Captains of Police, who will deliver the same to the Inspectors of Election at 7 o'clock, or as soon thereafter as practicable. Report to headquarters at 6 o'clock on the morning of election day. You will instruct the members of your force to protect all persons who may be legally entitled to an order, if memorialized to do so, and to keep the peace in your precinct, and to prevent the erection of, and to remove if erected, any box, booth, or structure for distributing ballots within 80 feet of any polling place. Inspectors of Election are now, by law, custodians of the votes cast at elections. You will therefore, under all circumstances, protect them in the undisturbed possession of the ballot-boxes, and repress all improper interference with them while canvassing the votes and completing the canvass. When this is done, to take charge of the ballot-boxes and keys, and return them to the Station-house.

JAMES J. KELSO, Superintendent.

GEO. W. DILLS, Inspector.

AND TO BE SEEN.

Putnam, Conn., Dec. 15, 1866.

DEAR SIR: It is with which pleasure that I write you this note respecting myself. I do not know hardly how to express myself. I have been for the last ten or twelve years the greatest sufferer man could be and live, for more sometimes than others.

The complaint was the "Kidneys" and "Bladder."

I have been sometimes from passing as fearfully burned water as water ever may burn, but could not. Each operation degrees both in severeness and excruciating pain, I may say, by no means and lingered months; but relief was relief from any, and yet twelve the last six months. I was so that I could scarcely get about. I could not rest night or day. It would seem have been "all up" with me if I had not seen your advertisement in The Berkshire

Courier, Pertaining "Kidneys." I read it through and thought I would try it. I purchased a bottle, but, mind you, I had not much faith in it. Why should I, when I had been trying so many things and spent the so much? Well, before I had taken the first bottle I felt bad; but I finished it and got another.

By the time I took half of the second I still got worse (apparently). When I walked it seemed as if my right kidney was falling from its place, and I made up my mind it was no use trying any more.

And all this time the "Buchu" was doing its work, but I did not know it; so I gave it up, and went to Hartford, on Saturday, to one of the best doctors in the city. He said it was the neck of the bladder, and I should have to undergo an operation. He gave me medicine, and I went home quite down-hearted.

On Monday I was unable to go to church. I had not taken of his medicine, but, on my return, continued

using the "Buchu" and in the afternoon I had a desire to make water, but could not. About one hour after this I tried again, with the same result; but the back time I took the vessel it was the same as passing a funnel and stopping it off again. It was so for three times, till the third time there was something called through the passage and struck against the side of the vessel. I examined it, and it is the ugliest stone or gravel you ever saw, covered over with little spikes which dislocated together. It looks, the color of a most earthy, and is as hard as flint. So you see the "Buchu" was doing its work, although I was feeling so badly. I procured another bottle, thinking there might be some more behind; but since that has passed, which is eight weeks ago last Sunday, I have been as well as ever I was in my life. I have the stone securely wrapped, and those who have seen it in this place are surprised. I cannot tell you all; but this is a true story of my case, and you are welcome to make such use of my name as you think proper. I am pretty well known in Berkshire; also in Connecticut. The advertisement saved me. Why not publish more? The Springfield Republican is a widespread paper. If any one wishes to see this wonder, they can do so. I could write all day, but I think I

A CASE OF TWENTY YEARS

STANDING.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 18, 1867.

H. T. HELMBOLD, Druggist:

DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upward of twenty years with gravel, bladder and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medical preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, experimenting but little relief.

Having heard your preparation extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.

I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised remedies, and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; so far, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no more bitter medicine than I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to ask your opinion; as you advertised that it was the cause of health, vitality and juvenile vigor. It occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination; and with his advice, after an examination of the matter, and consulting again with the druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced to use it about eight months ago, at which time I was confined to my room.

From the first bottle I was encouraged and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it four weeks was able to walk out. I was called into walking to your a fill statement of my case at the time, but thought my improvement might be only temporary, and therefore concluded to delay, and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing that it would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me.

I am now able to report that a cure is effected, after using the remedy for two months.

I HAVE NOT HAD ANY SIGN FOR THREE MONTHS,

AND FEEL AS WELL IN ALL RESPECTS AS I EVER DID.

Your Buchu being, should of any medicament known and after, a blessed invigorator of the system,

I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require (hoping so much occasion).

confidently say that I have never known it to be used without the greatest beneficial results. I have consulted patients after partaking of it, and they invari-

WESTPORT, Conn., Sept. 2, 1868.

H. T. HELMBOLD, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: I commenced using your "Extract of Buchu" about two weeks since for an affection of the bladder and kidneys. I have suffered for years very much for a few days past. But yesterday relief came through the effect of your "Buchu." A concretion from my bladder about the size of a large pea, and now I feel positively well and entirely free from that pain that I have so labored with for so long. I enclosed my card to your medicine usually, and would recommend all persons similarly afflicted to try it. I have great faith in its curative powers.

Yours, truly, THOMAS J. BENNETT.

THANKS TO MR. HELMBOLD.

GIRARD, Penn., March 31, 1869.

EDITOR CONSOLIDATE: I feel it an unmitigated duty to the merits of HELMBOLD'S BUCHU and for the benefit of those similarly afflicted as myself, to say that after enduring many excruciating pains and trying nearly all the best advertised remedies, in this vain hope of finding relief from aggravated kidney and bladder disease from which I had suffered extensively for many years, good friends finally suggested to me HELMBOLD'S BUCHU, which I commenced using with little faith and no apparent beneficial results for about a month. At the expiration of that time, however, I thought I commenced to experience slight relief, which encouraged me to persevere in the use.

Now, at the expiration of four months, although I am an infirm old man, nearly seventy-eight years of age, that comparatively substantial cause be supposed to severely affect me as they otherwise would, I have found such unquestionable relief and permanent benefit from Mr. Helmbold's valuable discovery, and I feel I ought to publicly record the fact as an acknowledgment to him and a valuable suggestion to the public.

slightest benefit from their costly medicines.

Four months ago I saw your advertisement in the chased a bottle, with no confidence, and was astonished that I continued the use of it. The diabetic has al-some ten or eleven weeks since; but, on my arrival, saw your advertisement, in the Ledger, and I determined to try it first, having a great aversion to the operation. I purchased three bottles, although at the time I had little faith in medicine in my case, but hoping it might relieve my suffering. I soon found my pain decreased, and felt much more comfortable. I then purchased one dozen bottles. I continued to use it, and at the expiration of four weeks I passed a deposit in my chamber, and upon examination I found this to be gritty, and then determined to examine more closely; and to my surprise I found this to be dark pebbles, larger than a pea's head. I continued to use the medicine, and have collected a few of the stones, which I inclose. I continued to pass them daily within three weeks. My urine previously being of a very bright, and a sediment would form from it. Since that period it is much lighter, the pain has ceased, and I am able to inform you that it is now of a natural color, and I have no pain of inflammation for any part of my body, and can walk, ride, or rest, without any inconvenience.

I shall have the honor to inform, and shall take a supply with me, as I intend using it for some time, although I feel well now, and can recommend any person who desires a cure when all other remedies and medical skill have failed.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES,
DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—unceasing warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democracy has been hunted with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and that intelligence honestly guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public reposes in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and aliens, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, and advocate with unfailing energy every cause which tends to promote the welfare of the people.

The utmost care will be devoted to gathering political and other news during the Presidential canvass. The department of the press will be eminently full and trustworthy. Renewed enterprise will be exhibited in every department of the paper, and large space will be devoted to reports of speeches made during elections, or on other important political occasions.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly edition, and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings of the Politico Club, an excellent summary of political discussion, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

A minority which runs the candidate for no other valid reason than to help the election of one of the most unscrupulous and greedy nominees of the Ring, need hardly complain if public opinion sets upon it the brand of Tammany. Every vote for BRIGHAM is a vote for BRADLEY, and through BRADLEY for his relative SWEENY, and the rest of the knavish crew, to the necessity of whose overthrow all other considerations must yield.

The cynical contempt which Tammany entertains for the opinions of reputable men, is very strikingly displayed in the renomination of the notorious "JIM" IRVING for the Sixteenth Assembly District. IRVING showed himself on the floor of the House last session to be the bully and the coward which men of his class generally are. Even from an Assembly which recommended to the wife of TOM FIELDS, IRVING was promptly expelled for his disgraceful assault upon Mr. WEED. Are the electors of the Sixteenth District prepared to allow this blackguard and rowdy to claim on Tuesday that he is their representative? They have the choice of NICHOLAS HAUGHTON, a Democrat of whom it is enough to say that he has received the indorsement of the Committee of Seventy, and in whose favor the Republican candidates have retired. He can and must be elected.

Boxes are to be provided for the reception of ballots for Assistant Aldermen. This is due to the express order of Judge BARNARD, and not to Mayor HALL's hesitating assent, which might at any moment have been recalled. The certain repeal of the City charter will, of course, terminate early next year the tenure of office of the Board of Assistant Aldermen, whatever may be the character of its members. It is, however, none the less essential that Reformers should not allow this ticket to be polled for Tammany in default of opposition. Our strength must be felt all along the line, otherwise false and damaging conclusions may be drawn throughout the State in regard to the influence of the Ring. Vote, then, the Aldermanic ticket approved by the Committee of Seventy and containing the names of well-tried Reformers.

The Republican ratification meeting in Brooklyn, last night, was one of the most imposing party gatherings which that city has seen for years. Our friends on the other side of the East River never had a better chance than the present of obtaining a fair share of representation in their Municipal Government and of helping the cause of New-York Reform by sending a trustworthy delegation to the Legislature. To both these ends the facts and figures so powerfully dealt with by Mr. TRACY will greatly contribute. The speech of Attorney-General ALDERSON, dealt, authoritatively, with a class of subjects in which public interest on the part of the country is at present rather sensitive. The effect of his oratory was, therefore, of a somewhat unsatisfactory kind. In other respects the meeting was an unqualified success, and the results will doubtless be apparent on the polls on Tuesday next.

Our able correspondent, "Grace Greenwood," furnishes this morning the third of her articles on the Mormons. It will be found particularly fresh and candid, and will supply to the general reader an impression of some facts about the Mormons which are generally unknown or ignored.

Judge CARDOZO's course is suddenly arresting the business of the Mercantile Insurance Company, has excited deep and just indignation. The Board of Underwriters yesterday denounced the shameful treatment of this highly-respectable Company in no measured terms. We suppose it is the proper thing for the Board to appoint a committee to confer with Superintendent MILLER about such a modification of the laws as will render such an outrage impossible in future. It may not be out of place to remind them, however, that as long as unscrupulous Judges are on the Bench, good laws are of very little account. We cannot imagine an upright man like GEO. C. BARRETT stretching the prerogatives of the Supreme Court to such an extent, any more than we can imagine the Tammany Ring, whose creatures CARDOZO and MILLER equally are, being hindered from a scheme of plunder by any kind of legislation whatever.

CHAS. A. FLAMMER, the candidate of the United Reform Party for Assemblyman in the Seventeenth District, is a young German of great personal popularity with his countrymen, and eminently worthy of the support of honest citizens of all parties. This has been a strong Democratic district hitherto, but the honest Germans are deserting the Tammany camp in a body, and they only ask to have their votes fairly counted on Tuesday next to elect Mr. FLAMMER by an overwhelming majority.

EUROPE.

Italy Fortifying the Alpine Passes—Illness of Sir Edward Landseer—The French Nationals—Transfer of Dutch Colonies.

TURIN, Nov. 3.—The Italian Government contemplates the fortification of the Alpine passes, at the cost of some seven millions of francs.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Sir EDWIN LANDSEER, R. A., is seriously ill.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Advices from Toulouse, just at hand, state that the disarmament of the National Guard had been satisfactorily begun.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 3.—It is expected that M. JULES FERRY will be appointed Ambassador to Berlin. The Duke of HARCOURT will resume his post as Ambassador at Rome.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 3.—The Convention for the sale of the Dutch settlements in Sumatra and on the Coast of Guinea, has been signed by the representatives of the Dutch and English Governments.

TRIPLE SHEET.

Vote Early!

Do not fail to register today. It is the last chance you will have. Encourage the advocates of the good cause by registering the vote of every honest citizen.

The Committee of Seventy earnestly entreat store-keepers, and all employers of labor, to close their places of business next Tuesday. By this means thousands of votes will be added to the good cause. Let every man have a chance to vote. This cannot be done unless the places of business are closed. Will not our top-makers give up a few hours in order that their property may be saved from further spoliation? The Stock Exchange will close, and hundreds of firms have already joined the movement. Send in more names.

Are We to Lose Our Last Stakes?

There are many rumors in circulation to the effect that the Police Commissioners will order everybody out of the polling booths next Tuesday except the "Ring" inspectors—that no "watchers" will be permitted to go near the booths, and that other measures will be adopted to falsify the vote, —by which means alone can a triumph for TWEED & Co. be secured.

These rumors gain strength by the issue from Superintendent KENZO's office of a Police order, which contains the following clause:

"Inspectors of election are now, by law, canvassers of the votes cast at elections. You will, therefore, under all circumstances, protect them in the undisputed possession of the ballot-boxes and repress all improper interference with them while canvassing the votes and completing the canvass. When that is done, to take charge of the ballot-boxes and keys, and return them to the Station-house."

That is to say, HALL's inspectors are to be allowed to do as they please, and if the Reform Party protest against any of their acts, the Police are to handle them out, neck and crop. That is the way in which this order is to be obeyed.

The Police Commissioners cannot be too plainly warned that behind this trick stands revolution. The people will not have their rights taken from them without resistance. Frauds cannot be carried on at the polls without the connivance of the Police Commissioners. Their names are HENRY (or Hank) SMITH, J. S. BOSWORTH, B. F. MANIERRE, T. J. BARR, and A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor, ex officio. These are the men to whom we owe the outrageous intimidation of voters by the Police which was carried on yesterday, as will be seen from our local reports.

If the people will submit to be robbed, they will not submit to a flagrant violation of the fundamental principles of liberty, and this the treacherous shuffler, HALL, might have found out by his experience of last 12th of July. We warn HALL and the Police Commissioners that any violence they may exercise at the polls next Tuesday, or any frauds they may attempt to carry out, will be bitterly resented. If we cannot have a fair election—if the Police are to be used as instruments of oppression against the people—TWEED, HALL and SWEENY will bring down a storm upon their heads which will soon clear them out of our paths. The people will not stand much more of their swindling.

In That Way Alone.

In every State where an election has been held since the Tammany frauds were exposed, the people have made known by their votes their abhorrence of those frauds, and have defeated the Democratic ticket.

Is this State, in which the frauds were perpetrated, to be the only State in the Union unaffected by the monstrous scandal? Are we to have it said that the people of New-York do not mind being governed by thieves?

Remember that the frauds of TWEED, HALL, SWEENY, and CONNOLLY, are no longer mere newspaper talk. They are matters of official record. They have formed the basis of suits in the Courts, under the advice of Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR, the leader of the New-York Bar. They are denounced, in language quite as strong as we have used in the TIMES, by Mr. SAMUEL J. TILDEN, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. The Committee of Citizens, appointed by Mayor Hall's desire, speak of them as appalling. The Committee of Seventy describe them as "a gigantic crime against property." Nobody defends them. The proof of them is before the world, and is admitted, even by the guilty persons themselves, to be unanswerable.

If all this evidence will not move the people of the State and City to overthrow every candidate of Tammany next Tuesday, what would do so? If Tammany cannot be dislodged now, it never can. You can never have stronger proof of the crimes committed by TWEED and his fellow-conspirators than you have before you now. There is positively not one good reason for keeping the robbers in power. Their continued ascendency will be regarded all over the world as a heavy blow at republican institutions, and a fatal and everlasting blot upon New-York State.

Will our friends in the interior be content to cast a light vote under these circumstances? Will our friends in the City suffer themselves to be misled by enemies of Gen. GRANT into fighting the Presidential issue at this election? Will they vote for men like GRIDLEY in the Eleventh Assembly District?

Close all your stores. Let every man do his best to secure victory. Make the Mayor and the Police Commissioners understand that if they allow any foul play next Tuesday at the polls, a heavy retribution will fall upon them. Vote for the "Seventy" ticket. In that way alone can you redeem the City and State from their present degrading position.

A Sample of Honest Work.

The reforms which Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN has quietly and effectively brought about during the short period since his appointment, afford eloquent testimony to the value of an honest man in office. In the single item of the abolition of sinecure offices, Mr. GREEN has already saved the tax-payers many thousands of yearly outlay. Mr. GREEN's circular to the heads of Bureaus in his Department of Oct. 19, is a document that deserves to be memorable in the history of local reform. In the very centre of a system based on the most reckless disregard of efficiency and the basest subserviency to political "influence," the Deputy Controller issued this remarkable order:

"You are hereby informed that every employe of this Department is to understand that his services are engaged for the legitimate prompt and regular attention to the duties of the position to which he is appointed, and for no other purpose. His salary is supposed to be fixed as an adequate compensation for his services, and no person employed in this Department will be allowed to accept or receive any fee, reward or compensation whatever, except his salary, for any service connected with the Department, except where the fees are fixed and established by law; any infraction of this rule will be deemed sufficient cause for removal. No employe of this Department will be required by any person in authority in this Department to pay any portion of his salary as a political assessment, or for political purposes; that matter, as well as his political status, is left to the free choice of each individual. * * * Neither persons holding sinecures nor incompetent will be retained in the Department."

Imagine how huge a stride we should make in the path of reform were similar notices to be issued by the heads of all the City Departments. The immediate saving to the overburdened tax-payers would reach to an enormous sum every year, and the prospective saving would amount to a great deal more. Destroy the barefaced robbery of sinecure offices, and, what is as bad, the long list of superfluous offices, and we should not only save money which is worse than wasted, but we should establish a higher standard of efficiency and honesty in the City service, which would give us in time a far better return for the money actually expended. It seems like a dream to think of removing from the rank and file of our local Administration the stain of inefficiency, indolence, black-mailing and insolence, and yet the thing can be done. Vote the "Seventy" Ticket on Tuesday, and, with an honest majority in the Legislature, we shall soon have the City Government so transformed that Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN will not be the only honest man holding a prominent position within it.

The Next Legislature.

So much that is vital not only to the City but to the State, depends upon the character of the next Legislature, that we make an early appeal to our friends throughout the State in favor of the selection of able, upright and experienced candidates. In view of the magnitude of the interests involved, it was important that Republicans should present in the Senate districts at least candidates whose names would inspire the confidence and awaken the zeal of the electors. But our expectations in this respect have not in every instance been realized. The party, therefore, will lose the prestige which the nomination of its very best men would have given to the canvass.

We can, and do, however, most cheerfully indorse the nomination of Hon. WILLIAM H. ROBERTSON, of the Ninth District. This is a nomination eminently "fit to be made." Mr. ROBERTSON has established, by long and faithful service, a high Legislative, Congressional, and Judicial character. He has long and deservedly enjoyed the confidence of the electors of Westchester County. His competitor, Mr. CAULDWELL, is, in all respects, as we have already, and on more than one occasion, shown, unworthy of the position he seeks. The Tammany Ring owns him, and would use him for all their nefarious purposes. Mr. ROBERTSON runs against large odds; but he has done so on former occasions, and always triumphed. A large number of electors, doing business in the City, reside in Westchester County. It behooves them, if they want to strike a hard blow against the Ring Robbers, to exert all their influence in favor of the election of WILLIAM H. ROBERTSON to the Senate.

The nomination of A. W. PALMER for the Dutchess and Columbia District is a good one. He is a gentleman of acknowledged character and proverbial integrity. He has served acceptably in both Houses of the Legislature. His Democratic competitor, Col. NELSON, is a strong man, but we confidently anticipate Mr. PALMER's election by a handsome majority.

The Republicans of the Albany District have in CHARLES H. ADAMS a candidate worthy of their united and best efforts. Mr. ADAMS has been an extensive and successful manufacturer. He has been quite active in politics, though never holding office. There is a political majority against him, but he is popular, and the Republicans will do their best to elect him.

The people of the Twelfth Senatorial District, comprising the Counties of Rensselaer and Washington, have an excellent candidate in the person of ISAAC V. BAKER, Jr., who is nominated by the Republican Party in opposition to WM. A. RUSSELL, the choice of the Tammany Ring. Mr. BAKER has served three terms in the Assembly, where he was known as an uncompromising opponent of all the corrupt jobs of the New-York Ring, and Tammany will spend its stolen money freely to prevent his election to the Senate. Let all friends of honest legislation unite in the support of Mr. BAKER.

No better candidate than JAMES H. GRAHAM, of Delaware, could have been presented to the electors of that Senate District. He has been a zealous, efficient, day and night Whig and Republican for more than thirty years. He is always right, always in the right place, and always "on time."

Mr. WOODIN, the nominee from the Cayuga and Wayne District, is a member of the present Legislature, enjoying, and, as we have every reason to believe, deserving, the confidence reposed in him.

Mr. CLEVELAND, the candidate from the Twenty-sixth District, is—unless amid the demoralizations of the last few years his character has undergone a change—every way worthy a seat in the Senate. He has been for many years the editor of a Whig and Republican journal at Penn Yan, which in times past was as faithful in maintaining the right as it was fearless in denouncing the wrong.

Of Mr. KELLY, the Republican nominee from the Monroe District, we know very little. But the legislative record of his Democratic opponent is so uncompromisingly bad, that every possible effort should be made to elect Mr. KELLY.

Of the merits of the split in the Niagara District, we are unacquainted. If, as is alleged, the opposition to the re-election of Senator BOWEN is stimulated by a man from Orleans County, who has subsisted for twelve or fifteen years upon the drippings of the State Committee, no heed should be given to it. While on the other hand, if that Senator has been unfaithful, he ought not to be re-elected.

The Courts to the Rescue.

Judge BARNARD has been asked to protect the City against the contemplated election frauds of OAKEY HALL's inspectors. Every one will remember the famous injunction suit—the first blow in Court to the Ring—and that it was Mr. JOHN FOLEY who brought it. The same energetic citizen now makes complaint before Judge BARNARD, citing certain notorious facts to show that there is reason to believe in a conspiracy to defeat the will of the people by fraud at the election on Tuesday next. These facts are, first, the existence of a system by which the Tammany Ring, through its Ward representatives, names the inspectors, gives or withholds their appointment, according as they can be depended on to commit the frauds required by the Ring, and changes them at will; and, second, the bad record and repute of many of the inspectors so far named, among whom Mr. FOLEY avows there "are several who stand accused of crimes of murder, and of theft, some who cannot write, many well-known repeaters, and others who in past years, have been accused of fraudulently counting the ballots at the elections in the interest of the Tammany Hall candidates." These allegations are sustained by a number of affidavits, which will be found in another column. The complaint fixes the responsibility where it belongs, on the Mayor. That gentleman has the appointment this year of fully two-thirds of the inspectors. He has refused to counsel with the authorized representatives of the honest voters. He has named many notoriously bad men. He has uniformly placed the appointments directly in the hands of the Ring agents, and has changed them at the dictation of the latter, without legal excuse for so doing. He is, in short, the active leader in the conspiracy. Mr. FOLEY asks that the order of the Court be directed to him, requiring him to substitute honest and capable men for the designated rogues and incapables.

It is to be hoped that Judge BARNARD will find it in his power to provide a defense for the people against the great outrage that threatens them. The evidence adduced by the complainant in the present case is clear enough. If more were needed, it would be well for Mr. FOLEY to call the attention of the Court to the practice adopted by the inspectors of taking names for registry on loose paper. LAZARUS and PETTIT had the hardihood to plead to Judge BARNARD himself that they were not guilty of false registry, because this was not registry at all. Yet it is all the inspectors propose to give honest voters. Is not this ground for action?

Judge BARNARD has already held that in case of great financial wrong, of robbery of the people, if they had no remedy it was the business of a Court of Equity to step in and provide one. Mr. O'CONOR says of his own appeal for relief, to a Court of precisely the same general jurisdiction as Judge BARNARD's, that it was made on the ground that "the State as parens patriæ has power to correct by action at law, or in equity, abuses of corporate and official authority." Surely there never was a grosser abuse of official authority than HALL's appointment of inspectors, for the purpose of procuring a fraudulent result to the election. Judge BARNARD, interposed with boldness to prevent further plunder. The people look to him now for equal firmness and courage in stopping a greater wrong than mere plunder can ever be.

Titles on Hall.

We hope the members of the Grand Jury which adjourned last week without finding an indictment against Mayor HALL, have carefully perused the speech made by Mr. TILDEN at the Cooper Institute on Thursday evening. It, instead of going through the farce of summoning a score of citizens before them in the absurd expectation of finding some one who had actually seen HALL steal money from the City Treasury, they had exercised a little of Mr. TILDEN's common sense and home-made logic, they would have found abundant evidence on which to frame an indictment against the Mayor. Mr. TILDEN finds no difficulty in proving HALL's guilt out of his own mouth, and does not hesitate to pronounce him the "chief conspirator" in the plot by which the City was robbed out of five millions of dollars. He it was who, as Mr. TILDEN says, "prepared the legal methods and the legal plausibility for the crimes that have since been enacted." He it was who drafted the law by which TWEED, CONNOLLY and himself were to audit the accounts of INGERSOLL, GARVEY & Co., and then endeavored to shirk responsibility for the frauds that he knew were to be committed by offering a resolution at the first and only meeting of the Board of Audit, transferring the entire work of the Board to TWEED and his clerk. Here was criminal negligence of a plain duty imposed upon him by a law of his own creation, and a criminal betrayal of his trust as Mayor of the City, whose interests he was elected to guard, —enough, in itself, to subject him to indictment by a Grand Jury and trial before a jury of his constituents. But Mr. TILDEN evidently does not believe, and neither does any man of common sense, that HALL is innocent of personal participation in the proceeds of the robberies, which he took such pains to enable others to commit. The best proof of this, as we have before remarked, is the course pursued by him when the robberies were first detected and made public.

Does any sane man believe that HALL would have resorted to such miserable subterfuges as those set forth by Mr. TILDEN to screen the plunderers of the Treasury, if he had been innocent of all complicity in their crimes? HALL, according to his own showing, stands in the position of a servant who had concocted a scheme to rob his master; who had procured the appointment of professional thieves to aid him in guarding his employer's property; and who, after pointing out to his companions where the treasure was concealed and how to get at it, artfully withdrew from the scene, telling his pals to "go in and help themselves." And is such a man to be held guiltless because it cannot be shown that he filched the stolen money with his own fingers? How long would any member of HALL's Grand Jury hesitate to find an indictment against a private servant under these circumstances? And what is HALL but a servant of the People?

The World and Mr. Andrew H. Green.

The impudence which the World is now displaying in reference to the exposures of its friends TWEED & Co., almost exceeds the mendacity it has exhibited on the same subject for a year past. People who read that paper know well how it "blackguarded" the TIMES, and the cowardly slanders it heaped upon all persons connected with it, for daring to accuse the Ring of dishonesty. The World over and over again declared that the present City Government was an honest one, that the TIMES was making false charges, that the "old Board of Supervisors" was responsible for all the frauds which had been committed. Only a few weeks ago it vindicated TWEED from the charge of having acquired his money dishonestly in the following language:

"Whatever else Messrs. TWEED and SWEENY have been charged with, nobody ever accused them of being fools. Why then should it be thought incredible that they have amassed fortunes by the same kind of legitimate speculations in which other shrewd men have made so much money?"

We could quote columns of such stuff, but surely the public cannot so soon have forgotten the infamous course pursued by the World throughout this fight. It even defended Oakey Hall's monstrous "Code Amendments," although the other day it condemned some candidate for having done the same thing. And now it speaks of "Republican attacks" on Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN, and claims credit to itself for having put Mr. GREEN where he is! Impudence is nothing unless it is well carried out, and the brass of the World has something almost sublime about it.

On the day when we announced with the warmest approval the appointment of Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN as Deputy Controller, and called upon the people to support him, the World denounced him as an accessory to Connolly's swindles. It went out of its way to abuse Mr. SAMUEL TILDEN as a "railway politician and lawyer." The proprietor and editor of the TIMES were attacked for having consulted with Mr. TILDEN—whereas, in fact, there had been no consultation on the subject —although we should have no reason to be ashamed if there had been. The World further accused Mr. GREEN of going into office only for the purpose of screening CONNOLLY. Listen to its own words:

"Why should he (Mr. GREEN) wish to screen Comptroller CONNOLLY from the consequences of a judicial condemnation? What is the explanation of his advising friend's [Mr. TILDEN] sudden friendship for Mr. CONNOLLY? At any time within the last year, and especially within the last week, ANDREW H. GREEN and RICHARD B. CONNOLLY would have been thought a queer pair of yoke-fellows, and the most unlikely of any two men to be found peddling the same leaky office. This verifies the trite proverb that politics makes strange bed-fellows.

The public interpretation put upon this may perhaps be that Mr. GREEN hates Mr. SWEENY because he has not got on comfortably with him in the Central Park Commission, and fancying that CONNOLLY has cause to dislike Mr. SWEENY too, he makes an alliance, offensive and defensive, with the man whom he has always professed to regard as the biggest knave in the Tammany pack! Is it worthy of Mr. GREEN's past reputation to make an alliance with a judicially-branded man and become his subordinate and factotum, in order to spite Mr. SWEENY, because Mr. SWEENY has not recognized Mr. GREEN's pretensions as a member of the Central Park Commission? What can Mr. GREEN expect to accomplish by this singular manœuvre? Will his induction into the office of Deputy Controller under CONNOLLY wipe out and cancel the frauds with which that officer stands charged? Will not GREEN, on the contrary, be regarded as an accomplice after the fact? Having always professed to regard CONNOLLY as a thief, how does he reconcile it to his honor and his conscience to become the ASSOCIATE, SCRIBE, and chief FACTOTUM of the same man, when he has just been judicially branded as little better than a highway robber? And does Mr. GREEN really suppose that his name has any such potency as to whitewash and acquit a man whom a Court, and an indorsing, unanimous community, have put in the pillory as the chief instigator and abettor of gigantic frauds? Why should ANDREW H. GREEN consent to screen RICHARD B. CONNOLLY in such a crisis as this, when CONNOLLY is sinking under the accumulated weight of a judicial condemnation and intense public odium? It is the most marvelous prostitution of a pure reputation that we ever heard of.

If CONNOLLY is guilty of the malfeasance with which he stands charged, the saving grace of Mr. GREEN's sudden friendship cannot make him innocent. He cannot dissolve the injunction by changing one of his subordinates. And, what is more important, he cannot by any such shallow and ridiculous device shield himself from the coming impeachment. Mr. GREEN, seduced by bad advisers, has lent himself to a shuffling outrage to shield Connolly and prevent the appointment of a thoroughly upright man like Gen. MCCLELLAN or Mr. BELMONT to the Controllership. This preposterous fetch is not creditable either to Mr. GREEN or his sly advisers. If the intention of the Legislature is the true and admitted rule of interpretation, a Court ought to adjudge the appointment of Mr. Green invalid and void."

This is the paper which now has the impudence to take credit to itself for the good work done by Mr. TILDEN and Mr. GREEN. Small credit is due to the World, or to any Democratic newspaper, for the fact that Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN was not instantly hounded out of his office by HALL and SWEENY. The TIMES alone stood between him and his assailants—on the very Sunday when the above article appeared in the World, the TIMES placed the true facts of the case before the people, and earnestly called upon the public to sustain Mr. GREEN. It is a little too much to see the World coolly claiming credit for any share of Mr. GREEN's work. It is like the Express bragging that the Democratic papers have exposed Tammany, while absolutely excluding from its own columns all the fraudulent warrants, and all the evidence on which the Ring thieves have been convicted before the bar of public opinion.

Is Freedom Only a Name?

The extent to which the Tammany Ring have succeeded in undermining the most cherished constitutional privileges of our citizens, is just beginning to be recognized by the public, and has awakened the greatest indignation and alarm.

It has always been supposed that trial by jury was one of the great bulwarks of our liberties. No right has been so zealously protected in the Constitutions of this State and of the United States. As for the right to an honest count of the ballots, that was considered too sacred to require any particular guarantee, as our fathers could not imagine any organized attempt would ever be made to interfere with it.

Mayor HALL has, however, demonstrated to us that until our present rulers are swept away from the positions they disgrace, the Grand Jury will remain a farce—a mere collection of servants of the Ring, who indict such men as the Ring desire to be indicted, and acquit those who are in league with it.

It has long been asserted by those best qualified to judge, that the same system which HALL found so successful in his own case before the Grand Jury had been applied to all other juries, and that no case in which the Ring or their satellites were concerned could be tried before a jury upon which they would not succeed in having at least one representative. Out of course on anything but a Grand Jury one man is as good as a dozen. That this assertion was correct has been shown by several cases, and certainly the circumstances of the trial of Tilgr. LAZARUS, for false registration on Thursday last before Judge BARNARD, go far to convince an unprejudiced mind that politicians are right in asserting it to be a "put up job." To outsiders the proof seemed as clear as possible, and from the rest of the jury standing eleven to one, it is pretty plain that they so considered it. If the assertion publicly made be correct, that the dissenting juror was a Tammany office-holder, the conclusion is irresistible that he was placed there by the Ring.

The effect of the conviction and sentence of a repeater at the present time would be most disastrous upon Ring fortunes. It is nothing new for them to pack a jury. They have the power and the instruments, and although we are unwilling to prejudge the matter, it is difficult to resist the conclusion that this was done in the Lazarus case.

If there be any citizen in New-York who does not deeply feel the necessity of voting for the candidates nominated by the Committee of Seventy, let him reflect upon the condition in which he would be left if they were defeated, with LEDWITH, proven by the Bar Association to be "no lawyer," and by his own course to be venal, sitting for fourteen years as a Judge of the Supreme Court, and with the Ring packing not only the Grand but the Petit Juries whenever anything comes up which affects their interests. And then, let him add to this mockery of justice the spectacle of organized bands of repeaters stuffing the ballot-boxes with illegal votes, and counting out the honest suffrages of those opposed to them, emboldened by the immunity they obtain through such Judge and juries.

Gov. Seymour Against Tom Fields.

The tax-payers and Reform Democrats of the Nineteenth Assembly District evince good sense in giving the electors of that district the opportunity and privilege of voting for a man in every possible respect the opposite of TOM FIELDS. Widely as we have ever differed with Gov. SEYMOUR politically, we have always cheerfully recognized and acknowledged both the purity of his private character and the integrity of his official record. It is said that the three or four thousand men employed by the Park Commissioners will be arrayed in favor of FIELDS. Is this certain? Will Commissioners SWEENY and HILTON march their employes to the polls in a body against Gov. SEYMOUR? Will Mr. A. T. STEWART, who has great influence over HILTON, sanction this scandalous outrage?

There is one contingency which almost reconciles us to the idea of TOM FIELDS' re-election. It is that, in the event of a Reform majority in the Assembly, Mr. FIELDS' manipulations of the Tax Levy, by means of which he drew several hundred thousand dollars from the City Treasury, will be investigated.

MINOR TOPICS.

It is due to Mr. OSWALD OTTENDORFER to state the fact, of which we were not at the time aware, that he declared, when his name was published in connection with the Tweed Testimonial, that it was used without his consent, and would have been refused had its use been requested. Mr. JAMES O'BRIEN's name was also starred for him and without his approval. As the Ring were in the business of using other people's names without their knowledge at that time, and for much more serious purposes, it is not singular that Messrs. OTTENDORFER and O'BRIEN should have been victimized.

Yesterday's registration brings up the total of names placed on the poll-books to 129,003. This is 12,614 less than the total registry of last year. An inspection of the numbers registered from the various Wards will show that the decrease is mainly owing to the absence of voters from the repeating strongholds of Tammany. The roughs of the lower and river-side Wards are, doubtless, acting under orders, in staying away from the registry. The obvious intention is to obstruct the polling places on Tuesday with numbers of men who require to be sworn, and so weary and disgust honest voters by long delays. The trick will not succeed. Let every man who values liberty, public honor, and private decency, register to-day, so that he may be able to vote without question and without delay on Tuesday next.

All JOHN V. GRIDLEY's propositions to JAMES O'BRIEN to trade for votes having been met with a point-blank refusal, the Gridley and Greeley faction will now probably try to strike a bargain with Tammany Hall. TWEED is aware that GRIDLEY will be quite as useful to him at Albany as FITZPATRICK has been, and will therefore direct that the two delegates in his control shall be voted for in consideration of his throwing what little influence he may have in favor of BRADLEY. This, or any other corrupt bargain, can be thwarted by the honest men of the Eleventh Assembly District concentrating their vote upon Col. MAWHEE.

Is a man like LEDWITH, a man without employment because of his ignorance, and who had directed taxes for which he could produce no receipts, to be elected Judge of the Supreme Court at the dictation of the Tammany Ring? It is that more important than ever now that we should have honest Judges on the Bench, and therefore a crime to the community. Be sure to vote for Judge G. C. BARRETT next Tuesday; whatever else you omit to do, don't fail to do that.

Mr. GREELEY thinks it is a matter of conscience for anyone who [illegible] JOHN J. BRADLEY's chances of election. The thought of being in a minority may be very consoling to Mr. GREELEY, but it is the position of all others which nearly every other honest voter in this community has resolved to avoid. A minority which runs the candidate for no

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

TAMMANY EXPOSED.

[illegible]

Opening events, in support to the election day next week, cast gloomy shadows before. If one half of the stories that have been circulated are true, there is every reason to believe that the Tammany ring have organized one of the most desperate plots ever got known to force the election. Statements of the most startling character have been made, and the sources from which they have been derived, lend doubt as to their reliability. There is much that cannot at this time be made public, but enough to stimulate every friend of reform to renewed exertion. There will be a simultaneous attempt to place stuffed ballot-boxes, intimidate honest voters, rush in repeaters, and generally tamper with the ballots. The Police force are to assist in this enterprise, and have already received instructions. The plot was specially designed for the Seventh Senatorial District, where JOHN J. BRADLEY's vote by a fair election will be greatly increased by votes of Mr. O'BRIEN. The vigilance of the agents of the Committee of Seventy is made so formidable all former plans wholly hopeless, and realizing this, the friends of Mr. BRADLEY have devised as follows: The Police detail and the duty at the polls are packed men sulled to the job. They will not arrest any voting the Tammany ticket, but will make a raid on all of the Tammany opposition. A packed gang of ruffians will be posted around the doors with orders to push and shove the voters about all day. Are presumed signal a fight will be raised among them. Clubs will be called down, and knocking heads will be the order of the day. The Police will then come in. The Police will then arrest the men who have in fairness been engaged in the fight, and place them in the station-house. The Bradley party will be left without a voter. Such is the plan, and it is said it will be carried out. Other stories are rife, but this is the most feasible one. It is calculated that this period of excitement will rivet the attention of all the inspectors and poll clerks, except one, who will seize the opportunity unobserved to stuff as many desired number of ballots. But this plan will fail. There will be one man at each place, who, if given will prove a match for the ballot-box and the ballots. If the stuffing is attempted, he will be the man who will expose the fraud. Other stories are rife, but enough is evident that the plot is carried out in the interest of the Committee of Seventy. The very men who have in former years been active every such purpose, and who have now the fairly court-house, are the Tammany ring, will act as such in the Bradley party. Let the secrets, also, that the Bradley party have been intended to vote, if the slaves that have been stuffed for it. Several liquor-dealers, grocers, and others, were indirectly given to understand by Tammany men in authority that they must vote for GRANT or GREELEY. For God's sake do not betray the source of your information," exclaimed one of these imploring; "I cannot say that I had any direct notice, but the message was indirectly from HARRY GRAHAM and the Captain of Police. One of the party was told were a Police shield made in gold. He was to wear it on his breast. I know him. But I was given to understand that unless I voted as they said, the Captain of the Police would close up my place and make me sweat for it." Another said: "I had about as well give up my Excise license as to vote any ticket but the Tammany Ring, but I don't dare to, it would ruin me."

At another place the reporter's conversation was overheard by several of a villainous-looking crew of loafers, who soon slung out into the street. Half a block off he was accosted by one of them, who was greatly intoxicated and used the most profane and filthy epithets. "You Times reporter, are you? We've been lying for you all week. A hell of a time you've been making here with us fellows, eh?" Here he seized the reporter by the collar, and violently shook him in a threatening manner, exclaiming, "I'll put a hole through you now!" At this instant a young indeed Hibernian interposed and drew him away, but as he went he continued to cursing, saying: "We'll lay for you fellers. We'll put a hole on you yet! We'll see you 'Section day!"

At two other places violent language was used. Throughout the District it is evident that paid agents of the General party are using money as well as threats to force votes.

In the Eighth District, the Bradley faction, last night, were actively using the same means, money, rum, and other inducements, being scattered in all directions.

Committee on Elections of the Committee of Seventy.

The Committee on Elections of the Committee of Seventy are taking measures to place their ticket in the hands of every citizen who will vote it. The ballots are to be distributed from the head-quarters of the Reform parties, sent to the houses of many whose addresses are at hand, kept at the head-quarters, No. 20 West Union-square, for those who wish to call for them, and distributed from polling-boxes on the day of election.

Yesterday, at the head-quarters of the Committee, a great number of gentlemen called for information, and so great was the rush that a clerk was kept busy during the day answering questions. Those who called were principally of the great army of reserve voters, and it was curious to observe how men of education and well informed upon everything else were lamentably ignorant upon matters pertaining to the exercise of their right to vote. These gentlemen, however, show a disposition to attend to their political duties in the future.

Advice to Voters.

Before leaving the polls, voters should see that their ballots are deposited in the proper boxes. Designing inspectors, when opportunity offers, drop ballots on the floor or substitute others for them.

The Executive Committee of the Young Men's Municipal Reform Association have for gratuitous distribution at their rooms, No. 20 West Union-square, a voter's manual, containing much valuable information for voters.

Giant Mass-Meeting.

A mass-meeting of German-American and other citizens was held at the corner of Second-avenue and Fourteenth-street last evening. Gen. [illegible] addressed the meeting. The people, he said, are now awaking from the effects of their own inactivity in the past. To free themselves from the disgrace which has come upon the City, they must use their political power effectively, all nationalities, voting for that purpose. He said that Tammany Hall, in the last [illegible] had shown that it was afraid of the German vote, and therefore the Democratic party had [illegible] the meeting in German.

Meeting of Seventeenth Assembly Republicans—Endorsement of Thousands that Senator.

A large Republican meeting was held last evening at Harvard Rooms, corner of Sixth-avenue and Twenty-second-street, Col. JOHN W. MASON in the chair. Many ladies were present. The following resolutions, offered by Mr. DAVID B. MERRIN, were adopted:

Resolved, 1. That the issue in the pending campaign is between honesty and publicity in the affairs of the City and State on the one hand, and corruption and secrecy on the other.

2. That we believe Hon. D. P. THOMAS, Reform member and Representative in Congress have been voted for upon the ballot indorsed "State." By the act of last Winter Senators and Representatives in Congress in all the counties of the State, will hereafter be voted for upon separate ballots. In counties electing only one member of Assembly, the nominee has heretofore been voted for upon the ballot indorsed "State." By the act of 1871, members of Assembly in all the counties and Assembly districts will now be voted for upon a separate ballot. At the coming general election at least two tickets will be voted in all the counties, and inspectors of election are required to furnish a corresponding number of ballot-boxes. The ballot indorsed "State" will contain the nominees for State officers and the county officers to be chosen this Fall. Senators will be voted for upon the ballot inscribed "Senate," and members of Assembly will be voted for upon the ballot indorsed "Assembly." Justices of the Supreme Court, County Judges, Surrogates, and special County Judges or Surrogates, will be voted for upon a ballot indorsed "Judiciary." The ballots will be deposited in ballot-boxes correspondingly labeled. Special elections in certain Senatorial Districts, in several counties or combinations of counties, where vacancies exist, Schools Commissioners will be elected, now an additional ballot, indorsed "School Commissioner." A special Election law remains in force as in New-York City. In the City of Brooklyn an election for city officers will be held on the day of the coming general election. In the City of Utica a Recorder will also be chosen; and in the City of Buffalo a Judge of the Superior Court. By an amendment of the charter of the City of Buffalo, passed in 1871, the time for holding the city election was changed from November until the first Tuesday in March.

The Liberty of the Citizen in Undermined by Judge Shipman's Decision.

From the Albany Evening Journal, Nov. 2.

The following interesting colloquy took place in the First Ward, between Officer O'CALLAHAN, of the Twenty-seventh Precinct, and Mr. JEREMIAH HERMSTEIN, a few days since:

OFFICER—Good morning, Jerry. What's the news?

JERRY—I have nothing new.

OFFICER—What's the news in politics?

JERRY—I don't know much about it; but I think HEALY will be elected.

OFFICER—Indeed he won't. If you knew as much about it as I do, you wouldn't think so either.

JERRY—Why? What more do you know about it than anybody else?

OFFICER—I know lots more about it; Capt. CHERRY is for MULLER, and the Police will club the head of any body that's against him.

JERRY—I think not. You wouldn't club me, would you?

OFFICER—I would, if I was told; and I would club the head of CHARLIE O'CONOR, if I was told.

JERRY—O'CALLAHAN, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Have you no regard for your oath?

OFFICER—What the devil's the use of your talking that way to me, Jerry? I tell you the Police are for MULLER, and they are bound to elect him or kill all hands.

JERRY—O'CALLAHAN, you and your associates had better give up the idea of clubbing and terrorizing people, or some of you might find yourselves in State Prison. One thing you may be sure of, if the law don't protect the citizens, they will protect themselves.

OFFICER—Hey! what kind of stuff. The Police will do as they are told.

JERRY—Yes, and you'll be told to vote, or I'm mistaken.

OFFICER—Never mind that, Jerry. How smart you are. I tell you what it is, JERRY, it is no trouble to us to go down to the dock and kick up a little muss with any of the longshoremen or laborers that's against us; take them in and make a charge of disorderly conduct or intoxication against them, and get them five or ten days. When the devil will be the winner for it.

JERRY—O'CALLAHAN, I think the last job of that kind you had should be warning enough for you. You are the worst man I ever talked to. Good day, O'CALLAHAN.

This ended the interview.

The Colored Voters of the Fifth District Denounce the Action of Wealthy Race who Are in Favor of Norton.

The spacious hall, No. 342 Spring-street, was crowded last night by the colored voters of the Fifth Senatorial District, as it was known business of importance was to be transacted. GEORGE W. RYBED was in the chair, and addressed the meeting. He said those Arnolds of the colored people who are now holding a public meeting in favor of the "Tweedledeb" are not recognized among the colored voters of this district.

Mr. PAGE, the Reform candidate for the Assembly, was introduced, and delivered an eloquent speech, denouncing Tammany, and Mr. CHAS. NORTON in particular. A letter was read from GEORGE T. DOWNING, the celebrated colored caterer, the contents of which came the surprise of the popular colored gentlemen, on hearing that some of his race were in favor of Hon. MICHAEL NORTON, and hoped they would not cast such a reproach on the colored people as to vote for a nominee of Tammany. The following resolutions were adopted unanimously:

Whereas, Certain unprincipled colored men have allied themselves to support the candidate of MICHAEL NORTON, as Senator for the Fifth Senatorial District, and claim to address themselves to the voters of this district; and

Whereas, It is known that these men, the majority of whom are legal voters of other districts, are consequently not be representatives of this district; be it

Resolved, That we denounce the nomination of MICHAEL C. BENEDICT for Senator in the Fifth District, he being a tool of the Tammany Hall ring, and not a representative of Tammany Hall in the field.

Resolved, That the Association is the only representative of the colored voters in this district, and we do not recognize the nomination of Hon. MICHAEL NORTON for Senator.

Three cheers were given with a will for BENJAMIN C. BENEDICT.

The meeting then dispersed.

How Horace Greeley Aids the Reform Movement.

A mass-meeting of the irregular Republicans of the Seventh Senatorial District, who favor the election of CHESTER W. PULLMAN as Senator from that District, was held last evening at the irregular Republican head-quarters, JOHN A. FOSTER was called to the chair and HORACE GREELEY was called on.

Hon. HORACE GREELEY then came forward. He said that Mr. PULLMAN had always been the champion of the rights of the good citizens against the Ring. He (Mr. GREELEY) was in favor of having Republicans vote for any man they chose to, without being abused. Nine-tenths of the Republicans in Mr. PULLMAN's district were not in favor of O'BRIEN in preference to PULLMAN, but defended voting for the former on the ground of expediency. It was folly to help Democratic politicians make capital by giving them Republican votes, so that they could make good bargains afterward with Tammany Hall, as LEDWITH, Judge CONNOLLY and others had done. Republicans ought not to be denounced as being "Tammanyized" because they chose to vote for an honest Republican instead of for a horse Reformer. It was not a misfortune to be in a minority when men acted from honest convictions. Men who thought it expedient to vote for O'BRIEN might do so, but he (Mr. GREELEY) believed that no honest man should sacrifice his conscience to expediency, and he, for one, would not in the present crisis. [Great applause.]

Gen. FUNK informed the meeting that Mr. PULLMAN would receive the united German vote in the Seventh Senatorial District.

After some speeches by SINCLAIR TOUSEY, Mr. PULLMAN and others, the meeting adjourned. About 300 persons were present.

The Meeting in the Fifth District in Favor of Norton a Complete Failure.

Large posters were circulated among the colored voters of the Fifth District, advertising a public meeting to take place last night, near the corner of Varick and Grand streets, by the colored voters of the Fifth District in favor of MICHAEL NORTON for Senator. 1A9 7½ fire-works were set off and a brass band enlivened the scene by playing stirring airs. At a meeting was called to order in the large hall upstairs, Wm. HUNTER presided, and addressed the meeting in glowing terms of MICHAEL NORTON. A distinguished orator had the pleasure of delivering his speech before fifty white men and six colored citizens. The meeting was a complete failure. The President called for three cheers for NORTON, but none were given. The meeting then adjourned.

A Full Vote Will Secure a Pure and Honest Government.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

With such commanding objects appealing to you as citizens, with such rare incentives stimulating you as Republicans, the trumpet-call of duty should send every one to his post. Men have taken up arms to rid themselves of a Government less corrupt, degraded and oppressive than that which now weighs down New-York State and City. By overwhelming majorities, in the last contest, the people have declared against the corruption and tyranny of the Democratic party. The Ballot-Box is an [illegible] Should rulers be, or whether they should not, be the rulers of the land, was brought to a final issue. Other questions addressed the meeting in German.

A SINGULAR PROCEEDING.

Case of the Mercantile Fire Insurance Company—Surprising Statement—Meeting of the Board of Fire Underwriters—Judge Cardozo Severely Denounced.

On Tuesday last, WM. H. L. OWENS appeared through his counsel, before Judge CARDOZO, and swore that he was the owner of ten shares of the Mercantile Fire Insurance Company, of this City; that their capital stock was impaired by losses in Chicago to the extent of twenty-five per cent, the statutory limit, and that the Company was consequently insolvent. An injunction was granted, Mr. ADAM G. ROGERS was appointed temporary receiver, and yesterday was named as the day for the Company to show cause why the injunction should not be made perpetual and a permanent receiver be appointed.

The President of another company, and an entirely disinterested party, yesterday made the following statement in regard to the Mercantile Fire Insurance Company: The Company was organized in 1826, and since that time to the first ultimo, have been uninterruptedly in business, paying all its losses, and paying average annual cash dividends of ten per cent. to its stockholders. At the time of the Chicago fire, the Company was in possession of its capital, $200,000, and a handsome surplus, more than three-quarters of which could be turned into cash within an hour without any loss of a single dollar. On the 21st of October, when the injunction was served, the cash assets were $93,288 72. At the same time the estimated losses of the Company, exclusive of those of Chicago, were $8,000. Other indebtedness was $1,500 for rent, and $56 40 for unexpired premiums and canceled policies. The outstanding losses from Chicago policies was $118,000. This sum will be considerably reduced from the fact that the property was not all destroyed. The Company having discontinued its agency in Chicago in March last, they were enabled to make up an account of the full amount they had at risk in the whole of said city, so that before definite information was received of the extent of the fire, they knew that to every dollar at risk the Company's assets stood in jeopardy, should prove total loss; they would pay the face of every policy, and have a good part of their capital left. For the immediate relief of the Chicago sufferers they resolved to pay all their Chicago losses on receiving satisfactory proofs, without waiting the expiration of the usual sixty days as allowed by the terms of their policies. Adopting this course gave a fair idea, in estimating the extent of the Company's losses in the most unfavorable light, it appeared to the officers and directors that after making full allowance for all its losses and an ample provision for reinsuring outstanding risks, and for all other liabilities, the capital stock would still be left intact; and they felt bound in duty to fully protect all its policyholders, and retain the full and entire confidence of the public in the future, as in the past; they resolved that legal and necessary measures be at once taken to fill up and make good whatever capital of the Company was lost by the Chicago fire. In accordance with this resolution, the Company immediately applied to the State Superintendent of the Insurance Department for an examination of its affairs, and for a regulation for the amount of impairment. The Company not being able at this time to make an accurate estimate of the amount of its loss, the Superintendent, after ascertaining that the condition of the Company was sound, and its assets in excess of its liabilities, directed the officers to use their best endeavors to ascertain their entire liability and to make a statement to the Department on the 1st of November. These directions were being complied with by the officers, but on the 21st of October, before 3 o'clock, the Company was served with an injunction, restraining it from transacting business and stifling the appointment of a receiver. Said injunction was granted and receiver appointed by Judge CARDOZO, on application of one WM. H. H. OWENS, who became a stockholder about 12 o'clock the very day the receiver was appointed and injunction served. Friday, Nov. 3, was named in the order for the Company to show cause why the injunction should not be made final. By this summary proceeding, the business of the Company was stopped, and the payment of drafts on the Company in favor of the Chicago sufferers was forced to protest on the very day when the Company was found to be in a solvent condition by a careful examination made by the Insurance Department, viz.: March 1, 1871, and at a time when a majority of the stockholders were ready to pay in an assessment to make good the capital of the Company after allowing for all liabilities—nearly three-quarters of the stockholders having, in advance of an examination and requisition, signed an agreement to that effect.

The Company appeared before Judge CARDOZO yesterday, through their counsel, Mr. MASS. Judge CARDOZO, after hearing the case, ordered the injunction to be vacated and the receiver discharged.

Mr. GEORGE MATHER, a relative of Judge CARDOZO, was the counsel for this man OWENS, who modestly described himself in Court as being himself solemnly aver that he never saw the man before. The stock was transferred, the injunction granted, the receiver appointed, and the papers served, all between 12 o'clock noon and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The injunction was granted on the affidavit of a single individual to the effect that the Company was impaired, and should prove total loss; they would pay the face of every policy, and have a good part of their capital left. For the immediate relief of the Chicago sufferers they resolved to pay all their Chicago losses on receiving satisfactory proofs, without waiting the expiration of the usual sixty days as allowed by the terms of their policies. Adopting this course gave a fair idea, in estimating the extent of the Company's losses in the most unfavorable light, it appeared to the officers and directors that after making full allowance for all its losses and an ample provision for reinsuring outstanding risks, and for all other liabilities, the capital stock would still be left intact; and having to fully protect all its policyholders, and retain the full and entire confidence of the public in the future, as in the past, they resolved that legal and necessary measures be at once taken to fill up and make good whatever capital of the Company was lost by the Chicago fire. THE CITY OF CHICAGO.

Progress of Reconstruction—Plenty of Work—The Relief Problem—Shelter for the Homeless—Sanitary Measures—Political and Financial Affairs.

From our own Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Tuesday, Oct. 31, 1871.

The great fire still engages all our attention. There is extreme difficulty felt in regard to relation to the fire itself; but the question of the relief of the sufferers is one of prominent interest.

So far as reports have reached us the contributions just in over three millions of dollars have been amount of money has not for distribution by the Board of which of judge Ca[illegible] court has been taken. Much the largest portion, however, of cash money and supplies received is dispensed by the General Relief Committee. But they have so much petty embarrassment that were it not for the auxiliary and committees, churches, &c., which have control of supplies sent directly to them there would be much suffering. But there is much kind of cant and pretended, so many are attempting to live off the public bounty who have not even smelt fire. On the whole, however, the relief business is progressing as satisfactorily as could be expected, considering its gigantic proportions. Thanks to the liberalism of the character of the relief, daily are being given out by the Committee, that is materials, of which [illegible] them. Soon everybody will be beyond [illegible] will and the rule, which at the moment [illegible] now.

There is plenty of work to do, and those who [illegible] why any able-bodied man should be long [illegible] from the public bounty. Once started, if he has a mind to work, he can support himself and family. Wages are good and pay prompt, and every one is wanted.

[illegible] of human [illegible] left in Chicago yet, unnamed by the fire. The price of every article in demand is being held at exorbitant prices. Brick has advanced over a hundred per cent, and lumber largely, so that the benevolence abroad is compelled to enrich our Shylocks who happed to have in hand what is required to shelter our own suffering [illegible]. It is a bad feature, but cannot well be helped. There is no law to compel man to be humane. And, that the laboring classes, receiving good wages before, the fire are clamoring and striking for "[illegible] prices." Masons are demanding $5 and $6 a day, and the necessities of contractors compel them to pay these rates, though the cost of living is not higher than before the fire. And so on. The great drawback to the building up of Chicago will be just these extortions, and the noble generosity of everybody abroad will be in a measure defeated by the enhanced cost of labor, and other things which must be had. So I repeat my advice. Let purchases be made by the dozen in those localities where what is needed can be had.

Arrangements are being largely made to erect permanent buildings. More than five hundred permits have already been granted for large stores and blocks, and the work of preparing the foundations is rapidly going forward. In the meantime the "burnt district" is being covered with temporary establishments, and the "rains" are fast disappearing. Think of the joyous which spring up "in a night" in California during the "Flush Times," and along the Pacific Railroad, and you will have some idea of the appearance of "New Chicago"—only you will have to throw in as a background the dilapidated—the standing walls and chimneys, the scathed and burned trees, to make the picture complete.

The bustle and turmoil of the South Side have been thrown into a small diversion on the West Side, and along about three-quarters of a mile on Wabash avenue. It is as much as one's life is worth to attempt to navigate some few streets on the West side. Even on the South Side, in some localities, the jam is fearful, as at the intersection of State and Madison streets.

General trade has much revived. Wholesale dealing in the vicinity of the railroad stations and witnessing the noise and confusion, one would hardly dream of the rate a little way off.

Our local insurance companies have actually been heard from yet. What reports we have are anything but encouraging to Eastern holders. They can form no idea of what percentage they will eventually realize. The city against "foreign" insurance companies, which was successfully raised a year or two ago, has been the ruin of our city companies, and of thousands who have confided in them. One result of the great fire will be a reorganization of our insurance affairs.

We are still astonished at the terrible incidents which sensational correspondents still report for the Eastern papers. It is now satisfactorily settled that no one was burnt or stunned, although it was fully believed that such was the case the day after the fire. Nearly all the thrilling stories collect, except a few connected with individual escapes, are pure inventions. The story about that Krupp shell blowing up the Tribune building is one of them. Another, that a villain robbed a bank office as he came out of the building with the funds of the bank, that he was arrested by a policeman whom he shot, and was in turn torn limb from limb by the incensed multitude, is another. And so are a thousand and one others. These was, to be sure, a good deal of bold thieving during the fire, but no violence.

In the disordered condition of the city the "General Committee" of the two parties have secured the nomination of the people, and of course to make up a united ticket of all themselves. They have selected some good men, but have so fixed matters that, with about holding over, the "spellbound" element will continue in control of the Common Council. A gentler deal has been made in the selection of County Commissioners, who are to take the place of our present chosen rulers. Unless these nominations are repudiated, there will be little or no improvement in our local legislatures. The candidates for Mayor, too, is regarded by many as a poor selection. He Rumpf, is full of crotchets and theories, with little practical or executive ability, besides laboring under the physical disability of being exceedingly deaf. Rust is laid the inside track with the Ring who assumed the office of dictators, and consequently is far forward at a time when the city needs a far different man.

There is a movement on foot to substitute better men for the objectionable ones. Meetings have already been held in the West Division, and others are to follow. The Republican Party generally endorsed publication, and their advertising columns show that Chicago is full of life and business yet. There is one feature in our affairs worth special mention. It is the extreme confidence which our older citizens manifest in propositions of capitalists abroad to purchase real estate in the burnt district. They appear almost to take it as an insult, but many that Chicagoans must build up Chicago. This spirit is well enough, perhaps, but carried to extremes, it will be likely to retard our reconstruction. Many who have lost heavily by to appear cheerful, but it is [illegible] a smile over the grave of some departed loved one. Others, whose successes amount and which had up into fifty thousands, have opened their houses for boarders, as entirely are they stripped of current successes. I helped fit out a family yesterday, utterly destitute, who, when I last heard from them before the fire, were not worth less than two hundred thousand dollars. Another, an old citizen, who was rated at a million and a half in business buildings, was glad to accept a second-hand hat and coat; so hurried was he on early from his dwelling that he was compelled to leave him destitute. So we go.

The railroads will undoubtedly get the "lake front," upon which to build their mammoth Union Depot, with but little opposition. The eight hundred thousand dollars which they are to pay the city for it, will come very opportune just now. Public opinion is divided in the case of the shooting of Col. GROVESNOR, mentioned in my last. The young man TRAY had his enemies, and before him was apparently a drunken rough. He obeyed his orders, and, in a military point of view, is justified. But the orders were illegal therefore, the Soldier of the Blade lies with his aggrieved officers. He is held for trial; but what the result will be we cannot now calculate. The welcome rain of Tuesday night and Wednesday has apparently extinguished the fires which were devastating Michigan. An easterly wind blew Monday and Tuesday, and the smoke penetrated fifty miles into this state, bearing a strong smell of turf and vegetation. At Aurora, forty miles from the city, the smoke was so dense that one could not see two blocks. It was in all the houses, and in the cracks of stoves thereof, much to their discomfort. The weather is now beautiful, and everything is favorable for out-door work.

The Insurance Question—Dissatisfaction at the Increased Tariff.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—The Middle of the underwriters in increasing the rates of insurance on grain elevators is a subject of general complaint. The rates before the fire averaged two per cent, per annum, thirty days in proportion. Since the fire the rates are five per cent per annum, seven per cent for six months, twelve per cent for one month and thirty-one per cent for two days. The Tribune says these rates are simply ruinous, and, if continued, will destroy business. The danger of loss in the elevators has been greatly increased by the fire, and, certainly, risks are as safe now as ever. The temperance men of Chicago have called a meeting, and put in nomination a ticket for city and county officers. Many of the candidates are also on the union or "fire-proof" ticket. It is announced on reliable authority that the remaining eighty per cent. of the stock of the Republic Insurance Company will be called in at once, and that the Company will pay its losses in full, and go on with the business.

The Russian Grand Duke.

The result of the interview yesterday between Major MONTGOMERY, on the part of the Reception Committee, and the Russian Minister, is that if the Grand Duke arrives in New-York between this and Tuesday next, he will be conducted to his quarters at the Clarendon, incog., and the next day proceed to Washington. If, however, his Imperial Highness should reach here on election day, the parade will take place on Wednesday, and the programme, as originally adopted, will be strictly adhered to. If the Grand Duke arrives in the City, and leaves for Washington before Tuesday next, the military reception and parade will occur when he returns. The Navy Yard will meet Rear-Admiral JULIUS ROMAN, and conduct him and his suite to Pier No. 1 North River, where carriages will be in waiting to receive the Imperial party, as was intended, and as has been brought up from the Upper Bay when the fleet first arrived. There is no doubt that the reception programme has been much detracted from in public interest by the great rumor which has taken place in the arrival of the Russian fleet. An afternoon paper thinks that the best way to celebrate the course of ALEXANDER is by a splendid reform victory on Tuesday.

The Water-Front of Ward's Island.

The case of ALFRED E. BEACH vs. The Mayor, &c., in relation to the water-fronts of Ward's Island, was up for argument before Judge INGRAHAM, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday. The action was brought to determine the rights of parties to the land between high and low water mark, and in some places beyond that line on Ward's Island, and the rights in certain old roads laid out on the Island before the City had the title. The old patent from the Commissioners of the Land Office, gave the property to certain of the then owners, some of whom did not own the adjacent lands. The City now claims that this patent was void, and that the City, as adjacent owner, is now entitled to the land. The case, the facts of which have already been fully stated in the columns of the TIMES, came up on a motion to settle certain issues not submitted to the referee.

The Court reserved its decision.

Death of E. D. Nelson, the Artist.

At a meeting of the Artists' Society of Association Building, held yesterday afternoon, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That we, the friends of our late associate, Mr. E. D. NELSON, and the artists, as a body, have heard with sincere and deep sorrow of his very sudden and unexpected death; and that we desire to express our sense of the great loss to us, as a beloved and valued friend, and as a brother of talent, of one who has devoted himself with conscientiousness to his profession, and to offer our heartfelt sympathies to his bereaved family and friends.

Resolved, That we will attend the funeral services to be held over his remains at his o'clock A. M. Saturday, Nov. 4, at Trinity Church, Wall-st. Also, cordially invite all his brother Artists and friends to be present on the occasion.

Resolved, That the Secretary of our Society be instructed to transmit a copy of these resolutions to his afflicted family.

Precautions Against Forging Sub-Treasury Checks.

The Sub-Treasury has adopted a system of crimping the paper on which their checks are written, for the purpose of preventing alterations or forgeries. After the check is made out, it is passed through a small machine, which crimps or indents with parallel lines that portion of the paper on which the amount and figures was written. The result is that the paper cannot be written on a second time, nor can it be restored to its original condition.

The Westchester Tragedy.

GUSTAVE KUSTER, of Yonkers, who was shot under such mysterious circumstances at Riverdale, died yesterday at Bellevue Hospital. It will be remembered that on Wednesday morning he was found lying on the Hudson River Railroad track, at Riverdale, after having been run over by a train of cars, which crushed his right arm and inflicted other injuries. It was found that he had a pistol-shot wound in the head, and facts were subsequently ascertained which showed that he had probably been shot and robbed by highwaymen, but nothing certain concerning the affair has yet been discovered. An inquest will be held in the case by Coroner YOUNG, who yesterday granted a permit for the removal of the remains to Yonkers for burial.

THE REGISTRY.

Total Number of Names on the Lists thus far 129,052.

Thirty-seven Thousand Two Hundred and Thirty-Six Names Added Yesterday—The Reserve Army of Voters Coming Forward.

Last year there were but three days when the places of registry were open, and yesterday being, under the present law, the fourth day when the books were open for the reception of the names of voters, there could be no just comparison with the figures of last year, and they have accordingly been omitted. It will be seen from the following table that there were 37,236 names added to the lists yesterday. These being added to the 92,816 registered on Oct. 27 and 30, and the 39,420 registered on Wednesday, makes a total of 129,052. As the total registration last year was 142,608, it will be seen that even for the late embrace 13,556 less persons have been registered than last year. As there is yet one day for registration, it is probable the lists will somewhat exceed those of last year:

Registration in the down-town Wards yesterday progressed quietly. The inspectors were at their posts during the day, and worked with an apparent contentment of being watched. Some seemed quite uneasy under the espionage of the Committee of Seventy's challengers and the "roosters" who were dropping in upon them at intervals. Visits to neighboring taverns by inspectors were frequent, but a quorum of the Board were always in attendance.

In the First, Second and Third Wards the registration is about completed, in the opinion of the inspectors. In the Fourth, Fifth and Seventh Wards the registration went on in regular and a brisk rate during the day, and in the districts along the river, a number of voters, apparently long shoremen, expressed themselves in favor of O'DONOVAN ROSSA for Senator, and the Reform ticket generally.

The greater number of those who were registering in these Wards, between sunset and dark, were of Tammany Hall Democrats. The greatest difference of opinion was shown in the Sixth Ward, where the friends of DOWLING and BRENNAN seem to want but little occasion to break out into open rupture. The Dowling party have this week hung the plaster of recantation, calling upon the voters of the Ward to organize opposition to a mining lease, which was living in hopes of a veto to rule it." In the signed "with several hundred names, which number includes many Italians living in the Five Points. In the Fifth Senatorial District, which comprises the Eighth, Ninth and Fifteenth Wards and a portion of the Sixteenth Ward, the registration was very satisfactory to the friends of Reform. Old men hobbled up to the polls on their crutches, and men who have not voted for years registered their names. Never, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, has there been so much interest manifested in an election in this part of the City, as there is at present. The inspectors being constantly brought into contact with as much respectability as is shown in the best wards for register, and being surrounded with watchers, to insure good behavior, and it is expected that an honest election will be had in the district. Registers who are numerous in the purlieus of the Eighth Ward, are at a loss to know how to procure their yearly vocation, and regretfully see themselves becoming valuables to their Tammany friends.

The chances of Mr. BENEDICT, the Reform candidate, are improving, if the talk in the district is to be relied upon, and MIKE NORTON, the Tammany pet, is far from being certain of another seat in the Legislature. The Reform County ticket was warmly advocated yesterday by groups of men assembled in the neighborhood of the registration places during the day.

A TRIBUNE reporter visited several of the Wards of the Fourth Senatorial District last evening, with the view of ascertaining the progress of the registry. In the different districts of the Seventh Ward visited, it was ascertained that a greater number of respectable voters this on former years have come forward.

In the Third and the contiguous districts of the Fourth Ward people had not come forward to register in such numbers as was expected. Of those who did, there was a fair sprinkling of the respectable element. An inspector in one case said to our reporter: "If the voters do not come forward more promptly to-morrow the prospects of Democrats will be bad this year." It is expected, however, that the laboring classes, who generally stay away until the last day, will make a good show today. In other districts of the Fourth Ward visited, the registry was larger than at any previous election, while in other places the numbers balanced evenly with those of last year. The Hungarian merchants of Cathedral-place, and the Jewish merchants in Attorney-street of the Fourth Ward, have manifested considerable interest in this election. Throughout the Ward there was no disturbance of any kind, and an inquiry at the Ostwegen Saloon, where it was alleged there had not been a single arrest for the last three registration days.

Throughout the Third Ward everything was quiet, and it was observed that the working classes were rather dilatory in putting in an appearance. The inspectors say, however, that these men usually come forward in a crowd on the last day. Among the voters who have registered up to the present are many respectable men who have not voted for many years past. In the Fifth Ward, one of the inspectors told our reporter that all the wealthy merchants doing business in Greenwich-street, and elsewhere, and who reside in the hotels of the neighborhood, have come forward to a man.

In the First and Fifth Wards the registration passed off quietly, and the respectable people, following the example of their children in these localities, registered their names with commendable punctuality.

The Tammany repeaters and their ringleaders were not quite so bold in the Seventh Senatorial District, yesterday, as in the two previous days of registration, and did not show themselves quite so openly. Nevertheless, Tammany, aware of the popularity and strength of Mr. O'Brien in the district, did not neglect getting roughs to register their names falsely wherever a good opportunity presented itself. The registration was closely watched, however, and the number of names fraudulently recorded was considerably reduced through fear of detection. Special efforts were made at repeating in the Eighteenth Ward, where Mr. NICHOLAS HAPESON is running for the Assembly on the Reform ticket against the notorious "JIM" IRVING. In the Fifth District of the Ward, Mr. HAMMONT, a watcher at the place of registry discovered two Bradley repeaters, who registered their names in an illegal manner, and will cause their arrest if they attempt to vote on election day. He also saw a crowd of repeaters at the corner of Fourteenth-street and Ninth-avenue, who were deterred from registering by his presence at the polling-place. In the Fourteenth District of Eighteenth Ward, Mr. HAUGHTON noted down the name of a man who registered himself as living at No. 227 East Twenty-fourth-street, although not known by the occupants of that house. It was observed that there was a considerable falling off in the registry in the districts on the extreme eastern side of the Ward, and this was attributed to the fact that the inspectors had first taken a large number of names on loose slips of paper, and had then intentionally neglected to put them in the registry books. In the Twenty-fifth Ward, JOHN RAINY, was assaulted by WM. HICKEY in the act of fraudulently placing his name on the registry books, and a complaint was lodged against him before Justice BIXBY. He was subsequently arrested and committed to prison, without bail, to await the action of the Grand Jury. He admitted that he had registered in two different places. Several other complaints were entered against repeaters who have not yet been apprehended.

A number of ladies were registered yesterday with the intention of offering their votes at the coming election. This was done by several in the Nineteenth District of the Sixteenth Ward.

The Registry.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Allow me to call attention to the manner in which the registry of voters is conducted by some of the inspectors, and to ask if it is in accordance with the law. When I went to enroll my name yesterday morning, the three registers were occupied as follows: One had a small memorandum book, and another a sheet of foolscap paper, and on these they wrote the name with a lead pencil. The third, a man evidently unacquainted to the use of the pen, was laboriously copying into the ordinary registry book, at the dictation of the others, names which they had previously recorded in pencil. Now I wish to ask what guarantee have I that my name is correctly entered or entered upon the enrollment at all? On Saturday, Oct. 28, the inspectors has had a book in which the names were simultaneously recorded in ink. This time the registry was in pencil, to be copied, perhaps, into the book subsequently. It seems to me that this lead pencil registry leaves a very wide door open to fraud. VOTER.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Nov. 1, 1871.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Wishing to forward, by every means, an honest registry and a pure ballot, I take this way of communicating my undisguised disgust on learning that the official registry map displayed at BRADNEY'S stables is full of errors, calculated to mislead unwary voters as to their proper places of registry. I will also add my experience in registering on one of the appointed days in October. My name was taken on a separate sheet of foolscap. I shall go on Friday and make inquiry whether it is properly entered in the books. Yours, &c., A VOTER.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, Nov. 2, 1871.

The Tribune's Apology in Behalf of the Inspectors of Election.

The registering of voters on loose slips of paper, to be afterward copied at leisure by the inspectors in the registry books, was as much a matter of discussion yesterday as on previous days. Thus opportunities for fraud are presented by such a system is indesirable. Two of the inspectors where this plan is adopted are obliged to trust to the honesty of the one entrusted with the registering of the names, and it is an easy matter for him to count some when he calls off the list to the other members of the Board of Registry for entry in their books, or to alter the numbers so as to prevent the name registered from voting on the day of election. The law requires the names to be written in the registry books "in alphabetical order." The Tribune, apologizing for the practice, said yesterday that "this manifestly could not be done at the time the names are given in." The law only requires that the names shall be entered in the registry books, so that all surnames beginning with the same letter of the alphabet shall be together. To facilitate the entering of names, by this arrangement, the registry books furnished to the inspectors by the Bureau of Election, are indexed. And when a man whose surname begins with A or Z presents himself, the inspectors have but to turn to the index, and find the book beginning with either of those letters, and enter the name. As there is plenty of blotting paper always furnished, and the rush is never so great as to seriously embarrass the inspectors in their clerical duty, there is no reason that they should not copy the voter's name at once in a legal manner.

Justice Bixby, After Repeaters.

JOHN NEWMAN, residing at No. 429 Fourth-avenue, yesterday, in the Yorkville Police Court, before Justice BIXBY, charged JOHN RAINY with having illegally registered his name as a voter in the Seventeenth election district in the Twenty-first Ward. RAINY is not a resident of the district, and was induced to go there and register for a consideration given by friend of JOHN HICKEY, RAINY's friends. The greatest difference of opinion was shown in the Sixth Ward, where the friends of DOWLING and BRENNAN seem to want but little occasion to break out into open rupture. The Dowling party have this week hung the plaster of recantation, calling upon the voters of the Ward to organize opposition to a mining lease, which was living in hopes of a veto to rule it." Right Rev. GEORGE AUGUSTUS SELWYN, Lord Bishop of Lichfield, is expected to arrive in this City today, and will preach next Sunday at Trinity Church at 10½ A. M., and Trinity Chapel at 7½ P. M.

WM. HENRY (colored) was committed, yesterday, by Justice DOWLING, for trial on a charge of a deadly assault upon SAMUEL SPRUCE, also colored, whom he stabbed in the abdomen.

The merry friends of WM. FAULDS THOMAS, M. D., of this City, will rejoice to learn of his safe return from Europe. He reached New-York by the steam-ship Erin, Capt. LAWSON, and is in excellent health.

The trot at Fleetwood Park, yesterday, for a $1,500 purse, was won by JOHN MURPHY's bay gelding, Chipper; Time—2:40, 2:38, 2:37. Four horses started. M. ROBBS's bay mare Belle of Orange, in harness, won the $500 purse.

The trial of JAMES S. COLGATE, who is charged with selling counterfeit money while conducted in Ludlow-street Jail, was resumed yesterday, before Judge BENEDICT, in the United States Circuit Court. The case is not yet concluded.

Rev. PETER MCDOWALL, of Albion, late Moderator of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, arrived in this City on Wednesday. He will preach in the South Presbyterian Church, (Dr. THOMSON's,) Thirty-fourth-street, on Sunday afternoon.

The stable of TERRENCE CHRAMER, at Ninety-seventh-street, near Fourth-avenue, was set on fire yesterday morning by a boy accidentally upsetting a kerosene lamp, and was totally destroyed, with the shanty adjoining, causing a loss of $400.

CATHARINE WATERS, aged twenty-three years, was arraigned, yesterday, before Justice DOWLING, on a charge of stealing a cloak and dress, valued at $145 from her mother, MARY WATERS, of No. 87 Hester-street. The accused was committed for trial.

Right Rev. A. CLEVELAND COXE, D. D., Bishop of Western New-York, will preach the annual sermon before the Protestant Episcopal Sunday-school Association of New-York, in St. Thomas' Church, corner of Fifth-avenue and Fifty-third-street, on Sunday next, at 7½ P. M.

On Sunday evening, at the Willet-street M. E. Church, the New-York City Sunday-school and Church Extension Society will hold a public meeting. Vice-President GEO. J. HAMILTON will preside, and Rev. Dr. DE PUY, Rev. Mr. ROSS and WM. E. PETTIT, Esq., will speak on the subject of City Evangelization.

JAS. E. MCCORMACK was brought before United States Commissioner SHELDON, yesterday, on a charge of having committed fraudulent acts of bankruptcy in Baltimore, and coming to this City to avoid the consequences. He was committed to await an order of removal from Judge BLATCHFORD.

The improvements now being carried out on the corner of Broadway and Liberty-street are conducted in such a manner as to be dangerous to the public. It is of no unusual occurrence for fragments of iron to fall from the roof to the sidewalk. One lady had a very narrow escape yesterday, the missiles falling quite close to her.

Rev. THOMAS GUARD and Rev. W. E. KETCHAM will address a meeting of the New-York City Church Extension and Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to be held in the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, Seventh-avenue, near Fourteenth-street, to-morrow (Sunday) evening, at 7½ o'clock.

At the annual meeting of the Telegraphers' Mutual Life Insurance Association, held last evening at No. 145 Broadway, Mr. J. D. REID was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. Mr. GERRIT SMITH was elected to fill the vacancy in the Executive Committee occasioned by the death of W. H. HILL, and W. K. APPLEBOUGH was unanimously chosen Secretary for the ensuing year.

BROOKLYN.

The Prospect Park Commissioners have invited Gen. GRAHAM to give a second exhibition drill of his Light Battery, from Fort Hamilton, on the Park Parade-ground this afternoon. Another exhibition will probably be given later in the season.

LONG ISLAND.

The assessment roll of Newtown is completed, and amounts to: Real estate, $3,490,000; personal property, $606,165; total, $4,096,165.

The School Commissioners of Long Island City have finally refused to prohibit the reading of the Bible in the public schools of that city.

The money appropriated by Congress for removing obstructions at Hell Gate is nearly exhausted, and a large number of the workmen have been discharged.

The steamer Bristol, of the Fall River line, narrowly escaped serious accident on her down trip Thursday morning, while passing through Hell Gate. On passing Hallett's Point, the strong tide and wind caught her bows, and before the engineer could be signaled, she struck upon a rock, but was backed off without serious damage.

STATEN ISLAND.

On Thursday a Mrs. TRIOL, residing in Canal-street, Stapleton, attempted suicide by taking poison.

Last evening the dead body of an aged man was found in the woods near the paper factory, Castleton-avenue.

Yesterday a man named LUBARCHER, residing in Gordon-street, Stapleton, nearly severed one of his arms from his body with a razor.

NEW-JERSEY.

The annual inspection and parade of the Jersey City Police Department took place yesterday.

Yesterday, a boy twelve years old, employed in the box factory on East Mechanic-street, Newark, was thrown around the shaft and both legs broken.

At dusk on Thursday evening, an unknown man walked off the side of the Newark and New-York Railroad Bridge over the Passaic at Newark, and was drowned.

Chancellor ZABRISKIE yesterday issued an injunction forbidding any further interference of the Hoboken authorities with the horse-railroads. The tracks were immediately relaid.

FERRAR'S FORTUNE.

A Bankrupt Declared a Millionaire in Three Months—How Swindle Proved More from Poverty to Wealth—The Prosperity of a Tammany Politician.

Three years ago ALEXANDER FERRAR, the present of Ferrar & Swinney, and the associate of JOHN J. BRADLEY, also a member of one of the Ring Commissions and the obedient agent of TWEED in the Assembly, declared himself a bankrupt, and was adjudicated such in the United States District Court on his own petition. He made oath that his entire property consisted of the worth of wearing apparel, and the worth of books, while his liabilities amounted aforeward of $100,000. At the present time he is estimated to be worth one million dollars. That a man possessing property only worth $200, and owing a small fortune in the way of debts, could rise to the position of a millionaire, outside of ordinary business channels, in the short space of three years, seems almost impossible. Such, however, is the case of FERRAR, who has accumulated his money without the aid of business. Ever since he became a bankrupt, he has been nothing else but a Tammany politician and a favorite of the Ring, and this fact, in the minds of many, will probably be accepted as the best explanation of his rapid succession to wealth. He filed his petition in voluntary bankruptcy on the 19th day of February, 1868, doubtless regarding it as the surest way of escaping his indignant creditors, who were pressing him to pay the debts which he had contracted. By the order which adjudicated him a bankrupt, he had all his liabilities entirely "wiped out." In his petition is contained a list of his creditors, showing the amounts due them and the nature of his debts. In many instances judgments were obtained against FERRAR in the State Court, and the costs of Court were added to the amount of indebtedness.

The debts were nearly all contracted in 1866 and 1867, when FERRAR was in partnership with JOHN WINTERS, under the firm name of FERRAR & Co. A few of the creditors held securities for their claims, among the number being the following, who have the amount of FERRAR'S indebtedness to them set opposite their names:

GARVEY & Co., No. 61 Worth-street, $20,420 61; Bank of Commerce, $15,000. The list of creditors whose claims were unsecured, and who mostly had bills against FERRAR for merchandise sold him, is as follows: GEORGE W. WHITE, CHAS. GRIFFITH and GILES WHITE, $976 08; FLOYD BAILEY and CHARLES H. SOPER, $2,029 45; JAS. W. SMITH & Co., No. 201 Liberty-street, $1,328 96; THEODORE KNOUTE, JACOB HACHON, FRED R. KUHNE, No. 34 Reade-street, $1,039 12; JOHN C. KILBOURN and DANIEL T. COPPER, No. 54 Leonard-street, $173 47; C. W. MOORE & Co., No. 281 Broadway, $624 96; THOMPSON & LUNDERSON, No. 1 Park-place, $1,284 57; ALLEN HAYES, No. 1 Park-place, WM. C. LAWLEY & Co., No. 17 White-street, $1,[illegible] 36; GEO. H. SHAW, $436 48; EDWARD HARRIS, $640 80; TABOR CHADWICK, $4,252 24; GOODRICH, FREEMAN & FOSTER, No. 68 Murray-street, $13,189 09; CHAS. W. WEILEY, $1,178 43; MCCURDY, ALDRICH & SPENCER, No. 248 Church-street, $8,131 60; HENRY HERMOTH, No. 1 Park-place, No. 346 Broadway, $111 66; LAWRENCE, CLARK & Co., No. 91 Chambers-street, $875 32; CATHERET & ATHERTON, $267 06; GARDNER COLBY, $974 75; CATHERET & ATHERTON, $2,899 24; BAGHDIGAN & Co., $945 38; HON. H. ARNOLD, Jersey 44; JAS. LAWRENCE, $404 12; DAVID MASON, $218 [illegible]; SIMPSON & SCOTT, $1,[illegible]; HOYT, BIRMINGHAM & Co., No. 81 Park-place, $12,117 38; GUILLAUME, FARGIS & Co., $2,720 98; GARNER & Co., $54,499 61; BIRMINGER & DEWITT, $61 67; JOHN F. WAKE, $8,545 06; FREDERICK W. BORNSTEDT, $285 11; JOSEPH FIEBER & HENRY A. GARNER, $190 66; JOHN D. FOGARTY, $315 11; JAS. O. WILLETT, $[illegible]; Second, $462 78; SQUIER & LAMBERT, $[illegible]; WILLIAMS, $[illegible] 98; JAMES E. GALE & SAMUEL D. ADDISON, $77 61; WM. M. BLISS and others, $48 95; VICTOR & ACHILLE, $4,000; E. V. HAUGHWOUT & Co., $977 37. All of the merchandise purchased by FERRAR, which was never paid for, was obtained on promissory notes, which were never meant to be paid. Of the $100,000 of Bought notes, he owed $1,702 borrowed money, and to LIBBY, GRANT & MANN he owed $15,000 borrowed money, and $7,600 to the Bank of the State of New-York. He got $658 from HELEN VAN STAVOUSEN, of Bainbrook, on a promissory note. The following are the additional debts of FERRAR: President and Directors of Quitenbury Bank, of Norwich Bank, $9,000 on a promissory note; MOSES TAYLOR, President Bank of New-York, $22,000 [illegible], on notes of FERRAR, indorsed by STEWART C. MARSH and discounted by the bank, but never redeemed by FERRAR; E. S. HIGGINS & Co., $1,165 60, on bill of exchange drawn by ROBERT W. CORSON; Merchants' Bank, $4,264, on notes given by FERRAR; JOHN A. STEWART, Receiver of the Bowery Bank, $7,000, on an accommodation note; Western National Bank, $2,000; Bank of Commerce, $2,000; Mechanics' Bank, $6,414 [illegible], on notes of FERRAR; American Exchange Bank, $17,[illegible] 24; Bank of Commerce, about $6,000. GEORGE BOWMAN, a lawyer, had a bill of $166 16 against FERRAR for professional services. To SIMEON DRAPER, JR., he owed a small bill for money borrowed to clear a mortgaged horse which had been seized by the Sheriff, which he never paid, which was why FERRAR got so heavily in debt. The aforementioned statement of FERRAR'S position is the part giving an account of his assets. He makes oath that he did not own any real estate, had no stock in trade or household goods of furniture, no cash on hand, no bills of exchange or securities of any description, no money or earnings, and that his entire property consisted of the worth of wearing apparel and the worth of books.

Why Don't He Come?

O, where, and O, where has the Grand Duke ALEXIS gone? New-York is rapidly growing weary of the pleasures of anticipation and is sadly echoing the plaintive cry of the mother of Sisera: "Why cometh he not? Why tarry the wheels of his chariot?" (In Sisera's time propellers were unknown.) The feast is ordered; the dancers and cymbals are ready to welcome him with charms and much music. But still he cometh not. Fifth-avenue is in despair. Paternal bankers' balances have been largely drawn upon to pay for the importations of cases of silks and satins, made up in the latest Parisian style, and high-topped fascinators of marvelous construction, which have exhausted the inventive talent of Mlle. LUCY HOSTOFF and the Rue Cliche. All the well-known modistes have been working night and day for a fortnight. And for what? The Grand Duke has not come, and everything is already becoming old-fashioned. Some little bird whispered his coming from over the sea, apparently too soon, and all are solemnly chanting the refrain: ALEXIS, O! ALEXIS, the time is fleeting by. The Reception Committee have had the steam of the Mary Powell up for a fortnight, and are sorely contemplating the gradual conversion of the $20,000 they subscribed for the entertainment of his Imperial Highness into tons of cinders, for which they will, perhaps, get about fifty cents a load for agricultural purposes. The Broadway shopkeepers, too, begin to think that things wear a serious aspect. They have invested largely in Alexis ties and gravats, Alexis dollars, Alexis hats, gloves, canes and perfumes, and they begin to fear that these costly superfluities may, after all, be left on their unwilling hands. And the processors, some cantankerous individual has discovered that it is unconstitutional to call out the militia within five days of election; consequently, if ALEXIS should arrive in the next few days, there will be no flashing sabres, no showy uniforms, no glittering epaulettes, no soldier, no Gen. SHALER and staff, to give éclat to the occasion. Evidently the Grand Duke has no magnetism, or he would long ago have been attracted into port by the galaxy of beauty and display, the hospitality and gaiety, only waiting his arrival. It seems impossible that he should prefer MADGIES. Or, can it be possible that his Admiral is a crusty old fellow, and is detaining him in order to assert his own manhood dignity? If such be the case ALEXIS had better try and toss the cable, and let said Admiral look out for squalls when they do arrive! But, seriously, it is to be hoped that the Russian fleet will soon drop anchor off Sandy Hook. The nerves of the bow-ton of New-York are strung up to the highest possible tension, and the excitement bids fair to reach an untimely climax. Moreover, we shall be horrified, in a few days, by some blood and thunder reports from Washington telegraphing to say that the Diplomatic corps in general, and Mr. CATACAZY in particular, are becoming seriously alarmed for the safety of the young ROMANOFF, and that the American Government share in their apprehensions. That Tennessee alarmist is still around.

The Government Gold from Chicago.

The work of examining the coin received from the Subtreasury in Chicago was completed at the Philadelphia Mint on Tuesday. There was about $80,000 in gold, silver and nickels. The money had been deposited in the stone vaults of the Treasury at Chicago, some of it in bags, some in paper parcels, and some loose. After the fire the ruins were overhauled, and the mass of that which was believed to be coin was sent to Philadelphia. At the Mint the good coin was separated from the melted lots, and of this was obtained that needed no more than the application of acid to make it presentable. The balance consisted of masses of gold, silver and metal, amalgamated by the heat, and requiring the process of melting to be gone over again.

Mr. Beecher's "Sympathy" for the Tammany Thieves.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer, Nov. 1.

A friend of ours was lately in Brooklyn, N. Y., and by way of amusement, on a Sunday evening, visited Plymouth Church to hear HENRY WARD BEECHER deliver a discourse in relation to the frauds in New-York City. Mr. BEECHER took a very philosophical view of said frauds, holding that they were attributable to African slavery. At this our informant was a little startled, and was somewhat curious to know what possible connection there was between heavy servitude and the villainies of New-York officials. Mr. BEECHER proved it by an illustration. He said there were some terrible diseases to which the human system was liable, which could only be cured by leaving behind them traces of the remedies that were nearly as bad as the original disease. In order to kill slavery we had to employ the instrumentality of war, and the war brought in the most shocking corruption and prodigality upon the country. It permeated everywhere, leaving behind it. These men—TWEED & CO., in New-York—were only the embodiments of this depraved state of public morals. They were only worse than other men because their opportunities were greater. HE (BEECHER) sympathized with these men. The reason of their bad state of society. He would not punish them with severity; indeed, he did not know whether it would not be best to allow them to remain in office. They were gorged with plunder and were satisfied, and there was reason to believe that after this they would give us a comparatively honest administration. If we turn them out, would be to put in a fresh swarm, who would be likely to gorge themselves in the fashion of their predecessors, so that probably the public would be the losers by it. The audience was immense, and by their claim applause showed that Mr. BEECHER had struck chords that touched them in his discourse.

Acquired Immunity from Animal Poisons.

At a recent meeting of the Boston Society of Medical Sciences, as reported in the Medical and Surgical Journal, the question was discussed of the protection acquired by the human skin against the action of certain animal poisons, after repeated inoculation, one gentleman claiming that the frequent inoculation of some poisons gave a gradual immunity from any poisonous effects. He instanced the effects of mosquito-bites, which he thought were more severe in children than in adults, much more severe in Italians just recently arrived in this country than in natives, and in support of this spoke of a whole family, recently arrived from England, which he had just seen, upon the members of which the bites of mosquitoes had produced a violent eruption of the skin resembling pimpliqua. He thought that the immunity derived from frequent inoculations was analogous to that from vaccine matter against variola. He said that he considered it as established that poisonous snakes were not killed by their own poisons; insects, however, he said, did not enjoy this immunity, as wasps and bees were known to kill each other by their poison. He was supported by another gentleman, who said that in regions where the Rhus Aboundt poisons affect a few years are not affected by the poison. This immunity is not obtained in one season, but only after a prolonged residence; such persons are bitten at at first, but escape all the disagreeable effects from which a non-resident suffers.

Rev. J. T. Goodrich Probably One of the Chicago Victims.

It is feared that Rev. J. T. GOODRICH, of Connecticut, was among those who perished in the Chicago conflagration. A fruitless search has been made for him, particulars of which are thus given in a letter from Guilford to the Hartford (N. Y.) Telegraph:

"AARON BRADLEY, a brother-in-law of Mr. GOODRICH, started for Chicago on the 18th of October, where he was joined by J. C. GOODRICH, a son of the unfortunate man, and a most thorough search was made. All hospitals, morgues, and every conceivable place of refuge, were diligently searched, but to no purpose, except to elicit the following facts: The clerk of the Metropolitan Hotel, was found, and produced the register of the hotel which he had preserved, from which it was ascertained that Mr. GOODRICH arrived at the Metropolitan on the evening of the 8th of October, and engaged board and suite of rooms for an indefinite period, expecting to remain several weeks, as his sickness was of a very formidable character. The clerk, Saturday evening, Oct. 17, several gentlemen, friends of his, met in his rooms for purposes of business. On Sunday he attended Dr. KING'S Church, but was known to have been in his rooms up to the hour of retiring; and this was the last time he was seen. The hotel caught fire about 2 o'clock A. M. Monday. Dr. SMITH, of Chicago, an intimate friend of Mr. GOODRICH, was with him on Saturday, and had made an appointment to meet him again on Monday. He is of the firm belief he perished in the flames. A large number of letters, papers, &c., intended for Mr. GOODRICH, remain unclaimed. He is of the opinion that he has gone into sentimental decay in this terrible manner. Mr. GOODRICH is in Guilford, with her friends, and has the warmest sympathy of the entire community in this great trial.

Southern Feeling.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The article on "Southern Feeling," over the signature of "Fidele," in this morning's TIMES, would be undeserving of notice were it not that it appears in a paper whose influence is felt throughout the North, and it might therefore have its assertions credited. I am a Southerner and have given, from my earnings, perhaps, as much as the voluble "Fidele," whose Christian charity resembles too strikingly that of the Pharisee, of whom the Bible speaks as praying on the street corners and open places and thanking God that he is not as other men, &c. Because one lady from Augusta glories in the burning of Chicago, looking upon it as a visitation of Providence, that is surely no reason why the whole Southern people should be vilified in this manner. The piece is evidently written by a woman, or if by a man, one who, when his country needed his services to assist in putting down the rebels, was not in the field where duty and honor called him.

Admitting that there are some Southerners who still feel the "bitterness of rebellion," this is no reason for parading it before the public and endeavoring to make capital out of it at this time and under such circumstances as the present. The great majority of the Southern people—especially those who fought in the war—regard the sectional differences as dead issues, and are applying themselves now to other and more important issues—the support and education of their families and the firm establishment of peaceful relations between the sections. They have not the means to contribute largely toward the Chicago sufferers, but in proportion to their means they have done so. They are in need of contributions themselves too much to be expected to send them elsewhere, and as to their dislike of Northerners it is perfectly natural, for no conquered people ever liked their conquerors until time had worn away their prejudices. I once had the same feeling toward Northerners, but having associated with them since the war, I can say that I entertain now no prejudice whatever against them save against such narrow-minded "Yankees" as delight in speaking of the "offensive pusillanimous twang that only a Southerner can articulate."

A SOUTHERN SOLDIER.

A Call for Effective Action.

From the Troy Times, Nov. 1.

The word comes to us from the headquarters of our State Committee that the prospect in the State is bright, and the Republican triumph at the election is assured if the Republican voters "press" the enemy now. Victory is within our grasp if we will only put out our hands to seize it. The excellence of our general ticket and the strength of our local nominations have created the best feeling among our friends everywhere. On the contrary, our opponents are paralyzed. Their leaders in the city are at their wits' ends ways to keep themselves out of the clutches of the law for their offenses, instead of leading the Democracy as they have done, to victory. Thousands of Democrats in the city and State too, have become alarmed at the tendencies of their party toward corruption and the impairment of the very integrity of the Government by the practices of the conspirators in New-York. They will refuse to support them any longer. In their local nominations they will vote for honest men and repudiate TWEED and the conspirators who have plundered with him. This condition is one which invites the action of every citizen; is particularly solicits the effective action of the Republicans. The State may be rescued from the men who have brought its good name to shame, its treasury to bankruptcy, its people to taxation without precedent.

Dissatisfaction of County Democrats.

From The Daily Saratogian, Oct. 31.

The better-informed members of the Democratic Party look with especial disgust on all nominees who, as former members of the Legislature, have voted for and sustained the Tammany Ring measures. Wherever such men have been nominated, as is the case in this Senatorial District, the Democratic candidates need not be surprised if they fail to receive the support of men whose patience they have exhausted. The same may be said of Republican candidates who are known to have had secret affiliations with Tammany. WINANS sought to run for the Assembly again, but was driven from the field by the unconcealed scorn and contempt of his old Republican constituency. Everywhere Tammany is in eclipse. Concerning the Democratic State ticket the sentiment is hardly less emphatic. It is tainted with TWEED and Tammany associations. Efforts will be made in some quarters to save it, but it is impossible to change the conviction in the public mind that the State Convention was really controlled by TWEED; that the rural and Reform Democracy were actually put-manoeuvred and snubbed, and TWEED'S ticket placed in nomination. Many Democrats positively refuse to support it. Sanguine hopes are also entertained that in New-York City the polls will be so guarded that a tolerably fair vote will be cast, and much of the repeating shut off.

Mr. Samuel J. Tilden on Mayor Hall's Dishonesty.

The following remarks, extracted from the speech delivered by Mr. TILDEN on Thursday evening at the Cooper Institute, cannot be too carefully studied by people who go about trying to convince others that Mayor HALL is an honest man:

"Who contrived the charter? Who contrived section No. 4 of the County Tax Levy? Was it Mr. TWEED? Doubtless Mr. TWEED, as Senator, favored it; so did also Mr. BRADLEY. But who contrived them? Mr. TWEED could not. [Applause.] Who contrived them? I ask Mr. PETER B. SWENEY; I ask Mayor A. OAKEY HALL, who contrived them? Who contrived these clauses? Who prepared the legal methods and legal plausibility for the crimes that have since been enacted? [Applause.] The third share and step and not was the audit. These three auditors met but once. They then passed a resolution; that resolution stands on the records of the City in the handwriting of Mayor HALL. It was passed on his motion, and what was its effect? Did it audit anything? Did it perform the function, did it fulfill the trust committed to its authority? Not a bit of it! It provided that all claims certified by Mr. WM. M. TWEED and Mr. JOSEPH B. YOUNG, the President and Secretary of the old Board of Supervisors should be received as a sufficient evidence, and should be paid. Now, I ask again, who is responsible for that action of the Board of Audit? Mr. TWEED, I understand, is nominally a lawyer. [Laughter and applause.] That is to say, he has been admitted to practice the profession, but I am bound in justice to that distinguished character, to say that I do not think, if he had no complicity with this transaction otherwise, that we could hold him accountable; that he knew more of the law than to know that this was a violation of his duty. But there was one man there, and that is Mayor HALL, the actor on this occasion, the mover of this resolution, the draughtsman in whose hands it stand today upon the public records, whom his associates might plead as their excuse for having believed that they were performing their duty—who knew that to audit is to hear, to judge, to determine whether the claim is valid, how much is properly and justly due upon it. He knew that it was a fraudulent violation of duty on the part of every member of that Board to audit, to pass those claims in that manner. I say fraudulent on the part of every man who did not act under his misadvice. I think it is possible that CONNOLLY may claim, that TWEED may claim with justice he had no other complicity in the transaction. I say, then, that on that occasion the chief conspirator, the man who is responsible for the action of the Board, and the man whom the public ought to hold as morally accountable for the crime that followed afterward, is Mr. Mayor A. O. HALL. [Applause.]

Fellow-citizens, let me call your attention for a moment to the afterpiece of these transactions. Our friend himself, Mayor HALL, is a very distinguished dramatist, and he would consider that it would be an offense to the theory of the drama if the afterpiece should be left out. [Applause.] What was that afterpiece? I take occasion here to say that the public of New-York owe a debt of gratitude to the NEW-YORK TIMES, for its manly and independent and vigorous [applause] maintenance of the rights of the people against this corrupt and irresponsible cabal. When that journal published its statements in regard to those frauds, Mayor HALL published a card. In that card he said that these accounts were audited by the old Board of Supervisors, and that neither he nor Mr. CONNOLLY had any responsibility whatever for them. A little later, about the 16th of August, Mr. HALL said that it is true they were audited, these particular accounts, by the Board of Special Audit, but in doing so they performed a ministerial function, and would have been compelled by mandamus to do it, if they had not done it willingly. I do not deem it necessary, in the presence of an intelligent audience—in the presence of lawyers sitting around me on this stand—to make any observations upon the idea that to audit, and that to pay the amount due—found due—is a ministerial function. [Laughter.] Then Mr. HALL put in his third defense. He said that this money was paid in pursuance of a compromise made up at Albany, and without which we should not have got the ineffable benefits of the new charter and the action of the Supervisors under the supervision of the law. That was a very comfortable and very comforting theory; but unfortunately when I was looking into the accounts of the Broadway Bank, and found that GARVEY and INGERSOLL and WOODWARD had taken all the money nearly, a question very embarrassing and very difficult and almost painful arose in my mind: Who were these parties that compelled TWEED to make this compromise? It was not GARVEY. It was not INGERSOLL. It was not WOODWARD. They were not members of the Senate nor Assembly. They could not stop TWEED'S beneficent measures of reform. Who was the party with whom TWEED'S Senator compromised? Why, looking over the whole field I could not see any human being whom TWEED'S Senator compromised unless it was with TWEED'S Supervisor. There was only one party to the arrangement, and that was the same party. So departed Mr. HALL'S third defense. Then followed a set of expedients quite as remarkable as his defenses. On the burning of the vouchers, he made a raid on CONNOLLY. He wrote him a public letter demanding his resignation in the name of the public, and because he had lost public confidence. Then he sent a touching private letter of regret. We know what a course he has pursued since. We remember the raid made by HALL and SWEENY to get rid of GREEN. What was the result? I went to the Broadway Bank, and found that nine hundred thousand dollars of forged warrants were deposited to WOODWARD'S account, except one to INGERSOLL, and the proceeds were divided with TWEED. That Mayor HALL has endeavored to mislead the public mind cannot be denied. It is not only in plunder of millions of dollars that the "Ring" are charged with, but in the attempt to bribe the Press of New-York. It has failed, but no thanks to them. They got a law passed whereby the Mayor had the disposition of all the advertising. But he has invished it upon the Press without perceptible effect. Not only that; when the NEW-YORK TIMES [applause] had the manliness and independence to open its columns in behalf of the people, you all remember how they attempted to take from the owners of that paper their building, fairly bought and paid for. [Applause.] This was also a part of the conspiracy of which I have been speaking. There is another act in that conspiracy, and that is the attempt to conduct the Legislative Department of the Government in the interest of the plunderers. I have some very distinct and very definite knowledge on that subject, as for the past three months persistent efforts have been made to induce me to take something else, by these men, as a compromise, and give up the Senate and Assembly. Early in August I was visited by these men, and told that I could name every delegate in the State Convention if I would consent to this compromise. This offer has been repeatedly made to me, and everything except the Senate Legislature was tendered to me, but I always declined, telling them that everything else was of minor importance, that whatever else I could surrender, that I would not, and I told the State Convention distinctly that I felt it to be my duty to oppose any men who would not go for making the Government of the City, what it should be, at whatever cost or sacrifice, and that if they did not deem that regular I would raise and take position in the ranks of my plundered fellow-citizens. I didn't stop to inquire what candidates this meeting has indorsed, or what were to be the proceedings of this meeting, but only asked if it was a gathering of the people to redeem the municipality of this City. I know no duty paramount to that of standing by the people in this emergency. In conclusion, I have only to say that all who have an interest in reforming our City Government should stand together in the election of Senators and Assemblymen, and send men there favorable to the legislation necessary for the honor and prosperity of our City. Such a state of affairs as we have had in the past cannot exist but for a short period. There is not money or property enough to stand such a band of cormorants except for a very short period. These are my terms of compromise. I happen to know that TWEED'S plan was to carry the Senatorial districts of this City, and then elect eight of the twelve Republican Senators if possible in the rural districts, whom he bought up last year. He thus expects to control the Senate, and it was because I had misgivings that his plan might succeed, that I deemed it my duty to aid you in this conflict, not feeling sure that the Republicans could accomplish the work unaided, and I felt it to be a duty that I owed to the people to take my place there and stand or fall with those who had gathered around me."

NOTICE.
REDEMPTION OF 1-20 BONDS 1862.
TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Sept. 1, 1871.
By virtue of a law authority given by an act of Congress approved July 14, 1870, entitled "An Act to authorize the refunding of the national debt," I hereby give notice that the principal and accrued interest of the United States bonds of the issue known as Five-twenty Bonds, will be paid at the Treasury of the United States, in the City of Washington, on or after the 1st day of December next, and that the interest on said bonds will cease on that day. That is to say, Coupons due December 1, 1871, of bonds of Feb. 25, 1862, dated May 1, 1862, numbered as follows:
1 to 50,000 inclusive, of $50 each.
1 to 50,000 inclusive, of 100 each.
1 to 10,000 inclusive, of 500 each.
1 to 10,000 inclusive, of 1,000 each.
And Registered Bonds of the same date:
1 to 500 inclusive, of $50 each.
1 to 4,000 inclusive, of 100 each.
1 to 1,000 inclusive, of 500 each.
1 to 1,000 inclusive, of 1,000 each.
The amount outstanding (embraced in the numbers as above) is one hundred million ($100,000,000) dollars.
Coupon Bonds of the act of Feb. 25, 1862, were issued in lieu of Coupon Bonds of the First Series (embracing those described above) on the 1st day of July last, designations upon them, while those of the Second, Third, Fourth Series are distinctly marked on the face of the bonds.
United States securities forwarded for redemption should be addressed to the "LOAN DIVISION," Secretary's Office.
J. F. HARTLEY, Acting Secretary.
